RALLY BOOSTS STOCKS 2 TO 6 POINTS

Today

Nothing Learned in 1929.
The President Does Things.
Mr. Sandereggers' Body.
Geologists Bring News.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A WEEK begins with more wondering. The stock exchange will open for only three hours a day; and that is long enough for much foolishness. William Randolph Hearst writes that last week's market collapse "makes clear the lamentable fact that nothing has been learned and applied as a result of the destructive debacle of 1929.

"It shows that about the same proportion of utterly worthless securities are still put on the market for suckers to bite at."

Mr. Hearst asks:

"Why does not the government prosecute criminally promoters issuing misleading statements in regard to securities?"

ONE ANSWER, as regards past, is that such promoters putting out fifty and sixty million shares of stock at a time, have usually been close to the national government and some times all powerful in THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

It is understood, however, that a real change in government occurred last March, and the world's most profitable business, that of printing stock certificates for the "biting suckers," may become less profitable.

MEANWHILE, the government takes control of gambling in grain. Minimum prices will be set for wheat, corn, oats, barley. Selling below those prices will be forbidden.

Under old conditions, that would encourage gambling for a rise, gamblers knowing that prices couldn't drop below a certain point. But the government will forbid fluctuations of more than five cents in any day's trading. This rule will prevent selling out gamblers on the long side, at rates ruinous to grain values.

It is all an interesting experiment, but at least it is DOING SOMETHING.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, who hopes that 6,000,000 men will return to work soon after Labor Day, organizes a drive for more jobs, better pay, shorter hours, something like the war drive for selling bonds to get money for nations cutting each other's throats in Europe.

If Americans show half as much willingness to finance prosperity at home as they showed in financing wholesale murder abroad, the President's plans will go through.

If they do not snow "WILLINGNESS" the President may find some other way of getting results.

He knows that the people want SOMETHING DONE and will support his efforts.

ERNEST SANDEREGGERS, 67 years old, shot himself in the head and died, saying he did not wish to be a burden to others, and leaving his body to science via the Cornell Medical School.

That raises a question often discussed. Is it really true, as some think they believe, that when the bullet killed him there was nothing left of Ernest Sandereggers but that body which he bequeathed to scientific experiment?

Or was there something else, destined to outlive the body, a spiritual "something" that gave to science the body about to be abandoned?

GEOLOGISTS gathered in Washington give all sorts of interesting information, and incidentally reassure you, if you are worried by gentlemen occasionally announcing the end of the world.

The sun, according to Dr. Lane, while using up its mass at the rate of 3,700,000 tons per second, is so big that "only two-thousandths of the total will be used up in ten million years."

Many things should be accomplished in that length of time, considering that all human history, about which we really know anything, goes back less than 10,000 years, or a one-millionth part of the time that lies immediately ahead of us.

GERMANY'S new government continues to pass laws that it thinks may be necessary or useful. The penalty for "spreading lies," including stories of "atrocities" against Jews or others, is to be death.

An attempt on the life of a member of the Nazi army will be punished by death.

Capt. Goering, for Chancellor Hitler, announces that he is about to "take hold with the mailed fist" and:

"Whoever lays hands on the National Socialist (Nazi) movement shall know that he will pay with his life in the shortest time, simple establishment of intention being sufficient for conviction."

GEN. BALBO'S flight with 24 planes from Italy to Chicago, and New York, shows that Italy understands flying machines.

And now Nicaragua has made a contract with an Italian company to provide air mail and air passenger service to every Nicaraguan flying field.

BANDIT KILLS OFFICER IN COURT

Bank Robber Believed Dying After Dash For Liberty

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—A desperate bank robber fought policemen with pistols in a criminal courtroom today, killing Policeman John Sevick before he was wounded probably fatally himself.

The gunman, who once before had made a break from the Detective Bureau, was John Scheck, 21, facing trial for the robbery of a national bank at Niles Center, Ill.

Scheck was in the bull pen of the Criminal Court Building.

Suddenly he made a dash for liberty. Running through the chambers of Judge Charles Molthrop, he emerged into the courtroom waving his revolver wildly. A bailiff shouted a warning, and Policeman Sevick drew his weapon.

POLICEMAN SLAIN

Scheck fired four times, and the policeman dropped dead.

Runningo on from the courtroom, the desperado raced down stairs to the second story, shooting as he went. On the second floor Policeman Anton Pixa, of the State's Attorney's office, hearing the disturbance, stepped to

PINCHOT BANS EXTRA SESSION

HARRISBURG, July 24.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today served notice that even the dim possibilities of an extraordinary legislative session this summer no longer exist.

He gave as his reason for definitely ending speculation over the special session the failure of Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, to reply to communications asking organization support for old age pension legislation.

Twice within less than a month the Governor wired Martin for an expression on the issue and twice he was ignored. Today was the deadline for a proclamation summoning the legislators. He said that beyond this date the resolutions could not be passed in time for the ballot in November, as required by law.

All proposed amendments must be advertised 90 days before an election. The Governor said today:

"I have received no answer from Gen. Martin. It would be useless to call a session at this stage of the game. The time has passed to get this important legislation enacted."

The Governor tomorrow will go to Washington to confer with federal authorities on Pennsylvania's program for spending the $18,890,000 which has been allotted for road work.

By MARK SHIELDS

Councilman P. J. McArdle today announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor in the September primary.

Mr. McArdle

He offered his candidacy on behalf of "that large group of Republicans who are not dominated or influenced by machine politics, and who are striving to establish decency and economy in government."

Within a short time he said he would amplify his short announcement with views on the policies and principles of the campaign.

The entry of Councilman McArdle means a feld of four men seeking the Republican nomination. The others are Mayor John S. Herron, former President of Council James F. Malone and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell.

M'ARDLE STATEMENT

In his statement Mr. McArdle said:

"I will file petitions to have my name placed on the ballot of the Republican party for the nomination for the office of Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh at the Republican primary election on September 19.

"I will take this step at the urgent solicitation of the leaders of thought and action within that large group of Republicans who are not dominated or influenced by machine politics and who are striving to establish decency and economy in city government.

"They feel that they are entitled to an opportunity to support a candidate who has fought with them in their fight for good government and for a candidate who can bring to the office, when elected, the necessary knowledge, experience and courage to assure the results desired after the victory has been won.

"They believe that I possess

RAIN TO BREAK RECORD HEAT

Showers late today were expected to bring relief from the summer's hottest spell, which hung up a new record of 98 degrees yesterday.

Observer W. S. Brotzman predicted a drop in temperature tomorrow, as the mercury in western points was from 8 to 10 degrees below that of yesterday.

In Pittsburgh temperatures were slightly below those of yesterday. At 2 p. m. the mercury registered 89.

FLOCK TO POOLS

Heat-stricken residents flocked to the parks, swimming pools and open roads for relief.

In the wake of a severe wind and rain storm Saturday, the mercury began climbing early yesterday. The sun beat down with such intensity, the pavement in Beechview avenue near Bayonne street, Beechview, buckled, residents of the district said.

Two drownings in the Monongahela River were attributed to the heat. James Lastu, 43, Monessen mill worker, and an unidentified man at Gallatin were drowned while seeking relief.

Mrs. Stella Wolff, 45, of 1515 Brighton road, collapsed from the heat at 216 West Stockton avenue last night and was taken to Allegheny General Hospital. After receiving treatment, she was sent home.

PARKS THRONGED

Record attendances were recorded in Highland and South Park swimming pools. In Highland Park, the pool manager, J. M. Spence, reported more than 16,000 had bathed there during the day.

C. E. Forest, manager of the South Park pool, reported that 18,000, not counting children, had visited the pool during the day.

In the outlying districts, unofficial temperatures yesterday were reported as high as 110 degrees.

Two Mollisons Mourn Crash Ruining Hopes

Ocean-Flying Couple Tells of Wreck Near N. Y.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 24.—Propped up in twin beds in a flower-strewn private ward in Bridgeport Hospital, Capt. James A. Mollison and his wife, Amy Johnson, "the Lindberghs of Great Britain," today told in an interview how "extremely disappointed" they were because they failed to achieve their ambition of making a non-stop flight from Wales to New York.

Their black monoplane, the Seafarer, was wrecked, at Stratford, Conn., three miles from here, last night when their petrol gave out and they had to make a forced landing. The lights of New York were almost in sight when they cracked up on a marshy field.

FLYING TO NEW YORK

Both were slightly injured. They will leave the hospital late this afternoon and will be flown in another plane for Floyd Bennett Airport in Brooklyn, their original destination.

"All our plans are ruined."

She said, however—and her husband concurred—that if it

Post Goes to See Mollisons, Offers Them His Plane

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 24.—(AP.)—Capt. James Mollison, in Bridgeport Hospital today with his wife recovering from slight injuries suffered when their plane crashed after they had spanned the Atlantic Ocean from Wales, said that Wiley Post, the globe-circling Oklahoman, slipped into the hospital by a rear entrance at 3 o'clock this morning to offer him the monoplane Winnie Mae to continue on their proposed flight. Mollison said:

"Post offered us his ship to do anything we wanted to do."

Frisch New Pilot of Cards

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—(AP.)—President Sam Breadon, of the St. Louis Cardinals, today announced Frankie Frisch, second baseman, had been named manager of the team for the remainder of this season and for 1934, succeeding Gabby Street.

Breadon said the change was made because "we want to win the pennant."

Frisch, who was obtained from the Giants in December, 1926, in exchange for Rogers Hornsby, has been in the National League since 1919, when John McGraw signed him after graduation from Fordham University and put him in the Giants' infield. He quickly became a star of the league and was an important factor in the Giants' pennant victories of 1921-2-3-4.

Mother Wins Boy In 13th Court Trial

SEATTLE, July 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Nettie Lang doesn't subscribe to the belief that 13 is an unlucky number.

After 13 separate court trials, she finally was awarded the custody of her son, Walter Robert, 11, for whom her former husband, Walter Lang, has been fighting since she obtained a divorce on December 13, 1927.

EDDIE STARTS HUNT FOR FOES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 24.—Mayor Eddie McCloskey's feud with the Council majority reached a new intensity today when the red-haired former prizefighter asked the State Police to locate Councilmen George Griffith, William Hurst and Calvin Roudabush

Over the state-wide teletypes McCloskey had broadcast the message that the three councilmen, all of whom are opposed to him, were missing and it was feared they may have been taken for a ride because of banking conditions, most of Johnstown's banks being closed since the holiday.

McCloskey also sent his entire police force over the city looking for the thre.

Little fear was felt, however, and most persons thought the three had failed to show up for Council meeting today because of bitter arguments at recent meetings.

Candles Light Birth Of 3 Chicago Babies

CHICAGO, July 24.—(INS.)—Doctors had to use candles for illumination to bring three babies into the world last night when a huge Commonwealth Edison transformer plunged a large section of the South Side into darkness.

Two babies were born by candle light in the Jackson Park Hospital and one was born at Roseland Community Hospital.

PRICES TURN ON HEAVY VOLUME

Steel, N. Y. Central Among Leaders In Rebound

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—New York Stock Exchange prices, n common with quotations on other major markets, rallied again today, giving rise to hopes that the violent liquidation of last week had spent its force.

Opening at noon, shares climbed $1 to $6 in heavy trading. Hasty profit-taking and further offer-from margin accounts which had not been able to weather the recent storm brought reactions from the top prices and many leaders lost about a third of their early gains.

Volume, however, tended to slacken on the setback, and the market again improved.

Chicago grain prices, limited as to extreme fluctuations, were likewise higher in markets whose trading hours had also been shortened. Cotton here rose more than a dollar a bale before reducing its gains.

Some of the leading gainers whose shares shot up 2 to 6 points during the day were Uu Pont, Auburn, American Commercial Alcohol, New York Central, U. S. Steel, U. S. Smelting, Western Union, American elephone, General Motors, American Can, and National Distillers.

The market closed strong.

Boy, 6, in Hospital; Struck by Auto

William Berkovich, 6, was under observation in St. Margaret's Hospital today to determine whether he sustained internal injuries in an auto accident. William, who lives at 43 Cherry way, was struck in Freeport street, according to police.

Leaps Off Bridge in Bet, Lands in Hospital

George Thompson, 39, today had apparently won a bet—but is in the hospital seriously hurt and also under arrest.

Wagered $10 by a friend that he couldn't jump from the North Side-West End Bridge and live, Thompson made the leap, according to the report to Allegheny General Hospital.

He is believed to have fractured his back, and doctors say his condition is critical.

Police said Thompson jumped from the north end of the bridge, alighting on the river bank.

Pedestrians who witnessed the plunge notified police, who arrested Thompson two blocks away in Reedsdale street.

Thompson lives at 6 Belmont Court, North Side.

The friend who made the wager is being sought.

Roosevelt Radio Talk To Warn Industry

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Preparing to lift the barrier that is to start America on the road to recovery, President Roosevelt today made last minute changes in the radio address he is to make to the nation tonight, while bulging mail pouches carried to the nation's 5,000,000 employers, codes which ask them to guarantee a maximum work week of 35-40 hours, with a minimum weekly wage of $14-$15.

(The President's address will be heard over Pittsburgh stations WCAE, WJAS and KDKA from 10:30 to 11 o'clock, daylight saving time).

"Sign on the dotted line at once—or else—" will be the gist of that section of the chief executive's address directed to the employers.

To John and Mary Doe, he will explain the activities of his administration, by which it is hoped 6,000,000 men and women may return to normal employment during the autumn, and the wages of 12,000,000 more workers will be raised.

The President will show how the purchasing power of the dollar has lagged far behind production and prices, which are mounting at every turn. Unless purchasing power is built up, the President will explain, to absorb goods now being manufactured and accumulated, another decline cannot be averted.

He will chart the steady decline in wages, with a corresponding increase in the number of hours demanded from jobholders, thereby depriving a great proportion of American citizens of an opportunity of earning a decent livelihood.

COMMITTEE OF 500 PICKED HERE TO AID IN RECOVERY

GERMAN CHURCH YIELDS TO NAZI DOMINATION

Intimidation at Polls Charged by Foes Of Hitler

BERLIN, July 24.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler's Nazi government had control of German Protestantism today as a result of general church elections and started its reorganization from the ground up.

Simultaneously the non-Nazi election board received complaints that voters had been intimidated and in consequence declared the balloting invalid.

About 400,000 elders and members of governing boards were chosen. They will name provincial synod delegates who will select delegates to a national synod for nominating a Reichs bishop, a post that has been in dispute for weeks.

Incomplete returns indicated electors, who apparently realized the futility of resistance, had heeded Chancellor Hitler's admonition that "the church expects protection from the state, which in turn is entitled to expect allegiance from the church" and had resigned themselves largely to fusion lists, making balloting superfluous.

August Jaeger, former Prussian state commissioner, also pointed the way for voters with the declaration that churchmen should "help overcome the remnants of selfwilledness and unreasonableness."

Nazi pressure on non-Nazi church members led to the adoption in several places of fusion lists, and in Berlin only 80 congregations voted. In many communties the Nazi German christians claimed two-thirds majorities.

U. S. MAY FACE RADICAL MOVE, DERN WARNS

Sees Nation's Fate Hinging Upon Recovery Act

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 24.—(AP.)—Secretary of War George H. Dern today told the annual conference of governors "if the National Industrial Recovery Act fails, something more radical will have to be tried, because our national existence will be at stake."

The Secretary, formerly chief executive of Utah, addressed the governors in the assembly chambers of the California State Legislature. He said:

"For effective economic planning, such as we are embarking upon for the first time, state borders must to an extent be disregarded and the United States must be taken as one economic area.

"The relationship of the states to the federal government is undoubtedly changing, and everything indicates that, under our complex national industrial life, it will be necessary for the federal government to take over more and more power.

"Since its sole purpose would be to promote social justice why not do it openly rather than through disguises? Evil practices have hidden behind the bugaboo of state rights long enough."

On the Recovery Act, secretary Dern said:

"The Industrial Recovery Act, if not the last stand of the competitive system, is at least an attempt to save that system by eliminating those selfish, vicious practices which are destructive of industry and labor alike.

"If the Recovery Act is to be as effective as it should be in eliminating the sweatshop and cut-throat competition, it may have to be supplemented by similar legislation by the states. If the states should follow the President in his principle that the business which depends for its existence on paying less than a living wage to its employes has no right to survive, we should soon be on our way to real economic stability."

JOB CAMPAIGN 'ZERO HOUR' NEARS

U. S. Launches Great Employment Drive On Thursday

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—The Industrial Recovery Administration started today on the biggest week of its career, preparing hurriedly for Thursday's zero hour in the mass re-employment campaign.

On Thursday, the country's employers will begin to get from their mail carriers the blanks which they may sign promising individually to raise pay and shorten working hours.

MANY HAVE PLEDGED

Many employers already have promised informally to sign these compacts with President Roosevelt. But these, of course, are individual agreements. They are to be followed by general pledges by whole industries, to prevent unfair competition.

Two of these general agreements—called codes of fair competition—underwent public scrutiny today. They were presented by the oil and wool industries. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery chief, gave personal attention to the oil code, loaded with trouble.

He has acted already to dispel an apparently growing belief among some industrialists that a 40-hour work week would be short enough.

A 40-hour week was in the cotton textile code, first submitted, first approved. Industries took that as a guide. Shipbuilders, for example, presented an elaborate case for 40 hours.

INSISTS ON 32 HOURS

Johnson said 32 hours should be the shipbuilder's limit. He made clear that his only yardstick is: how much hour-reduction must each industry adopt to re-employ all the idle men it can economically absorb?

The "blanket" voluntary agreement prescribes 35 hours maximum for factory and mechanical workers. The cotton textile industry was allowed 40 because National Recovery Administration experts figured the plants on that schedule could use every skilled operative and might need more.

Lumbermen in a pending code asked 40 to 48 hours; coat and suit men, 40; electrical plants, 36.

Like the shipmen, these may be asked to accept shorter hours voluntarily. If they do not, it will be up to Johnson to advise President Roosevelt what changes to make before promulgating their codes.

BUSINESS HEADS SELECTED IN DRIVE

Action Taken After Gen. Johnson's Request

Pittsburgh's business and civic leaders will renew their attack on depression next Wednesday afternoon when a committee of 500 will respond to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's request for co-operation, at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium.

The committee, appointed by the chamber today, is one phase of a three-way national plan under the National Recovery Administration. It will launch a campaign of education and organization of business forces here.

Just returned from a series of conferences with officials in Washington, Wilson K. Ray, manager of the Pittsburgh district office of the United States Department of Commerce, today said the local committee would tie in with other regional groups for which his office will act as a liaison in contacts with Washington.

Mayor John S. Herron will act as honorary chairman and former Gov. John S. Fisher, president of the chamber, will be general chairman of the Pittsburgh committee. The general committee is composed of officers of approximately 150 organizations here. An executive committee consists of 60 members.

Under the program outlined to Ray at the Capital, the Chamber of Commerce group will fit into a scheme providing for three divisions:

1—Advisory groups to be named by the President in regions corresponding to the 24 districts or "key" cities in which offices of the Department of Commerce are maintained.

2—Boards to be appointed by the governors of the several states.

3—Community co-operative groups such as that named today by the Chamber.

OFFICERS NAMED

Officers of the Pittsburgh committee include H. C. McEldowney, treasurer; Frank C. Harper, general secretary, and S. Leo Ruslander, general counsellor.

Vice chairmen are W. L. Mellon, Joseph F. Guffey, Marcus Aaron, William P. Witherow, Howard Heinz, A. L. Humphrey, A. W. Robertson, F. R. Phillips, Frank J. Chesterman, W. L. Munro, the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, the Rev. J. J. Callahan, M. L. Benedum, C. C. McGovern, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, Joseph H. Duty, Judge James R. Macfarlane and Mrs. Henry Rea.

BRITAIN FIGHTS NAZI AIR FORCE

BERLIN, July 24.—(INS.)—The first rift in amicable relations between Nazi Germany and Great Britain occurred today.

B. C. Newton, British charge d'affaires, called at the foreign office and lodged a protest against the announced intention of the Hitler government to establish an aerial police force. Newton charged such a step would violate the treaty of Paris.

Plans for the special police force, consisting of two speedy, up-to-date planes, were announced by Capt. Hermann Goering, minister without portfolio, as a result of a mysterious "air raid" over Berlin a few weeks ago.

Goering and other government officials charged that a squadron of "hostile" planes had soared over the capital, dropping anti-Nazi pamphlets of an inflammatory nature.

M'ARDLE OUT FOR MAYOR

these qualifications. I will accept their commission.

"In due course I will present to the public my views of the principles and policies involved in this campaign and my attitude toward such matters and persons as may be pertinent to it."

The announcement by Mr. McArdle today and Mr. Mackrell yesterday means that efforts to procure harmony among the anti-administration forces has failed, at least for the time being, after weeks of confrerences and negotiations. The split is pleasing to the Herron administration, with its chances for continuance in office materially enhanced.

Realizing this, efforts will be continued to get at least one and, if possible, two of the anti-administration candidates out of the field before August 22, the last day for withdrawals before the primary. McArdle, Malone and Mackrell held conferences as late as last Saturday in an effort to reach an immediate agreement, but failed as did former negotiations.

Stories that Malone might withdraw to manage the Mackrell campaign so far lack foundation. Malone has supported both McArdle and Mackrell in the past, and has received aid from both. Friends of Malone say it would be unusual for a candidate to retire to manage the campaign of another man.

McArdle's campaign was given impetus last week when William P. Witherow, himself a potential candidate, and a member of the original Citizens' Committee which was expanded into the Citizens' League, announced he would not run, but would support McArdle. He asked his friends to give the same support, and it is understood the majority will, with much of McArdle's campaign conducted from Citizens' League headquarters.

Indorsement of McArdle by this group followed a futile effort to induce Judge Frank P. Patterson or some other man whose name had not been mentioned publicly, to enter the race.

OIL INDUSTRY ASKS RELIEF

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(INS.)—"Even the present employment, working hours and wages cannot long continue unless increased revenues are forthcoming promptly," Axtell J. Byles, president of the American Petroleum Institute, told Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, today in presenting the code of his organization.

Byles declared the oil industry must have definite assistance from the government if it is to develop along sound lines, including federal and state co-operation.

Such help, he suggested, should include:

1—Fair and economic allocation among states and pools, to balance production and demand.

2—An increase in the price of oil commodities or lower taxation, "or both."

WHEAT 'CODE' PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(INS.)—A proposal to place all branches of the grain industry under a "master" industrial recovery code was made to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today at a conference attended by almost a score of leaders representing all main branches of the industry.

The Chicago Board of Trade and other grain exchanges, where wild speculation led to the imposition of wartime restrictions on trading, would be included under this code.

the corridor and fired, wounding Scheck for the Niles robbery, accomplices in the attempt to escape. Carl Grundhofer, held with Schek for the Niles robbery, accompanied him on the dash for freedom but was captured. He was not armed.

Four girls and a man were arrested in the courtroom as accomplices in the attempt to escape. The man, Frank E. Olson, was charged with pointing a gun at Bailiff William S. Devlin as Scheck and Grundhofer made the break.

One of the girls, Mary Scheck, 23, was said to be a sister of the wounded prisoner. She and the others were reported to have waited outside the courtroom in an automobile.

Police announced they were hunting for a fifth woman, believed to be Scheck's mother. They said they believed she smuggled the gun to Scheck.

Scheck, Grundhofer and Frank Keglewitz were held for the murder of Harry Mueller, cashier of the Niles bank during the robbery last April 7, when $4,800 was taken.

Subsequently Scheck tried to escape from the detective bureau, grabbing a pistol from Detective George Tucker and wounding him. He failed, however, to escape.

The case of Grundhofer and Sheck was on call before Judge Molthrop for today. The judge was supervising the selection of a jury to hear the trial of John Weeks on a charge of burglary and the bank robbery case was continued.

The two prisoners made a break for liberty as Bailiff John Kavanagh began leading them from the bull pen to the County Jail, adjoining the Criminal Courts building.

No one could explain where Scheck obtained the pistol. During the shooting he attempted to fire at Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, but there were no bullets left in the weapon.

Both Scheck and Grundhofer were liable to execution in the electric chair for the killing of a bank cashier.

STOCK CRASH QUIZ PLANNED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(Universal.)—Agents for the Senate Banking and Currency Committee are planning to examine the records of the New York Stock Exchange to determine if possible the causes of the sensational market gyrations of the past two weeks, it is learned.

The committee's study is expected to develop basis for possible legislation. The inquiry will get under way within the next 10 days.

The probers will try to determine what pools were active in the various stocks, how they carried on their operations and the names and profits of the participants.

Meanwhile leaders representing all main divisions of the grain trade met today with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to device new safeguards against wild speculation in farm commodities.

CHURCH QUERY IRKS ELLIOTT

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 24.—(INS.)—Elliott Roosevelt and his bride, the former Ruth Josephine Googins, were in Fort Worth today for a brief sojourn before continuing their trip to Los Angeles.

The young couple arrived here late last night by train from Kansas City and immediately went to a hotel.

Elliott declined to make a statement other than that he will make a short visit here and continue to California.

On the journey here from Burlington, Ia., where they were married Saturday evening, young Roosevelt irritably told reporters he was "not interested in anything" when asked concerning the reported disapproval of the Episcopal Church because of his marriage after being divorced in Nevada last Monday.

Asked if he would return to his post as general manager of the Gilpin Air Lines in California, he said:

"I don't know. That remains to be seen."

Non-Union Coal Code Speeded; Hearing Near

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—With the National Recovery Administration planning a hearing for the bituminous coal industry as soon as a substantial majority of operators have prepared a trade code, non-union operators return here tomorrow to complete their agreement.

Representing fields from Central Pennsylvania to Tennessee, the non-union group controls more than half of the country's soft coal production. The union producers and the United Mine Workers of America, representing between 15 and 30 per cent of the total tonnage, have already filed a code.

Near agreement when they recessed for the weekend, the non-union operators expected to have their code ready by Saturday for submission to Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator. Johnson has said he will expedite the hearing on it.

Disputes over regional differentials are all that remain to be settled.

Buying Rally Plan Of Commerce Men

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Acting on the request of the National Recovery Administration to speed expansion of purchasing power, the New Castle Chamber of Commerce today announced plans for an early meeting of civic organizations and city and county officials.

Glass Group Picks Wage Committee

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 24.—(INS.)—Representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers of Pressed and Blown Glassware and the American Flint Glass Workers Union today ironed out minor differences before preparing to depart for their homes.

Manufacturers and union workers representing the iron mould department indorsed the decision to have a "wage committee" of five draft a new wage and working hour code.

Pinchot Bans Expensive Autos for State

HARRISBURG, July 24.—(AP.)—After the depression ends—or after manufacturers offer 12-cylinder, seven-passenger cars for $2,500—the state may provide them for its high officials.

Meanwhile Gov. Pinchot is riding in a $2,500 motor car and has served notice that others need ask no better.

Auditor General Frank E. Baldwin, who requisitioned a machine which would cost $4,376, was the direct recipient of the notice. The Governor ruled:

"Money wasted on high-priced cars for state officials is money wasted. I will not stand for it."

He wrote:

"I see no reason why the taxpayers should be required to spend more to buy and run your car than they spend for mine. This is no time for the state to squander money on expensive and luxurious cars."

Reminding Baldwin that he recently came out "strongly in favor of cutting down relief grants to the unemployed in the interests of economy," Pinchot inquired:

"Why not show the same zeal for economy in the selection of an official car?"

Home of Austrian Official Bombed

VIENNA, July 24.—(AP.)—The windows and the glass enclosed veranda of the home of the vice governor of lower Austria were shattered yesterday by the explosion of a bomb. An iron balustrade also was torn loose. No one was injured.

A semi-official communique described the bombing as a "National Socialist boyish prank."

Weaving Firm Raises Wages 50 Per Cent

GASTONIA, N. C., July 24.—(AP.)—A 50 per cent wage increase for all employes of the Gastonia Weaving Company, clothing label manufacturers, was announced today, effective immediately.

Wages for workers heretofore have been $14.50 a week.

Mrs. Dall Returns East from Wedding

NEWARK, N. J., July 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, daughter of the President, arrived alone last night by plane from Chicago and left immediately by bus for New York.

Mrs. Dall, who departed for the East directly after attending the wedding of her brother, Elliott, and Miss Ruth Googins, of Fort Worth, Tex., was not met by anyone at the airport.

Johnson Turns Down Lumber Men's Code

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, today rejected the lumber industry's request for immediate application of its proposed code of trade. Reasons were withheld for the time being.

Johnson had previously asserted that the code's provisions for a 40- to 48-hour working week with wages ranging from $10.80 to $20.40 were "wholly unacceptable."

Roosevelt's 'New Deal' Still Fun for Him

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(Universal.)—President Roosevelt thrives on the vigorous life of the White House.

After four months of day and night labor determining policies, working out details, choosing subordinates, and shaking hands with hundreds of visitors, he is as fresh and full of vigor as a youngster on his first big job.

He seldom knows weariness. His enthusiasm is as keen as a razor edge.

The President continues to get more fun out of the "new deal" than anyone else around him.

Rumors and reports and malicious whisperings of ill-health, like those spread last week to influence a tumbling stock market, bring only a smile of derision to those who know his real condition.

The President himself refuses to dignify such falsification by so much as a denial.

If you want to know his real condition, ask "Mac" or "Steve" or "Louis," as he calls them, the White House secretaries, who see him day after day, hour after hour, as he wrestles with the myriad problems which confront a chief executive.

To this group of loyal workers he is still "the boss," who labors with them for untold hours, laughs at petty inconveniences, chuckles all over when he hears a joke, and looks forward with boyish enthusiasm to his next outing from the White House.

The easy informality of the Roosevelt era is still the order of the day in the executive offices at the White House. There is no tiptoeing around by anxious employes fearful of exploding with a loud bang a set of overworked presidential nerves. The presidential temper, so often the "give-away" sign of a man near the breaking point, is as serene as ever.

EX-CLARION MAN TAKEN DURING BRIDGE GAME

Abducted Before Eyes Of Wife, Friends At His Home

Associated Press.

Kidnapers had struck again today, with one new captive added to the growing list, and a death to mark the trail of terrorism.

Charles F. Urschel, wealthy oil operator, was abducted from a bridge game at his Oklahoma City home Saturday night by gunmen. No trace had been found of him today, and his family awaited word from the abductors, ready to talk ransom. He formerly lived in Clarion, Pa.

At Philadelphia a kidnaper's bullet cost the life of Frank A. McClatchy, 56-year-old real estate man. McClatchy was kidnaped Wednesday and was shot when he offered resistance. His abductors then fled.

The family of John J. O'Connell, of Albany, continued its vigil today with little to indicate when a development might be looked for. O'Connell, a lieutenant in the National Guard, was kidnaped 18 days ago. Negotiations have been opened with the naped 18 days ago.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 24.—(AP.)—Ready to pay any ransom "within reason," the family of Charles F. Urschel, kidnaped oil millionaire, today awaited word from his captors.

Meanwhile, W. R. Jarrett, oil man abducted with Urschel but later released, was reported to have identified a rogues' gallery picture as that of one of the machine gunners who snatched the men from a bridge game with their wives in the palatial Urschel home Saturday night.

Jarrett, who also was said to have gone on an unexplained mission Sunday afternoon, declined to comment, and federal investigators, who took charge of the case, refused to make public the name of the man identified. It was learned at least three men, including the one identified, were sought.

TREATED 'LIKE GENTLEMEN'

Jarrett said the kidnapers treated their victims "like gentlemen," made no mention of ransom, and apparently tried to give the impression that the one later identified was Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Oklahoma desperado.

Jarrett related:

"When we had gone a mile or so, the driver, the dark complexioned one who was giving orders, turned to the other and said, 'Floyd, give me a cigaret.' He bore down hard on the 'Floyd,' but the fellow no more resembled Floyd than I do.

"When I got out of the car, I said, 'Urschel, I know you're hard up, but try to deal with them so you won't get hurt.' I said it just loud enough for them to hear."

CLARION, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Charles F. Urschel, wealthy oil man kidnaped in Oklahoma City last night, is a native of Clarion and lived here for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Urschel visited in Clarion about three weeks ago.

Urschel, whose first wife, a sister of Tom Slick, late "king of wildcatters," died in 1931, married the famous oil pool discoverer's widow last October in St. Louis, uniting two oil fortunes.

He has one son, Charles, Jr., and Mrs. Urschel has three children, Tom, Jr., Betty and Earl Slick.

O'Connells Seeking Sign Of Kidnapers' 'Good Faith'

ALBANY, N. Y., July 24.—(AP.)—On this, the eighteenth day since John J. O'Connell, Jr., was kidnaped, his politically powerful uncles were reported to be seeking a sign of good faith from a gang with which they are dickering.

They want, it is said, some personal possession such as a ring of young O'Connell's to assure them they are really dealing with the captors of the youth.

O'Connell's captivity is stretching out into one of the longest in the records of modern kidnaping. Except in cases where the victims never reappeared alive, they have usually been released in less than 18 days.

Since O'Connell, nephew of Edward and Daniel O'Connell, Democratic political leaders, was kidnaped July 7, four notes have been received. One demanded $250,000 and the others asked the uncles to name 34 intermediaries.

Edward O'Connell has denied a rumor that $100,000 has already been paid.

Kidnaper's Bullet Fatal To Wealthy Realty Man

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—(AP.)—The men who tried to kidnap Frank A. McClatchy for ransom are hunted now for murder.

McClatchy died in a hospital last night, victim of a bullet fired into his chest when he resisted the attempt to abduct him. The two men had lured the prominent real estate salesman to a sample house which they said they wanted to buy.

Kidnapers Free Nashville Doctor

BROOKSVILLE, Fla., July 24.—(INS.)—Kidnaped from his home in Nashville, Tenn., Dr. T. B. Ives was found wandering on a highway near here last night.

He said three men forced him from his home Friday, blindfolded and placed him in an automobile and said he was being taken to Chicago.

TEMPLE PARADE HONORS AIMEE

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—(AP.)—Five hundred of the Angelus Temple faithful paraded behind a band in Echo Park yesterday to demonstrate their support of their four-square gospel pastor, Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, in the divorce suit brought against her by David Hutton, former choirmaster, now a vaudeville actor.

As the band played martial airs, marching hundreds cried:

"We're behind you, sister!"

At the head of the column strode Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo, State Director of Welfare, guest preacher at the temple in the absence of the evangelist, who is due to arrive tomorrow at Baltimore from Paris.

Mrs. Splivalo arranged the demonstration to "show how we feel about our pastor."

STUDIOS FIGHT SOUND STRIKE

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—(AP.)—Determined to avoid a threatened tieup of the entire movie industry "if humanly possible," 11 studios advertised today for men to replace 665 sound technicians who went on strike Saturday midnight.

Because sound has come to be the essence of movie production, the strike would affect a large portion of the 27,000 workers in the industry.

The sound men are seeking a contract embodying uniform wages and hours.

A report of "no progress" in negotiations for settlement of the strike was made by Harold V. Smith, business agent for the sound technicians' locals of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

Studios ordered publication of newspaper advertisements for "men capable of doing any kind of sound work" in the production of movies.

CADDIE STRIKE ENDS IN TRUCE

Differences between golfers and caddies apparently are settled in three local golf clubs today.

Officers at the Highland Country Club reported all caddies were on hand yesterday as a compromise of 80 cents was effected. Previously the boys had been getting 65 cents. They demanded 85 cents.

At the St. Clair Country Club caddies returned yesterday at 95 cents a round, according to officials.

The strike at Wildwood Country Club was settled late Saturday. The boys returned to work yesterday. The terms were not disclosed.

TROTSKY FLEES FROM REDS

By CAPT. A. H. ORENSTEIN
International News Service.

MARSEILLES, France, July 24.—Visibly worried and fatigued, Leon Trotsky, exiled Bolshevist leader, arrived in France today with his wife on his way to Corsica for a "rest cure."

Freed from his exile on the island of Prinkipo, near Istanbul, where he has lived since his banishment from Soviet Russia, Trotsky shrouded his movement in secrecy. He disembarked from the liner Bulgaria 15 miles at sea and made the remainder of the trip to Marseilles aboard a launch.

At the landing place four automobiles were waiting. Trotsky and his retinue took their places in the cars and were driven to a small hotel.

He was believed bound for the town of Royat in Southern France. A large number of Georgian refugees are living at Royat, indicating Trotsky might not be assured of a cordial welcome there.

Missing War Vet Sought by Father

A search is being made today for John R. Conway, 33, World War veteran, who has not been in touch with his family since November, 1928.

His father, John J. Conway, 413 Taylor avenue, North Side, wishes to locate him. His stepmother has died and an aunt, Mrs. Bessie McHale, is seriously ill, Mr. Conway said.

WOMAN, ESCORT HELD AS SPIES

STRASBOURG, France, July 24.—(INS.)—French secret service agents today arrested an Italian, Joseph Rocca, and his friend, Lucia Barbian, a German woman, on charges of espionage.

Rocca, foreman of a labor gang working on the great chain of fortifications France is erecting along the German frontier, was accused of permitting the Barbian woman to visit important and vital points in the fortifications.

Both are charged with acting "in the interests of a certain foreign power," obviously Germany.

HUSBAND HELD IN MAN'S DEATH

PONTIAC, Mich., July 24.—(AP.)—Henry L. Knight, who police said came here from Bloomington, Ind., several years ago, was slain last night.

Officials immediately arrested William Edgar, former friend of the slain man. They said Edgar told them he shot Knight because he had broken up his home.

Knight, the police reported, was killed by two charges from a shotgun, fired from close range, as he sat in his automobile in front of his home at Sylvan Lake, near here.

Edgar, carrying a shotgun, was seized by Donald Theeringer, companion of Knight, and badly beaten before being placed under arrest.

The police said Edgar told them his wife was employed in the Knight home.

Sheriff Roy Reynolds, of Oakland County, said Knight had operated a large number of slot machines in the county.

Hunt Suitor in Killing Of Girl by Trolley

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—The mystery of how Mildred Newcomer, 19, happened to be in the path of a street car which killed her remained unsolved today.

The accident occurred early Sunday, less than an hour after the girl had arrived home in an automobile, accompanied by three other young people.

The motorman saw the girl too late to prevent the car from running over her.

In compliance with a request of the girl's widowed mother, police are looking for a former admirer of Miss Newcomer for questioning. It is possible that she could have been beaten and placed on the tracks, they said.

John Gross, county detective, said he believed it possible the girl was struck by an automobile before the street car hit her.

JOLSON SPURNS WINCHELL TRUCE

Al Still 'Sore,' Ready To 'Sock' Walter On Sight

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—Fair Hollywood resembled old Kentucky's dark and bloody ground yesterday as the feud between Marse Al Jolson and "Col." Walter Winchell continued—at least as far as Jolson was concerned.

There still was a resounding echo of the blow the famous "Mammy singer" struck the New York columnist at the ringside of the Hollywood Stadium Friday night.

Mutual friends, between chuckles, endeavored to make peace, at Winchell's behest.

Winchell said:

"I have asked friends to try to prove to Al that I did not have his wife, Ruby Keeler and himself, in mind, in my scenario, which caused all this unpleasantness.

"I'm sorry I offended Jolson, but I won't apologize for I don't feel that I have done anything that requires an apology. But I do want to make it clear that I never would do anything to disparage either Al or the lovely Ruby."

Jolson declared he was "just not interested" in the paragrapher's remarks.

Swinging a golf club at the Hillcrest Country Club with the same vigor that characterized his tap to the Winchell neck Friday night, the comedian expounded:

"If I ever see the fellow again, I'll let him have it. I'm still mad; good and sore, in fact. I'm not eager to see the script of Winchell's scenario, for, whether or not he had Ruby and me in mind, he's caused our friends and ourselves enough grief already."

To fill a radio engagement, Jolson leaves for New York by Trans-Continental and Western air liner today. And he may never come back to Hollywood, he threatened. He said:

"My wife is in a hysterical condition as a result of the thing and I am gravely concerned for her."

While Jolson and Winchell were issuing their respective statements, their friends tried to point out that the story at issue deals with the romance of two other characters famous in the annals of Broadway. Winchell insisted:

"The romance in the story may parallel the Jolson-Keeler case, but my opus is not based on the experiences of Al and Ruby, despite any impression to the contrary."

Throughout the screen colony, where the Jolsons are popular figures, there was an undercurrent of real regret that the comedian's departure for New York should be attended by the prevailing unpleasantness.

HOLMES AT 92 HAS NO MAXIM FOR HEALTH

Rule of Joy and Law of Duty One, Declares Former Justice

NEW YORK, July 24.—(Universal.)—Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired justice of the United States Supreme Court, celebrated his ninety-second birthday in Boston today and accorded his first real interview giving his philosophy of life to the New York American, in a copyrighted article.

This article quotes former Justice Holmes as follows:

"I do not know any short road to success, and I do not know anyone who does.

"Those who seek happiness in money will be disappointed.

"The rule of joy and the law of duty are one and the same thing."

Asked if he could give a recipe for long life, he answered:

"By being born so. Longevity in the parents is likely to result in long life for the child. I know no rule that the individual can follow that can be expected to make one live to advanced years."

Holmes said that he liked to read detective stories and mystery stories provided there was not too much blood mixed with them.

BETTER STUDENTS

The man who sat on the bench of the highest court in the land until he was 90, retiring in 1931, and who is a graduate of Harvard, said he thinks Harvard students of today are better than when he attended the institution.

When asked what were his own rules of health, Holmes answered:

"I have done pretty much as I wanted to, except to retire at 70, as I once thought I would do. I have to have doctor's opinions in mind. Their advice is usually good."

Answering other questions, the venerable jurist, who is in splendid health and alert and sprightly for his many years, said:

"I have never followed any prescribed diet or any course of exercises. Moderation in all things always has been advisable.

"I never have played golf. But I go for a drive every afternoon.

"I like to read while lying down and usually finish a book in a few hours.

URGES DILIGENCE

"Great ability without diligence is of little value.

"My own experience indicates that the good is finally supreme. Optimism and confidence to be of any value must be intelligent.

"The way to grow old gracefully depends upon the makeup of the man. 'Be happy by making others happy' is a good rule.

DOCTOR URGES HONEYMOONS

OMAHA, Neb., July 24.—(AP.)—All arguments to the contrary, notwithstanding, Dr. George E. Neuhaus, Omaha psychiatrist, says he is a strong advocate of the time honored honeymoon as the proper way to begin married life. He supposes:

"Suppose you decide that after your marriage you go right to the apartment or house you're going to live in. Suppose you say to your friends, 'We aren't going to have a honeymoon.'

"Immediately they'll all say, 'Isn't it too bad John and Mary aren't going to have a honeymoon—we must see that they have a good time right at home'"

"The result will be that you'll be beseiged with invitations, phone calls and parties—worse than the most strenuous honeymoon."

CLEAR ACTRESS WITH MORROWS

VIENNA, July 24.—(AP.)—Charges by a shopkeeper that a woman member of the Amherst Masquers, an American troupe, had stolen several handbags while shopping in his place of business, were dropped last night when detectives of a police handbag squad said they had caught the real culprit, the wife of a Budapest businessman.

Previously the police had searched the rooms of the American woman and demanded that she give up her passport. She refused, but did sign a promise to remain in Austria until the case was closed.

The shopkeeper, much chagrined, set out in search of the woman and her husband after the announcement of the detectives, but learned that they had already left Vienna.

The Masquers, including a son and daughter of the late Dwight W. Morrow, played six nights in the historic Schoenbrunn Palace Theater under the auspices of the federal ministry of education.

Negro Girl Wins N. Y. In Prima Donna Debut

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Caterina Jarboro, Wilmington, (N. C.) Negro girl, sang the title role of Aida Saturday night at the New York Hippodrome for the Chicago Opera Company.

Her debut marked the initial appearance of a Negro as a prima donna in America. She was an instant favorite of an audience of 6,000 persons, including many of her own race.

Following her first aria she was called for repeated bows by deafening applause and many "bravos." At the end of the second act there was a parade of ushers to the stage with flowers.

Jarboro, back in her dressing room, said:

"It made me cry—that applause."

Before the performance she said:

"Nervous? There's too much to lose to be nervous. There are too many eyes on me. Besides my teachers will be waiting for me to mke good."

She's had many teachers in America and abroad for voice and piano, but the teachers to whom she referred were the Franciscan sisters at St. Thomas' Catholic School in Wilmington. They educated her from kindergarten to high school and encouraged her to cultivate her voice.

She said she never has been and never intends to be married. A little later she altered this statement to:

"Well, if I could find the right type of man—one who would be interested in studying with me, then maybe yes."

Next Mondey night she will sing Aida with Jules Bledsoe in the opposite role.

FIVE DROWNED WHEN SKIFF UPSETS

WARREN, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Five persons drowned yesterday, one in a rescue attempt, after a heavily-laden rowboat overturned in the swirling waters of the Allegheny River near Warren.

Two other persons in the boatload of six swam to safety.

The dead were Charles Devore, 27, of Warren; Raymond Devore, 7, his son; Marie Devore, 5, his daughter; Mrs. Ella Goodrich, 30, Devore's housekeeper, and Albin E. Hultberg, 40, also of Warren, who made the rescue attempt.

Devore with his two children, two brothers and the housekeeper, had been visiting Devore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Devore, in Pleasant Township on the south side of the river.

In order to avoid a long walk home, he borrowed a rowboat from Gust Wesley, his parents' neighbor, and the six started across the river.

Soon after the craft put out, Wesley noticed it was too heavily laden, and he warned Devore to return. With Mrs. Goodrich at the oars, the boat soon began to take water and in a few minutes it upset.

The six struggled in eight feet of water, and Elmer and Early Devore, brothers of Charles Devore, struck out for shore, shouting for help.

Hultberg hurried to the scene, leaped into the water and had reached some of the struggling four when he with the others went under.

STORM WRECKS REGATTA; 3 MISSING

PENN YAN, N. Y., July 24.—(AP.)—Three yachtsmen were missing last night as an aftermath of a furious storm which broke over Keuka Lake yesterday, overturning and dismasting many boats in the colorful Keuka Yacht Club regatta.

Five class A racing sloops and junior racers were upset while being towed by a motorboat. At least two of five star boats racing farther out in the lake overturned and sank.

Boathouses were wrecked, trees uprooted and cottages damaged by the black storm which roared up the narrow Y-shaped lake so suddenly that the yachtsmen had no time to reef or lower sails.

The missing:

Lawrence Woodside, 35, of Brooklyn, last seen clinging to the masthead of the sinking sloop Chanticleer, which was leading the racing stars.

Dr. Donald I. Gleason, 47, Hammondsport dentist, blown off the bottom of the overturned sloop Privateer, which was being towed.

Arthur Conley, 26, Cohocton, last seen aboard the 14-foot dinghy Lark, which was taken into the string of towed boats and overturned.

Storm clouds piled up against the southern sky at 5 o'clock, near the end of the day's program. Keuka Lake yachtsmen, wary of squalls, decided they could weather a blow if given time to reef.

With suddenness that caught them unprepared, the storm hissed down through the Central New York hills, tossed trees into the water and swept toward the boats. Dozens of smaller craft, watching the races, fled to shore, several of them being overturned and their occupants snatched to safety by motorboats.

Heavy rain then blotted out the struggling fleets from shore.

OFFICER SHOOTS SOUTH SIDER IN GANG CLASH

Menaced by a gang of men who refused to obey his order to disperse, Patrolman Joseph Braun of South Side Police Station early today fired into the group, injuring Albert Moore, 32, of 116 South Eighteenth street.

Moore was taken to South Side Hospital with a bullet wound in his left leg.

Braun said he had been ordered to investigate complaints of men congregated at Twenty-second and Carson streets. When he asked them to leave they put up an argument, he declared. Moore, Braun said, was the leader in the dispute and when he attempted to arrest him the gang launched its attack. Drawing his gun, Braun said he fired into the group.

Moore is being held in South Side Hospital while four of his alleged companions are in South Side Police Station. They are William McGowan, 42, of 51 Twenty-third street; Thomas Nash, 25, of 2105 Jane street; George Marchich, 21, of 2224 Larkins way, and Regis Francis, 34, of 2515 Jane street.

Canoe Upsets, Man Drowned, One Saved

Jensen, 30, of Braeburn, drowned when a canoe in which they were hunting turtles in the Allegheny River at Braeburn capsized yesterday afternoon. Jensen's body was recovered an hour after the accident, in 12 feet of water.

TWO MOLLISONS MOURN CRASH RUINING HOPES

were possible to obtain a new plane they might try to fly back from New York to London.

She made it plain they had given up the idea of their contemplated flight from New York to Bagdad—6,015 miles—in an effort to set a new record for nonstop flying.

Despite their luckless trip which ended so disastrously last night, they haven't given up the risky business of long-distance flying, she intimated.

Capt. Mollison said he had no recollection of the events just prior to the crack-up. He said:

"I don't know what happened. I suddenly found myself in a ditch. Amy can tell you more about it."

Mollison's face was streaked with blood-red lacerations and a patch of gauze completely covered his nose. He seemed greatly fatigued.

GETS MANICURE

He was being given a manicure by a young woman when a horde of newspaper men and women were admitted to the room.

Amy sat propped up in an adjoining cot, apparently in much better physical condition than her husband.

Thirty stitches were taken in Capt. Mollison's wounds about the face and scalp.

Amy escaped almost unhurt. A finger of her left hand was wrapped in a bandage, but otherwise she showed no outward evidence of injuries. Both, however, were considerably shaken up.

Wanly, Capt. Mollison advised the reporters to obtain the details from Amy. She said:

"I understand our plane was so badly damaged it is unrepairable. We are having it examined, but I have little hopes that it can be rebuilt."

They asked her how she felt.

"I'm feeling fine, although, of course, I'm greatly disappointed."

"Was there anything wrong with your plane?"

"No."

"What caused the crack-up?"

"The marshy grounds upon which we landed."

"We knew we couldn't make New York City because we had run out of petrol, so we diceded to land. We had no idea we would strike marshy ground. That's what caused the plane to tip over."

STORY OF CRASH

Mrs. Mollison said that it was dark and they could not judge distance when they decided to land. She rejected the idea they crashed because they were too fatigued to know what they were doing. She said:

"We couldn't see the ground. We did see the plane that started out from the airport. We thought this plane was taking off when actually it was landing."

When Fred Moller, manager of the Bridgeport Airport at Stratford, saw the Mollison plane circuling the field seven or eight times, he went up in a plane and tried to direct them to a safe landing.

Asked her reaction to the accident itself, Mrs. Mollison smiled and said:

"Of course, it all happened quickly. I was so fatigued that it did not make a sharp impression on me. I was like a person who had been drugged. I was in a half haze.

"When the plane struck the marshy ground on the flying field, my husband was thrown through the glass clear of the plane itself. I was caught in the wreckage. I finally managed to pull myself out.

"I went to my husband's side and did all I could for him."

Mrs. Mollison was asked who flew the plane most of the way across on the flight.

"We took turns at the stick. At the outset my husband took the controls for three hours and then I took a three-hour turn. As we neared the American mainland we cut down the runs to one hour each."

Capt. Mollison was at the stick when the crash occurred, she disclosed.

AMY DISAPPOINTED

Summing up her reaction to the luckless end of their flight she said:

"I'm disappointed—terribly so. My predominant ambition was to fly from England straight over the sky line of New York City, but evidently it is not to be realized."

Mrs. Mollison was asked concerning a 12-page typewritten manuscript which was found near the wrecked seafarer by George F. Egirt, a boat builder, who was one of the first to reach the plane after the crash. Egirt called at the hospital this morning and gave the manuscript, which purported to tell Amy's own impressions of the flight, to Mrs. Mollison who thanked him warmly. She said:

"No, I didn't carry a typewriter. As a matter of fact this manuscript was written by a friend before we started. He wanted to see how near his imaginary story of the flight would be to our actual experiences."

Mollison and his wife, taking 400 gallons of gasoline and a lipstick as baggage, hopped from Wales at 7 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) Saturday. They fought contrary winds across the Atlantic, then encountered fog patches and head winds from Newfoundland down the coast.

It was 9 p. m. last night when the black plane soared over Bridgeport Airport. Fred Moller, airport manager, went aloft and tried to guide the Mollisons to the runway. The trans-Atlantic plane circled the field five times, with Mollison signalling frantically. Suddenly it shot down and nosed into a drainage ditch.

CAROLYN CHANTRY

BALBO DELAYS HOP HOME

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Because of unfavorable weather, Gen. Italo Balbo today postponed until tomorrow the take-off of his 24-plane armada on its return journey to Italy.

The general left the field to return to his hotel in New York City at 11:40 a. m., Pittsburgh time, after waiting some four hours the hope that forecast conditions along the east coast would improve.

The motors of the 24 Italian planes were covered and naval boats were sent out to bring in the crews of the airships.

It is expected that the air fleet will take off tomorrow morning if a report of favorable weather is received at that time.

Mattern Arrives At Fairbanks Port

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 24.—(AP.)—Jimmie Mattern, frustrated in a world flight attempt, and his rescue crew arrived here yesterday in a plane piloted by Bob Ellis.

They planned to fly on to Juneau and later go to Terrace, B. C., where the rescue crew, headed by William Alexander, has a plane. From there they will return to New York.

POST FORESEES FASTER WORLD FLIGHTS

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Wiley Post has no illusions about the longevity of that record of 7 days, 18 hours and 49 minutes he set in his dash around the globe. He thinks some one will break it in the not too distant future.

Sitting in comfort in an easy chair for the first time in more than a week, Post told yesterday of his adventures fighting the winds and fog of many lands. Asked what the fastest possible time around the world would be, he chuckled and said:

"Oh, about 30 seconds, I guess. No one really knows, but they're going to go faster and faster."

The robot pilot that helped him around the globe made a big hit with Post, he disclosed, despite some mechanical difficulty. He said he'd rather have it than a human co-pilot because it is more accurate. He said:

"Being a lazy man, I let the robot do the work as much as possible. I trusted the ship to the robot from Edmonton till I was over Newark airport. It flew it every step from the first takeoff, too, until 30 minutes before I landed in Germany."

Post is sure he could have made the trip in five days if he had "the breaks" in weather.

At his hotel yesterday Post was visited by Gen. Italo Balbo, commander of Italy's trans-Atlantic air armada. Gen. Balbo said:

"Only a man like you can do something like that. Oh, Post, magnifico! magnifico!"

Post said;

"I think that most generals are phony, but you have absolutely proven yourself a general to have gone out and taken charge of such a flight as you have made. I think it great—extremely great."

ESKIMOS STARE AT 'HERO' LINDY

GODTHAAB, Greenland, July 24.—(AP.)—Eskimos, to whom Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is as much a hero as he is to admirers of his aeronautic feats in less remote parts of the world, are traveling to Godthaab from great distances to get a glimpse of the American flier.

With his wife, Col. Lindbergh arrived Saturday from Labrador. They are making air maps of this northern region.

Day and night the Lindbergh plane is surrounded by a sizeable armada of Eskimo kyaks, or canoes. The Eskimos do not approach too close and they indulge in no demonstration, merely sitting and staring in wonderment and admiration.

Col. Lindbergh says his plans are indefinite and that he is merely reconnoitering to find suitable airports along the Greenland coast. He says he has not decided whether to extend his visit east of Greenland.

VON SCHILLINGS, COMPOSER, DIES

BERLIN, July 24.—(AP.)—Max Von Schillings, an outstanding figure in German music for nearly 40 years, died today of embolism. He was 65 years old.

Prof. Von Schillings was instrumental in forming the German Opera Company which toured the United States several times until recent years.

He composed four operas and a host of other works. His "Piper Day" and "Mona Lisa" were high spots of the 1931 season in Berlin.

The most famous of his works, perhaps, is the "Mona Lisa," first presented in 1931, which he started just before the war. When he joined his regiment, he took his notes along. He once said:

"'Mona Lisa' assumed shape during the rests of the battle of the Marne, and even now certain passages bring to my mind certain incidents during the war."

Groveton Man Held For Fight Injury

Ward A. Brown, of Groveton, is held by Coraopolis police, charged with aggravated assault and battery. Cutera is suffering from a possible skull fracture, according to attaches of Ohio Valley Hospital.

FEUDS SCORED BY MODERATOR

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Dr. John McDowell, recently elected moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., called on church people yesterday for "more religion in terms of the spirit, teaching and service of Christ and less controversy."

Delivering his first sermon in the metropolitan area since his election Dr. McDowell said:

"It is still more necessary to help the soul that sins and suffers than to assert our peculiar notions about the metaphysical aspects of religion."

If democracy is to succeed in America, he asserted, there must be co-operation instead of competition. He declared:

Coal Theft Brings Cavein of Mine

WILKES-BARRE, July 24.—(AP.)—Someone wanted some coal and as a result 78 houses in Pittston were damaged, gas and water mains severed. Officials of the Pittston Coal Company, who investigated four "squeezes" in the Ewen mine, said someone had been stealing coal from the pillars which support the mine roof.

Suspected Prowler Killed by Farmer

MERCER, Pa., July 24.—(INS.)—Frank Long, 25, of Shady Lake, died in a hospital today from a bullet wound received when he was shot by Alvin F. Elliott, 42, New Vernon Township farmer.

Elliott told police he fired at Long when his mother awakened him and told him there was someone prowling around their yard. Elliott told police he saw the man at the gate. State Policeman John Eber reported he found a can and hose in the victim's clothing. Elliott said gasoline thieves had robbed him several times recently.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 24.—(AP.)—Gov. John G. Pollard, of Virginia, said today he will recommend to the Virginia Legislature when it convenes August 17, that it set the date for the state to vote on ratification of the prohibition repeal amendment, for November 7, the regular election date, or earlier.

Gov. Pollard, long listed among the "drys," said his opinion that Virginia would vote 2 to 1 for repeal in no way had changed his personal views on the subject of prohibition.

McCanns Has Always Paid A Living Wage

now makes President Roosevelt's Code effective July 31st

During the whole four year period of the depression, McCann & Company has had but one general pay cut. In addition to this McCanns went on a five day basis of operation two years ago.

This wage reduction (not made till April, 1932) averaged only 6% on all wages below $50.00 a week, 10% from $50.00 to $100 a week, and 20% or more above that figure.

McCanns restores this reduction as of July 31st for all employees drawing up to $50.00 a week (not stopping at $35.00 as provided in the code). McCanns adopts as of July 31st the $15.00 minimum wage for 40 hours as provided in the code, including a reasonable allowance for meals served in restaurant departments.

McCanns has always paid a living wage . . . and ALWAYS WILL.

As evidence of this, in March 1933, a new Employees' Savings Fund was started and 407 out of 500 regular McCann employees were able to join this Fund (under no management pressure). These savings have averaged $525 a week . . . over $1.25 a week per employee.

McCanns pledges itself to adhere to the spirit and intent of the president's code in

(a) not increasing prices beyond what is necessary to meet the requirements of the code.

(b) not profiteering

(c) but beyond that . . . not to seek a living wage for capital invested in this business until the great objective of our President is realized, and business conditions placed on such a secure basis that capital may also be granted a living wage as well as labor.

McCanns will continue to remain open for service of the public on our former working hours . . . the additional time over 40 hours per week being met by employment of additional workers . . . thus increasing employment.

REGARDLESS of increased demand and steadily rising commodity prices, we have our annual job of Summer Clearing to do. The period, this year, is shorter, but the action is none the less vigorous or thorough. We will not carry over Summer stocks, regardless of the certainty of higher future prices. The present Clearance prices are based on the lowest prices in years. Make the most of it! We are combining Remnant Days and Clearance in one, starting tomorrow. Look for the clear-aways in every department.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Long Distance Phone Call

Long Distance, get me Murray Hill 2-1000, New York City, please—make it a station-to-station. My number is Drexel 7000.

NEW YORK: Hello! What's the matter, what have I done, now?

HOLLYWOOD: Nothing—How do you feel, Ruth?

NEW YORK: Simply sa-well!

HOLLYWOOD: Heheheh—brides always do! Tell Miss Bigman to put on the earphones in the operator's room—and make notes on this conversation—it'll have to do for a column.

NEW YORK: Okay, mister. Gee, this is a clear connection—you sound as though you were in the next room. This'll cost $8.75 for 3 minutes, sucker—why didn't you put it on the wires?

HOLLYWOOD: I fell asleep in the sun on the lawn—and when I woke up—it was too late to make the first edition. What's going on?

NEW YORK: Well, let me think. How many fights are you in now?

HOLLYWOOD: I can't remember—it's a lot of fun— making people mad. Ask the boss if I can go to Germany. It'll be good publicity.

NEW YORK: Do you really need publicity? You've got a dozen dopes exploiting you, already. Say—listen. When did you first break the Jack Dempsey-Hannah Williams altar rumor?

HOLLYWOOD: On the air when she was in Reno and the papers had her charged to Russ Columbo. Jack told me himself, why?

NEW YORK: I wanted to be ready in case the echoes claimed it . . . Are you going to do that picture with Crawford?

NEW YORK: How's the baby?

HOLLYWOOD: She's fine, thanks. Surprised me when I arrived by playing the piano, after only 3 weeks of lessons. They held a kids' recital last week—and she stole two bows . . . Guinan is coming out here to play herself in the movie I peddled to Zanuck . . . Thank King Features for permitting Cantor's column. That makes eleven. Lead off with the one by Mrs. Jimmy Walker and close with the one by Jim Tully.

NEW YORK: Here's one for Monday. The papers have been saying that Claire Luce's husband settled a million smackers on her, as a divorce settlement. He only rates a $3,000 a month allowance, so figure it, yourself . . . What's the big movie merger now being plotted? Is it RKO and Paramount? Some of the wiser boys here are buying Warner's stock. They are holding until it hits 15—but I doubt that it ever will, again!

HOLLYWOOD: Not sure about the merger—strictly talk, you can't tell, though. Don't buy any movie stocks—remember the Warner Brothers testimony at Washington—and trust none of the movie bunch.

NEW YORK: The City Desk wants to know what you know about any wedding plans of Sari Maritza—if any.

HOLLYWOOD: It's a good guess. I've been saying it for months on the air and in the column. But one day you hear that Sam Katz may re-marry Eleanor Ambrose, with whom he has been talking on the trans-Atlantic phones, and the next that he isn't. However, Sari's mother, Mrs. J. A. Nathan, of London, just arrived in Hollywood—and they are saying that she came to attend the wedding which is listed for next month here . . . Tell Vic Watson, of the Chicago Examiner, and Mr. McCarthy, of the Chi American—that the ex-Mrs. Shirley Flynn, of Chicago society, is marrying that Para-Publix attorney in their burg . . . Tell the desk not to get confused with the John Gilbert story breaking here next week. A John Gilbert got beaten up and he is suing Jack Oakie for 25 Gs, but it's not the movie actor . . . Incidentally, if Oakie marries anybody it'll be Mary Lalande, a stenog here.

NEW YORK: The desk wants to know about the divorce law in California—is that the one started by Riccardi, the lawyer?

HOLLYWOOD: Yeah. Not passed yet. If it is—it will apply to Lower California which still is Mexico. It will be like Reno's law, except that the time of residence to obtain a melting will be only 24 hours as compared to the 45 days required in Reno and ditto in Arkansas.

NEW YORK: You must feel better now that Dave Hutton and Aimee MacPherson are going to court. I mean, after the way they rapped you on their own radio station when you said it would happen months ago.

HOLLYWOOD: If it weren't for the raps I'd have been forgotten years ago. But get this. Aimee is due in Baltimore on the 24th from Europe—and she is going to beat Hutton to the Mexican courts!

NEW YORK: You've had swell luck out there, haven't you?

HOLLYWOOD: Had everything but the Dix bust-up.

NEW YORK: I think you'll be overboard—better hang up—if it is short—I'll use leads. Anything else? You can't reverse charges on this you know. They told you to use the teletypes. This'll cost about $175.

HOLLYWOOD: No kiddin'? Ouch! Did you have to remind me?

NEW YORK: Well, goomby, please! They killed that honeymoon is over gag that you used on me. I thought it was funny.

HOLLYWOOD: The honeymoon is over when he stops coming home for lunch! Haw! G'bye. Don't give my regards to anybody.

HOLLYWOOD, July 24.—When a Nevada judge gives Carole Lombard her divorce decree from William Powell, she will fly back to Hollywood and go right to work opposite George Raft in "All of Me."

The blonde star, who slipped out of the film colony before the gossips knew of her marital rift, has established residence at Lake Tahoe, on the Nevada side. She shares a cottage with her secretary, and is doing a lot of resting.

Miss Lombard

To make it doubly sure that Carole isn't lonely, her mother, Mrs. E. C. Peters, left here Sunday to join her. She'll stay the four remaining weeks until the hearing comes up.

The picture, "All of Me," is based on certain incidents in the life of the dancer, Maurice. It was written by Ruth Ridenour, who knew Maurice well, and is being adapted by Carey Wilson. Incidentally, this is the first film to exploit Raft's talents as a dancer.

One of the better stories of the week concerns the chorine on the "Dancing Lady" set at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Director Robert Leonard spotted a girl who would do for a closeup, so he called:

"Here, you blonde, come here."

The girl sat still and looked blank. Bob shouted again. Suddenly, the chorine jumped up.

"Ye Gods!" she cried. "I didn't realize you were calling me. I've only been a blonde for two days."

The storm is over but things were popping for a while as only Clara Bow can make them. Some months ago the redhead was supposed to star in "Marie Gallant." She was crazy about the story. Then Fox came to her and said they hadn't been able to get a successful treatment out of it.

Miss Bow

"All right," said Clara, "but heaven help you if you ever make it with anyone else."

Act 2 begins several mornings ago when "Marie Gallant" was announced for production with Mimi Jordan in the leading role.

Clara went into action. She put Sam Rork over the coals, she put Fox over the coals. It wasn't until hours later that she finally calmed down and agreed to go on with "Ballyhoo," her picture scheduled to begin September 1.

Under the new regime at Pickfair, the household staff has been reduced. In the old days, when Doug and Mary might have a half dozen guests, it required 18 servants, including gardeners, to run the establishment. Now, with Mary living there alone, and not entertaining so elaborately, this number has been substantially reduced.

Miss Todd

Recently Ginger Rogers had a birthday (Lew Ayres gave her a handsome fitted case) and on July 29 Thelma Todd will add a year to her age. Her husband, Pat De Cicco, is giving her a big party at the Miramar.

You may be seeing those two familiar screen figures, Charlie Chan and "The Cisco Kid" on a New York stage next year. Hamilton McFadden wants to write a play around Earl Derr Biggers' Chinese detective and Irving Cummings seeks to dramatize a new adventure of the romantic Mexican bandit. They want to put Warner Oland and Warner Baxter in the casts and are offering Fox screen rights to the plays. So homesick is Otto Kruger for his family back in Elizabethtown, N. J., that the M-G-M actor constantly sends them phonograph records with his recorded voice speaking greetings to his children.

Did you know: That Janet Gaynor once wrapped shoes for $7 a week in a San Francisco store—and, in her spare time, was bank messenger for the same firm?

Elissa Landi, before coming to America, worked in film studios in England, Sweden, Germany and France. She was born in Venice. Miss Landi has written several books.

Gossip About Plays and Players—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Summer Playhouse will resume its routine of dramatic production every alternate week by presenting Alfred Savouir's satiric comedy, "He," in the Shady Side Academy Theater, Fox Chapel, tonight. The cast of this play will be considerably larger than those used in the two preceding offerings.

THE FLORSHEIM SHOE COMPANY pledges immediate conformity with the proclamation of the President under the National Industrial Recovery Act, subject to such modifications as may be required by the Shoe Manufacturers' code, when accepted.

This policy is dictated not alone from a sense of duty, but also because of our firm conviction that shorter hours, increased employment and wages will materially hasten the Nation's return to normalcy.

Effective August 1, 1933, or sooner, if adjustments can be made, wages of all factory workers will be increased 10%, with hours reduced to 40 per week, and the salaries of other groups, including clerical help, will be adjusted in accordance with the suggestions of the Administrator.

Believing that it will require a short additional period to restore normal buying power under the Administration's program, we shall temporarily continue our retail prices, which are at their January 1, 1933, level, notwithstanding that the costs of materials have advanced substantially.

The suggestion of the President that each of us help himself by helping others is, in our opinion, as sound as it is simple and direct.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Odds and Ends

JUST ABOUT a year ago, I met a chap on Broadway whose only possession in this world was a broken-down distillery in one of the southern states. This distillery turned out a fairly popular brand of cheap rye before prohibition. But it folded up when the so-called dry era arrived, and the name has meant nothing since.

This chap wanted nothing more than to get rid of his property. He spoke to a number of people who might be interested, including all the big shots in the liquor racket.

"I'm only asking $10,000 for the whole works," he told them, "and you're getting a great bargain at that figure. It's worth nothing today, of course, but prohibition is on the way out. And when it goes, a little fixing will make my plant one of the best in the nation.

"Why not buy it, if only for an investment? How can you go wrong on $10,000 for that kind of property? I'm telling you to buy it, boys. You'll never regret it."

But it was no dice. The racket boys couldn't see the proposition favorably at all. They weren't interested in a broken-down distillery, especially when it was so far from New York. So the young man's urging went for naught.

The chap was almost desperate. The first decent offer would have taken the place, even if it was no more than a few thousands in cash. But that offer failed to come. And the young man left Broadway with the place still in his possession.

I don't know how many months it was, but the chap finally sold his distillery in a stock transaction. Without any actual cash being transferred, he turned over his property for 10,000 shares of National Distillers.

Last week he sold 5,000 shares of his stock for a sum that ran well over half a million dollars—and he still has 5,000 shares left.

What a whale of a difference just a few months make!. . .

THE foregoing, it goes without saying, is not the only tale of its type that is being unfolded these days. I know personally of a brewery not far from New York that was sold about 14 months ago for $150,000. You couldn't buy the same brewery today for $3,000,000 in cash.

In spite of plenty of success in the whisky line, however, the distillers are already beginning to make mistakes. Not satisfied with profits that had already assumed fantastic figures, the liquor boys advanced the price of American rye and bourbon this week exactly $15 a case. Because of the demand, an advance of a dollar or two might have been expected. But $15 on a case is pure greed and obvious profiteering.

After all these years, one would think that the legitimate liquor interests had learned a bitter lesson. But evidently there are still plenty of fools in command . . .

WE were discussing "Pilgrimage," the new Fox picture. It's a heavy film that deals with mothers and the World War, and there isn't a snicker in the flicker to relieve the tension. But it's a great box office picture and there isn't a mother in the land who won't go for it in a big way. Fox has turned out another shrewd production.

"Whether I like it or not," I said, "makes little difference. It's the kind of picture that people want to see, and that's all there is to it. All it needed was a little comedy relief."

At the other end of the table was a chorine who is as dumb as they come, and sometimes a little dumber. But she loves to display, among other things, her knowledge of show business.

"Mr. Hellinger is right," she asserted seriously. "Sometimes the picture people just don't know what they're doing. Why, all 'Pilgrimage' needed to be tremendous was the Four Marx Brothers or Charlie Chaplin!"

IN THE friendliest manner, I should like to urge the Shuberts to drop their contemplated usage of the title, "The Ziegfeld Follies of 1933." Inasmuch as I have already been approached twice to write for the production, mine is hardly a case of sour grapes. It is simply an honest opinion that the entire thought is ill-advised.

I do not blame Miss Billie Burke for selling the title, nor do I blame the Shuberts for buying it. After all, Mr. Ziegfeld's widow is entitled to all the money she can earn. She is an exceptional actress and a thoroughly charming woman—and if she thinks it wise to sell the Ziegfeld name after the man's death, nobody can wish her anything but the very best of luck.

The Shuberts, of course, make their purchase purely as a business proposition. They know that never in the history of show business was there a box office title as magnetic as the Ziegfeld Follies. And they feel that a revival of the name will draw heavily in the sticks.

Well, perhaps yes—and perhaps no. I haven't a doubt in the world that, if the Shuberts go through with the project, the show will be the costliest in the history of their organization. To make the Ziegfeld name stand up it would have to be. Either they must plunge heavily on the production, or they must not plunge at all.

Because this production will invite comparisons as no show ever did before, it will be unique in theatrical history—and the thought of using a dead man's name for box office receipts puts two strikes on the show long before it opens.

There wasn't a critic in the nation who didn't bear some affection for the Ziegfeld touch. It was a certain mysterious something that made him the outstanding American producer of all time. But the Ziegfeld touch is now the hand of death. The critics know that only too well. And if this contemplated production turns out to be a turkey, heaven help the Shuberts!

Those on the inside must consider the entire proposition an ironic jest. Only five years ago, Flo could have sold his name in a deal that would have netted him a million a year without any financial worries. He turned it down, just as he turned down all through his life any and all offers that might harm his most prized possession—the title of the "Ziegfeld Follies." And now, when he can no longer fight, that very title goes to an organization that he cordially hated through the years.

It is easy to be bitter, I suppose—and many people are. But, as I said before, you can blame no one for considering the proposition. All I can do is to urge the Shuberts to be very, very careful.

FIVE HOLD UP 82 AT CLUB PARTY

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—Suburban and city police joined today in an effort to capture five masked gunmen who terrorized 82 guests of the Olympic Golf and Country Club and escaped.

Estimates of the amount of loot varied. One report was that the robbers fled with $30,000 in cash and $14,000 in jewelry, but another was that the loss amounted to about $2,300.

Herding the guests and 11 employes of the club into the center of the dance floor early Sunday, the gunmen forced their victims to lie down and toss their cash, pocketbooks and jewelry into a pile. Those who hesitated to obey were kicked and otherwise abused.

POISON KILLING TWO MYSTERY

READING, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Poison of undetermined origin and defying analysis claimed the lives of two children yesterday and attacked four others of the same family at Leisz's Bridge, a Hamlet near Reading.

Two of the family are ill seriously, and two children of a neighboring family are less seriously affected.

The dead are Betty Marie Weitzel, 4, and her 6-year-old brother, Roy Vernon. The others afflicted range from 2 to 10 years.

After a post mortem on the body of Betty, the first to die, physicians were at a loss to classify the poison. It affected the entire body, they said, especially the kidneys, and caused swelling of the face and legs.

Monkey's Antics Held Due to Operation

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—Policemen whose lives were complicated by a monkey's antics learned that the animal was the subject of psychological experimentation, having undergone a brain operation at a University of Chicago clinic.

It escaped from the dog pound after running away from the clinic, but ran into an electric wire and was knocked out. Later it was returned to the clinic. Scientists feared the shock would be fatal.

SAFETY DRIVE LAUNCHED

With "Safest City 1933" as its slogan, the Better Traffic Committee is developing plans for an intensive educational drive during the balance of this year, according to Vice-Chariman Walter Rosenbaum.

During September, 'no-Accident month,' the seventh annual traffic essay contest, and special traffic safety programs on the city's playgrounds are expected to obtain the co-operation of educational, civic and social organizations.

At the present rate, according to Lewis W. McIntyre, city engineer, traffic deaths will be 25 per cent less than last year.

TRUCK GARDEN BOYS STRIKE

MILWAUKEE, July 24.—(AP.)—In dead earnest, but admittedly getting quite a thrill out of it, 200 youths working in truck gardens southwest of the city were on strike today for higher wages.

The strikers, from 14 to 24 years of age, formed picket lines, called for boycotts and held a meeting to discuss plans for promoting their fight.

The sheriff, while not too concerned about the situation, ordered deputies to patrol the neighborhood.

Last week the workers demanded 20 and 25 cents an hour for field work instead of the present 12 and 18-cent wage, and also asked 3 cents instead of 2 cents paid for washing, selecting and tying a dozen bunches of radishes.

WETS URGE HIGH TAX ON RUM

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(INS.)—A sharp boost in federal taxes on hard liquor—designed to bring at least $350,000,000 a year into the treasury—was urged today by a group of congressional wets as they sighted repeal of the Eighteenth amendment by Christmas.

The high tax proposed is based upon the precedent set by Congress in quadrupling the pre-war tax on beer when it enacted the 3.2 per cent beer law, together with a belief that hard liquor will fall far below its pre-prohibition peak.

Among those preparing to urge the tax hike is Representative John J. O'Connor (Dem.) of New York, a leader in the congressional "wet bloc."

With Congress already committed to revision of the tax laws to halt evasion, special senate and house sub-committees are expected to study liquor taxes in September.

Man Kills Himself At Shooting Gallery

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—A gray-haired man walked into a shooting gallery, laid 15 cents on the counter, selected a pistol and while the attendant's back was turned, shot himself to death.

He was identified as Malcolm Patterson, 60, of Chicago.

SAILOR'S STITCH MURDER CLUE

KENT, O., July 24.—(INS.)—Linked by a "sailor's stitch" used in sewing a sweater found near the body of Mary Klinko, 23, a 45-year-old man today was being held as a suspect in connection with the girl's death.

Officers said the suspect had a sweater in his possession mended with the same "sailor's stitch" used in sewing the sweater found in the underbrush near the body.

Police Chief St. Clair West said the man was unable to account for his whereabouts Friday night. The girl disappeared from her home at that time.

The suspect was covered with scratches and cuts and one eye had been discolored. He said an automobile had struck him.

Olivier was signed for the role by cable.

Roosevelt's Job Plea on 3 Stations

A terse message from the President of the United States flashes from the White House over combined NBC and CBS facilities tonight at 10:30 o'clock.

Outlining his unprecedented peace-time program for putting 6,000,000 idle to work by September, President Roosevelt directs his plea to the nation for support and co-operation in his national industrial recovery plan.

Scheduled for 30 minutes, the broadcast will be carried locally by WCAE, KDKA and WJAS.

In little more than 24 hours, President Roosevelt again will be on the air—at midnight tomorrow over WCAE and WJAS—with an address to the Conference of Governors being held this year in San Francisco.

Nevin Favorite

Ethelbert Nevin's "Little Boy Blue," comes home to Sewickley, via WJAS, when Mary Eastman sings it on the Andre Kostelanetz program at 10.

Miss Eastman

Letha Frazier Rankin and Jean McCrory, Newman, well known Pittsburgh songsters, fill KDKA'S Spotlight at 6:30.

Two 3.2 touches, "Prince of Pilsen" and "Old Heidelberg," by the Travellers Quartet are WJAS highlights at 7:30.

Old, New Favorites

Musical show hits of days gone by, contrasted with those of the present day, make up a new weekly melodic revue directed by Frank Tours with the inaugural set for tonight at 8 on KDKA.

The initial program features selections from "The Country Girl," by Lionel Monckton, a London success of 1901, and from "Bitter Sweet," Ziegfeld hit of two seasons ago.

Cyrano on Air

Mr. Webster

Truly rural titles, these: "Blue Grass," "Lamp Lighting Time in the Valley," "Bells of St. Mary's" . . . Singin' Sam offers them tonight—WJAS at 8:00.

For piano music lovers: Classical selections by Schirmer & Schmitt, piano team, over WCAE at 5:30 this afternoon.

Fred Webber, KDKA staff announcer, sings one song each evening at 6:23 o'clock. "Coming Home" is his number for tonight.

Globe-Trotter Schedule

In deference to a special network broadcast from Washington today at 12:15 p. m., the noon-time news broadcast by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, is scheduled at 12:05, with both WCAE and WJAS carrying.

His other dual broadcasts—at 9:05 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.—are listed as usual.

Grandpa and Lillian, reading today's Sun-Telegraph comic pages, top a 30-minute variety bill for kiddies on WCAE at 4:45.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello ladies and gentlemen:

Nothing makes you feel so disappointed as to wake up out of a sound sleep, dreaming of green pastures and rolling hills, with babbling brooks and shady dells, to find out that it's 8:45, too late to make the morning broadcast, and too shocked at oversleeping to get back to those peaceful scenes.

Many radio people tell of having "radio nightmares." They usually occur when you are at some distance from the studio and occupying yourself with some diversion that has completely taken your mind away from the business.

One might be standing on the tenth tee, after a fairly satisfactory nine holes with congenial companions, glance at the watch and become obsessed with the idea that he was scheduled to do a broadcast within the next few minutes. Worry clouds immediately form to blot out all the pleasure of the game. Nothing will help but to race to a telephone and call the studio for reassurance that everything is o. k.

Many radio attaches, because of these "nightmares," spend many of their leisure hours in and about the radio station.

Other "bugaboos" that attack performers are the angle to which one sings to the microphone, the distance from it, and the immediate reaction he gets from people there who listened or said they did.

Tell a singer he's terrible, and even if he knows that the critic is a notoriously poor judge, he will tighten up and resolve to concentrate on the next song.

He will then carefully listen to each note he sings and mentally criticize its pitch, quality and enunciation. So absorbed will he be that he will be out of time with the orchestra or sound like an automaton.

If his first song was a bit strained and you tell him it was fine, his next effort, sustained by a confidence that he's right today, will carry his whole heart, soul and enthusiasm.

AIRCASTER DRAFTS DIZZY CODE FOR RADIO REFORM

By AIRCASTER

Since all broadcasting is already regulated by a government agency, the federal commission, it is the sense of the big shots of the industry that it would be senseless to submit a code of the industry to Gen. Johnson to help along the national recovery movement.

Nevertheless, there are those who believe a code should be framed and filed for the correction of many evils that do not come under jurisdiction of the commission. This latter faction is comprised mainly of the listening public and the artists—and I have been gathering opinions from them as to what should be placed foremost in such a code, if it is ever devised.

The following points of ethics and reform loom as logical among the vital paragraphs to be included:

1—All contracts signed by sponsors and artists should be written with chalk on blackboards, to permit easy erasures and changes. In this manner, 14,000 bales of bond paper would be conserved annually.

2—A fund of $4,000,000 for contingencies should be formed from $10 fines levied on radio announcers who used the word "folks."

3—An alternative plan for simplifying commercial set-ups would be (A) the complete massing of all orchestras, with the leaders conducting sections. Vallee could lead the saxes, Rubinoff the fiddles, etc. These outfits could merge all programs into one, covering the entire day, with the hour between noon and 1 p. m. reserved for high pressure ballyhoos; (B) the selection of commercial bands by lottery at a standard price.

4—The establishment of a universal theme song for organists to avert hard feelings. The theme song of Col. Stoopnagle is proposed, and would, possibly, result in a beautiful friendship between such artists as Lew White and Dick Leibert.

5—All artists to be given half interests, with announcers, in the products advertised over the air, so they could work sincerely.

6—The devotion of 18 hours each Sunday of time to radio listeners, who would be allowed to broadcast their opinions of radio programs.

7—Creation of a $40,000,000 industrial reserve by levying $1,000 fines on all imitators of Bing Crosby, the Boswell sisters and the Mills brothers.

10—Creation of an emergency fund for the amelioration of adjectives with broken arches.

11—Rule requiring the ratio of American-born performers to those of imported origin, not to exceed the alcholic content of beer multiplied by 3.1416.

Recovery Act Teeth Put In Manifesto by Women

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—That the women in the United States belonging to the member clubs of the National Council of Women organize into vigilance committees of women to see that the National Recovery Act was effective was one of the "teeth" put by the International Congress of Women into their newly adopted manifesto on Saturday.

The manifesto, adopted by the Congress to launch a second woman's movement, patterened after the first to obtain equal rights for women, was broadened to include betterment of world conditions for both men and women.

The session Saturday was a holdover meeting to put "teeth into the manifesto." Miss Lena Madesin Phillips of New York, president of the National Council, called the international economic conclave of women to discuss and "get into action promptly" on what needs to be done to aid world recovery.

The "teeth" were mainly aimed at conditions in the United States.

The national council recommended to member organizations that they devise a program to formulate interracial tolerance and understanding.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Washington, former vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee, said this was something that had never before been undertaken by a woman's club in the United States.

Another project adopted was the recommendation that the member groups of the national council of women demand congressional investigation of the private manufacture of arms and munitions in this country, including aircraft development.

Pittsburgh Club Women To Watch Chautauqua Meeting of B. P. W.

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Although no representative from Pittsburgh will be present at the council meeting of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women which opens in Chautauqua today, local club members will watch with interest the proceedings. Moreover, the Pittsburgh club has extended, through the international president, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, an invitation to the many distinguished foreign guests to visit Pittsburgh.

The Chautauqua Woman's Club is co-operating with the Federation board and is holding a joint meeting with it this afternoon, with Miss Phillips speaking on "Which Way—Organized Womanhood?" A conference of the two clubs tonight will afford "Intimate Glimpses of the Week's Guests."

This morning's speaker is Dr. Christine Galitzi of Rumania. Tonight, in co-operation with the Foreign Policy Association, the women will discuss "What Holds Back Disarmament" with Dame Rachel Crowdy, of England; Dr. Marie Munk, of Germany; Mme. Marcelle Kraemer-Bach, of France; Miss Selma Ekrem, of Turkey; Miss Lilly Kelly, of the Argentine; Miss Cecilia Hesselstrom, of Finland, and Miss Dorothy Heneker, of this country, speaking.

During the week topics of discussion for the group will include such international questions of general interest as The Hague convention preventing night work for women; the draft convention of the International Labor Conference which advocates the abolition of fee-charging employment agencies, and the work of the disarmament committee of Women's International Organization.

Many matters of intra-organization policy also will be discussed. Week-end goodwill tours between various countries of Europe to stimulate friendly relationship will be advocated by Mme. Andre Duboscq, of Paris, chairman of the international committee on hospitality and courtesies. The music and fine arts committee, of which Signora Antonietta Paoli Pogliani, of Rome, is chairman, will ask for the creation of further scholarships to enable artists to receive training in countries other than their own. One such scholarship now exists and is held by a young Hungarian girl in the Princess Mafalda School of the Harp in Rome.

B. P. W. President Returns From Convention

Miss Marie Maloney, president of Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club, returned late last week from Chicago, where she attended the biennial convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and then spent several days at the Century of Progress Exposition.

Miss Maloney

Miss Maloney was speaker at the retail store service round table and co-chairman of the round table on department store employment and personnel, both of which she reported at the convention banquet.

The club is sponsoring tomorrow night's lawn concert at the Hotel Schenley with Miss Olive Kinsey as chairman.

On her committee are Miss Eda Kann, Mrs. James W. Myers, Miss Kathryn Wells, Dr. Alice S. Gularski, Miss Margaret Schwalm, and Miss Evelyn G. Buchanan. The club's ushers will be Miss Virginia Slease, Miss Grace Martin, Miss Margaret Louise Hensel and Miss Margaret Barton.

DIMINUTIVE PRINTS IN SUMMER SHEERS HELP ANY FIGURE

IT BECOMES quite apparent as the summer gets on its way that the fabrics to make for, if you would be cool and smart, are those that are sheerest. If you're going to the seashore, your dress-up clothes will be sheers, in the new woody browns, deep blues with purplish cast, raspberry reds, deep greens and white to emphasize your tan. If you live in the country, close by the city, then also sheers, in prints and dark colors. No other idea could better reduce the problem of commuting. And if you're vacationing by traveling, you'll bless the inspiration that made you select a tailored sheer suit for luncheon appointments when you're expected to meet your friend's best friend on the way.

THE PRINTED chiffon is back again in the summer panorama, but this time with an entirely new face and eager new purpose in life. The patterns are subdued little geometrics for the most part, fond farewells having been made to the exhausting splashy prints of former years. Clear little motifs replace them. In our intense effort to reduce our size, no matter what it happens to be, we discovered that we looked pounds lighter in tiny prints, so nothing can induce us to take to weird large patterns again. Diminutive prints are all to the good—for they do help the figure considerably!

NOT ONLY their faces, but their purposes have changed, as we've already said. Chiffons for the street and cottons for the dance floor are a new thought this year. All chic women understand this topsy-turviness, and go about the streets now in carefully tailored chiffon suits. The dresses have neat little shirtmaker touches, pleats, yokes, raglan sleeves, rows of tailored buttons and simple ties. The suits are almost as man-tailored as woolens are expected to be—and every bit as smart.

YOU MAY take the ensemble sketched in the accompanying picture for your guide. This one is practically perfect since the pattern is subdued, the colors—gray and white—good for late summer wear, and the whole thing kept simple in design. Over the full-sleeved dress goes a sleeveless jacket—another good thought if you abhor sleeveless dresses.

WITH THIS, wear satin or taffeta accessories. The same type of suit is terribly new if of net. Preferably black. If it is kept tailored you'll never feel the curse of fussiness or a dance-floor air hovering over your head. Instead, a well-dressed look.

Judge James H. Gray today announced he would visit the site of a proposed gasoline station in Perrysville avenue, near Legion street, to determine if it would constitute a nuisance to nearby property owners.

The court heard arguments on the proceedings today. He commented on absence of protests from McNaugher Public School.

Miss Emma M. Gusky, pretty 26-year-old Bellevue girl, whose engagement was announced last week at the Pennsylvania State Luther League convention at York, Pa., was back home today making wedding plans.

The groom will be John George Kurzenknabe, of Harrisburg, who is first vice president of the Luther League of America. The pair met several years ago at a convention of the organization here in Pittsburgh.

"We haven't set the wedding date yet. And since we are both engaged in Luther League work we don't think it would be right to keep it a secret."

The couple's engagement was announced at the closing session of the York convention and was a complete surprise to the delegates and clergymen in attendance.

NIGHT LIGHTS AT FAIR GLORIOUS, SAYS HILL

By EDWIN C. HILL
International News Service Special Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 24.—If you visit the Fair, by all means take your first look at it after darkness falls and its glory of color bursts like a gentle explosion of the Northern Lights.

All around the Lagoon, the lake which lies between Lake Michigan and the thoroughfares of the Exposition are waterfalls descending in showers of lovely green, rose, blue and gold, one gorgeous hue gently dissolving into another, while tall fountains turning from the purest white to violet and to azure rise like stately ladies. Sit in a gondola and slowly traverse that lovely Lagoon.

AMAZING BUILDINGS

Then step on land and wander through the great broad avenue of flags which leads the way to the myriad streets and avenues in the glowing night. For the first visit, then, drink of the color of the Fair, the supernal beauty of the flashing night. Turn from the Lagoon and the Avenue of Flags to the strange, weird buildings whose bold splashes of color are the very essence and spirit of this carnival of science. You will be amazed at those buildings, whether you see them by night in their robes of electric light, or in the sunlight of day in their stark and daring greens, reds, blues and yellows. They have no windows, these strange astonishing buildings of glass and stainless steel, of asbestos and gypsum board, of cornstalks and old newspapers.

They are lighted from the interior and ventilated and cooled from the interior. They are, for the most part, all planes and angles, weirdly modern, and you see them at their strangest and best when they are illuminated at night, by a new kind of light, produced by introducing rare gas into tubes from which the air has been pumped, and through which high voltage electricity is passed.

It is, perhaps, the greatest display of man-made light that human beings have ever looked upon . . . and then, after seeing the Fair by night, getting its general picture in lovely color, go back by day, a dozen times at least, and a dozen times are all too few, selecting, day by day, a few things to see thoroughly. Go to the great hall of science, a building covering more than eight acres.

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE

Before you is the illustrated story of mathematics through the ages. Time and space are shredded and dissected by the magic machines that men have invented. And there one sees the whole story of man's greatest friend, chemistry; of what comes from a lump of coal in the way of beautiful colors, medicines, plastics and a thousand things without which modern civilization could barely function. There too is the great clock of the ages where the science of geology is made simply and clearly understandable, where mountain ranges grow before your eyes and volcanoes burst into fire and the face of the earth changes.

And the story of medicine and surgery is there, the progress of medicine for a hundred years from the days of the oldtime country doctor, traveling with his saddlebags, by horseback, going his lonely way, measuring out his meagre doses, to the physician and surgeon of this day with his highly technical equipment.

There you see what the famous Doctors Mayo, of Rochester, Min., have done and are still doing, and the equally wonderful work of McGill University and the Montreal General Hospital, and Johns Hopkins of Baltimore, and so many more of those havens of healing and mercy for afflicted human beings . . . and then one goes on to the Transport Building, a great dome suspended 125 feet above the ground by cables attached to 12 steel towers, and there is the whole story of transportation from the days when men made their way in ox carts and stage coaches, down to the present, with its great monster airplanes speeding at 200 miles an hour and the streamlined trains of stainless steel flashing across country at a hundred miles an hour.

LIGHT DISPLAYS

And then we come to the building of the servant which has transformed the world, electricity, one of the most beautiful and inspiring things in the Fair. Above a circular court rises a silver fan of light, and in a court a fountain sends up iridescent jets of illuminated water in a series of multi-colored steps. And out in the center of the fountain rises a great 70-foot canopy, the underside of which is hammered copper, and which reflects the color and disseminates it and achieves a beauty that is superb. A group of pylons rises up, each 40 feet high, with sculptured figures to symbolize the enormous power of electricity, and the eye is caught by an arresting inscription in blazing color:

"Light is the beginning of all things."

From the utmost ether it issues, shaping the stars, answering in its patterns the majesty of creative thought. "A place of magic and marvels, for here you see the new fever machine with which medicine is fighting and conquering insanity. You see the photo-electric tubes—the electric eyes—those incredible things with the subtley, almost, of the human brain. You see an incandescent light no bigger than a grain of wheat, a marvelous aid to surgeons, and you see how light itself is created from the moving rivers and the tumbling waterfalls and the reservoirs which take the flow from river and lake, across the plains to lonely farm and ranch and into great cities; and you see the lonely houses glow in the dark with the magical light evoked by the genius of man, and you see the cities come alive with the industries born of light and power, and a voice comes to you out of the darkness, telling the story of hydro-electricity, a story which has a span of only 50 years, since the first hydro-electric station in the United States was built only 50 years ago in Appleton, Wisconsin.

STORY OF MANKIND

And so one moves on through marvel after marvel, through the radio and communications building, and the communications gardens which are like the immortal garden of the Villa D'Este at Tivoli, near Rome.

And in the hall of social science you have spread under your eyes the whole story of the rise of mankind . . . You see there the visual story of an American family, an early colonial family.

The women are spinning, weaving, and making garments by hand. The father of the family is breaking up the sod with a plow. Then the scene changes. People have come to settle and the original family has acquired neighbors. Here is a school, a church and a courthouse. You see the boggy road over which this family must travel, and upon it a horseman and a stagecoach struggling through the mire and the ruts. On the opposite side of this group is a family of 1933, living in a modern apartment. There is the inevitable radio and the modern refrigerator. On the shelf are tins of prepared food. Most of the activities of the colonial family have gone out of this home. You see villages grow to towns and towns to great cities. The miry road has become a broad, smooth motor highway. An airplane flashes across the skies. It's the story of America done in simple terms. . . And there is, in other fascinating buildings, the story of old people, peoples that have passed from the earth or who linger on, with only traces left of their former greatness.

The Mayan Temple, with its strange designs, huge mask heads and serpents carved in stone, the relic of a civilization which existed in Central America and Mexico 2,000 years ago. And one come to perhaps the loveliest single structure in all the Fair, yet nothing modern. For it is the Potala, the golden pavilion of the Temple of Jehol. It stand like an ancient jewel in a modern setting, this replica of the glorious temple built by the greatest of Chinese emperors, Ch'ieng Lung, more than two and a half centuries ago.

MADE IN CHINA

It is put together in 28,000 pieces, all made in China, by Chinese workmen and artists. Its double-decked roof of copper is covered with pure gold leaf. It stands 70 feet square and 60 feet high in its warm, red lacquer, with its carved grills in red, blue, yellow and gold and inside Buddhist monks intone the old, old prayers to Gautama, murmuring, over and over again, as they turn their prayer wheels, "Om mane padme hum . . . Oh, thou who reposeth in the lotus flower" . . . And now and then the great temple bell booms out and there is a tinkling of little silver bells. And out in the courtyard an extraordinarily pretty Chinese girl with bobbed hair, speaking English perfectly shines her eyes at impressionable young men and does a rushing business in 25-cent souvenirs of a dead civilization.

There are so many things to see—exciting, thrilling, lovely, that one wishes Chicago could keep this fair as a permanent display. It makes one rather proud of being a human being. It uplifts the soul and creates a mood of cheerfulness . . . And in that mood one can turn to the amusements of the midway, most of which are good and tried forms of fun—chucking baseballs at colored gentlemen and dumping them in tubs of water when one is lucky enough to hit a disc; guiding automobile scooters in a mad scramble of hysterically laughing people; seeing a young lady drive a motor car around the inside of a barrel with a lion for her companion; visiting the innumerable villages—the Belgian Village, the American Indian Village, the African Village and all the rest; and watching thousands drink their beer and eat hot dogs in the enormous restaurant terraces, and visiting the modern homes all of glass and steel and weirdly conceived, but extraordinarily interesting and cheerful.

FUR PRICES RISE ON AVERAGE OF 40%
INFLATION HELD FACTOR
Decrease in the Dollar Abroad Said to Be Another—Men's Wear, Too, Will Cost More.
Raw fur prices are soaring, and women's fur coats will have advanced in the Fall from 25 to as much as 100 per cent over a year ago, trade authorities here said in Yesterday. Fur-trimmed cloth coats also are expected to show substantial increases in price owing to the rises in trimming pelts. Men's clothing also is likely to share in upward price revision, and silk hats, shirts and shoes will cost more.
We print these letters and quotations to give an actual picture of what is going on in the fur industry at the present time.

From the price standpoint, it has never been so advantageous to purchase a fur coat than at the present moment, for these reasons:

- The price declines of the last three years have ceased, and daily manufacturers are raising prices—from 20% to 60%, and even 100%. No one knows how high prices will go. It is estimated that a Fall, 1933, $135 fur coat may be worth $235 by next season.
- Coupled with this, there is a shortage in certain favorite better grade furs. Manufacturers will not guarantee replacement costs on any furs.
- There is a demand in the European market for American furs, causing greater shortage.

These merely hint of the golden opportunity there exists in the purchase of a new fur coat. There are still fine qualities to be had at historic prices. Now is the time to buy them!

Why Does It Pay To Buy Furs Here?

We assembled our entire collection before the "rise." The August sale offers choicest early skins, better qualities, our lowest prices, and at least 25% more for your money.

We have the smartest collection of styles ever assembled by this famous fur store. Every coat guaranteed for quality and years of satisfied wear.

Are Working Wives of Idle Men Poor Sports?

The working wife—the idle husband.

Yes, you guessed it. There is going to be a battle. In fact, according to the shouting, there are already thousands of battles raging all along the domestic lines—and all for the same reason.

The Mrs. has a job and the Mister hasn't.

So then, what?

Is she sweet, understanding, generous, patient and loyal?

Does she tell him not to worry—assure him that "something will turn up soon"—kid him out of his blues—flatter him out of his humiliation?

Or does she turn sour on him? Rub it in?

Make catty little remarks about how "it's mighty funny Jane's husband found a job the first day he looked, and you've been looking three months and have found nothing yet?"

A lad by the name of John B. opined that she did all the latter. According to him, the Working Wife is the poorest sport on earth. And here's Roger F. with gobs and gobs of sympathy—and a true hard luck story that should make a lot of wives feel like 30 cents—maybe!

Dear Miss Robinson:

I just read John B.'s letter, and he has my condolences, because I am in the same boat, and I know just how he feels. I could write a book on the bad sportsmanship of some wives who happen to be earning the onions for the family. Among them, my own.

In 1929 I had a good job I'm no genius, but I made a pretty good salary, and thought I was on the way up to a better one. I worked hard and made it my business to learn all I could about my work. I'd had fairly steady advancement ever since I went to work for my firm when I came home from the war. So you can see I am not a bum.

LOST HIS JOB

Well, when we married my wife wanted to keep her job, and I thought that was her affair, and that was the way it was done. I made plenty to keep us, and owned a small car. We had a pretty good time, too. She was sweet as could be, so long as I was working. We had a nice apartment, nice friends. We saw a few good shows, went out to dinner when we felt like it, danced, and had a pretty pleasant existence.

We were never extravagant, and had some savings. She saved more than I was able to, because she only spent her money to suit herself, while I paid for our living.

Well, not long after the famous crash my firm went to the wall. I got another job, but that petered out, too. For three years, now, I haven't been able to get steady work. Most of the time I've had none at all.

My wife has had better luck. Her firm managed to keep going. Of course, her salary was cut, but she still gets it, such as it is. And here's where the trouble comes in.

Because she is the one who is working and earning, she puts on airs. Maybe if it had been some terrible physical catastrophe that knocked us half off the earth and left us on a desert, she'd be a good sport and help me see it through. I don't know. I've often wondered about that. Anyway, she never lets me forget that she's my meal ticket and never misses an opportunity to rub it in!

Of course our savings are gone. We've had to give up our nice apartment and sell the car. In the last three years I would be willing to gamble that I've walked hundreds of miles looking for work—anything I could get to do. It is a dreadful thing to get turned down everywhere you go. It eats into you—takes the heart out of you, leaves you depressed, discouraged.

But does she try to understand that? Not she!

EAGER TO WORK

To hear her talk, you'd think all this mess was my own personal fault, and that I could get a job "just like that," if I really wanted to.

And I'm not the only man on a spot like this, either. I know men who would work hard for 50 cents a day if they could just get away from home. I know only one working wife who says, "Bill will get work when he can; and since he can't, why pick on your best pal?"

She is the only woman I know who seems to realize that a man feels badly enough without being razzed and high-hatted, and needs a little encouragement to keep him from going absolutely crazy.

I don't understand these women. We didn't rub it in when we paid their bills—and they were plenty big sometimes, too. Why can't they be fair to us now? What ails them? They wanted to work—to be men's equal. Or did they just want their own way? ROGER F.

That last paragraph's an earful, isn't it? What do you think of it?

How does it check with your look-see?

Is that the way things are going in your family, or the families you know?

And, if so, what do you suggest doing about it?

By FAY KING

No accomplishment is more deserving of respect and praise than that of parents who on meager income raise and educate a family of children.

They alone know the love, patience and sacrifice that sum up the 18 long years that bring children to the estate of adults.

Children should think of this when they grow restless and dissatisfied with home. Not until children know the responsibilities of families of their own will they fully appreciate their parents. Now, they too often think of what their parents have not the means to provide. Then, they will marvel at the much their parents did with so little.

Don't rush away. Repay parents with love and help. Give back a few of the many years they gave you.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Rages at Noel's Failure to Oppose Dad's Scheme

As Mary repeated that she was going to love life in the socially prominent French family to which Philip Veritzen was sending her for a year, I saw Noel wince.

"Is there anything that I can do for you, Mary?" he said. "Anything to help you get ready? Please remember that you only have to call on me for anything in the world."

"How perfectly dear of you!" she exclaimed enthusiastically, and I saw her throw him exactly the glance that she would normally give him at such an offer to assist her. "Just now, there isn't a thing, as of course your father is arranging everything about my passport and visas and my travel accommodations. Am I thrilled? Think of little Mary with a passport!

"But just today there isn't a thing unless you want to go with me after a while to look at hats. I've got to get together some kind of sailing clothes, you know; but I'm going to follow Mr. Veritzen's advice and wait to get the most of my things in Paris."

"When do you want to start?" Noel asked. "I can be with you in half an hour. There is something I must do before then."

I knew very well what that something was. The boy had to go somewhere alone and fight out his problem—get hold of himself, to meet the tragedy—for I knew it was nothing else that had come to him. I guessed something else, also—that he had seen something in that first questioning glance of his into Mary's eyes that had prompted his answer. All that she had said or done since, although it had added to his torture, had been superfluous.

MOST DEADLY INSULT

Rightly or wrongly, he had read there that she wanted to go on this trip, and that a year's separation from him was of secondary consideration. With lightning-like quickness he had acted upon that conviction, and Mary's reaction had been as prompt—and as mistaken.

But had he been mistaken, or had he, loving Mary as he did, read her aright—seen beneath the surface her unconscious desire? Whatever the reason he had, without knowing it, given Mary the most deadly insult a lover can deal his sweetheart—the idea that he is perfectly complaisant toward her continued absence from him.

"Sure, old dear. That's oke by me," Mary said. "Come back whenever you're ready. I'll be waiting for you."

Noel rose and managed somehow courteous adieux to Lillian and me, although I guessed they cost him dearly. Lillian rose nonchalantly as he went through the door.

"I'll have to run over to my own apartment," she said. "I left things in a perfect mess over there. Call me if you need me for anything, Madge."

She moved to the door with apparently unhurried ease, but I felt my pulses quicken as I watched her. Something about her gave me the curious feeling that she meant to make some move in this little drama, the details of which she did not intend to share with either Mary or me.

MARY ANGRY

The moment the door closed behind her Mary began to rage up and down the room like a caged animal.

"And what a devoted lover Noel turned out to be!" she said. "'What a marvelous opportunity for you, Mary!' 'I am so glad for you, Mary!' Not even a syllable saying that he'd miss me! And me planning to marry him and give it all up! Wasn't I lucky in making you tell him about the news, and forbidding you to mention getting married unless he did? Suppose you'd sprung that one? Wouldn't that have been lovely?"

I made no protest, did not attempt to answer her. I knew that she must wear out the tempest in her own soul before she could listen to counsel or sympathy from any one.

"Just a woman men forget!" she said, and her voice sounded as if for the moment she believed it. Despite my sympathy and my anxiety for her, I could not resist a smile, which I was careful to hide, for anything lovelier than Mary in her stride up and down the room could not be imagined. It would be an indifferent man, indeed, who could forget her!

"Tell me, Auntie Madge," she said, suddenly wheeling in front of me, "what did Aunt Lillian mean when she said old Phil must have had advance information?"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Friendship

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I live with a married sister. We have had an argument and I am leaving her. She has a son of four, whom I love very much.

Can you tell me a way in which I can continue seeing my nephew without seeing his mother?

I absolutely will not make up with her as she hurt me very much. B.

How I wish I could persuade you to become friends again with your sister, before this breach widens so much that this would become difficult and perhaps impossible. This state of affairs is so unfortunate, so terribly and tragically unfortunate that I would so wish to save you from its consequences.

There are so many curious forces in the world today, we are apt to say quickly something that we don't at all mean, and we are so apt to let go without explaining them or without explaining that we did not mean them. And sisters are so precious, and their little boys are so precious . . . won't you please reconsider, dear girl? This kind of pride, this kind of frigid unforgiveness, is really so superficial, so worthless, especially when compared with the great love you undoubtedly have in your heart for your sister, and as you so sweetly have in your heart for her beloved son.

You'll cut yourself off from your sister, and you certainly will have to cut yourself off from her little boy . . . and all for what? No relationship ever goes perfectly, goes strictly according to our heart's desire. We have to forgive, constantly understand, constantly give and take . . . and always keep in mind we are apt to forget, that others have to do the same about us.

Please don't think I'm preach-y . . . or at least if you do, forgive me for being. But my heart has been touched so many times by seeing this sort of thing happen with such pathetic, even tragic, consequences, that I'd like to save you from this result. Also I want to have you and that little boy continue your wonderful relationship and devotion to each other. And you wouldn't have the slightest right in the world to do it if you were not friendly with your sister, his mother. You could see him only by underhand methods, and no decent person could approve of this.

Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am getting married at an early morning wedding, and I would rather not send out invitations to the church because I feel that those to whom I would send them would feel that they have to give presents. So would it be good form just to send out announcements?

2—I am under the impression that the groom pays for the automobiles. Am I right? M.

1—This isn't the usual attitude taken about sending wedding invitations. They are customarily sent when there is to be a formal wedding, in church, home, or hall.

However, if your wedding is to be rather informal, and if there are not to be many guests, it is in excellent form for your mother to write the notes of invitation. Then the formal announcements are mailed directly after the wedding, and to those who have not been invited to the wedding.

2—The bride's family provide the cars that take the bridal party to the church and to the reception.

The groom provides the car in which he and his best man come to the ceremony, this car usually being used by the married couple when they leave the church for the reception and when they depart after the reception.

Engagement Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to become engaged and I am not going to give my girl an engagement ring. Do I have to give her some present, and, if so, what sort would you suggest? C.

The giving of a ring or any other present as an engagement gift is, like the giving of all other gifts, a matter of choice. Sometimes a wrist watch is given, or a necklace, or a bracelet.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

What matters how much the frilly frock costs, how beautifully it smooths itself over the svelte shape, if its wearer slumps in her chair, walks with shoulders stooping, stands awkwardly? Not much. You guess now that we're back to that old subject, good posture, harping once more on the old string. Quite so. The modern girl does not carry herself gracefully; her mamma, even her grandma, makes a better job of it. Years ago there was interest in physical culture and, without question, the straight front corset inspired a woman to keep her chest lifted, tummy flat, hips held toward the back where they belong. Posture is necessary for health as well as good looks. The erect pose strengthens the muscles of abdomen, back and chest, imparts an appearance of youth and vitality. Worth pondering about.

This is a good time of year to start a world war against overweight, aim to flatten the anatomical hills, take on the svelte and beautiful shape. Appetite isn't so eager when the days are warm. Markets offer all manner of tempting food that contain mineral salts, vitamines and other elements that sustain energy and vitality and yet do not add a single fat bubble. Eat vegetables that grow above ground, green salads, lean meats, fruits, milk, which contains nourishment for adult as well as infants, will not inflate measurements unless it is extra rich with cream. Do not overlook the benefits of swimming. Tennis will slenderize the figure, but it is strenuous exercise for the woman who isn't accustomed to punishing her muscles.

No getting away from it, the coiffure that is smartified and chic is extremely short. No shingle, of course, since the wave line must appear all over the head. Those lassies who are still wearing fluffy long bobs, topped by bellhop hats, would improve their looks by a shearing. Slanted partings give the coiffure a note of individuality. The soft bang with two or three lines of unduluation is attractive. Groups of beau catchers are flattering. The coxcomb style—a single line of upstanding puff atop the crown—imparts length to the face that is inclined to be round and cherubic. Hair cuts are intricate; upon them depend the regularity of ringlets. So seek out the expert shearer of human wool.

If you have the habit of looking at feminine feet, no doubt you have noticed those that lift up into cushions at the top. The cause is the too-tight strap which, interfering with normal circulation, produces swelling of the tissues. The strap should be snug enough to kep the heel of the shoe from slipping, no snugger. When the heel of the foot is thin and bony, there is nearly always a possibility of getting a blister when new shoes are worn. Have the cobbler put a lift in the heel, it will do away with pressure and friction.

Place your pretty foot on a piece of paper, draw an outline. Place your pretty shoe upon a piece of paper, sketch its silhouette, compare the two. It will be as plain as the nose on your face that the sole of the foot is contracted, toes pressed into a close family group. Wide, low-heeled sports shoes offer a means of relief, give the feet a much needed holiday from narrow toes and spiked heels which strain the tendons of foot and ankle, and lead to deformities of the bony structure.

Good looks, will power, resistance and disposition all depend upon health to a certain extent. The girls don't care to be told about health and hygiene; they'd rather be concerned with factory blushes and the elegant coiffure. But it is impossible to enjoy a sense of well being, to look at tiptop best, unless the body is properly fed, properly exercised, gets sufficient sleep. Beauty shops are going in more and more for health plans, urging the cash customers to live rationally and sensibly. That helps along the efforts of the facial operator and the scalp specialists. Results come sooner.

Contract Bridge

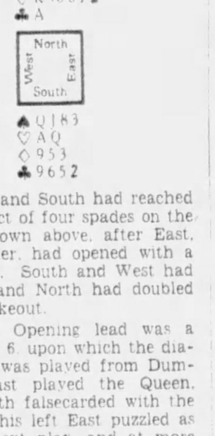
HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Planning the Play

An interesting problem in play confronted several Declarers in a recent Duplicate game in which a number of fairly expert players were participating. Most of the Declarers found the solution of the problem slightly too difficult and failed to fulfill a perfectly normal contract.

East, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



North and South had reached a contract of four spades on the hand shown above, after East, the Dealer, had opened with a diamond. South and West had passed, and North had doubled for a Takeout.

West's Opening lead was a diamond 6 upon which the diamond 2 was played from Dummy. East played the Queen, and South falsecarded with the nine. This left East puzzled as to his next play, and at more than one table, after considerable study, he shifted to a club. It is obvious, of course, that if he first cashes the Ace of diamonds and follows with the third round of diamonds, South can never fulfill his contract.

South's best play to fulfill his contract after the return of a club is reasonably clear. A small heart should be led from Dummy and won with the Ace or Queen and another club returned and ruffed with a low spade. Then the closed hand should be entered with the remaining heart honor and another club returned and ruffed. Now the King of hearts should be led, upon which South should discard a diamond. When this trick is cashed, the success of the contract is practically assured. The correct lead now is the Ten of diamonds. East will win the trick unless his partner chooses to ruff, but East and West can make only two diamonds and one trump trick. It would be useless for West to ruff the diamond and lead a spade, as the Ace would be played from Dummy and another diamond led, and again only the King of spades could make a trick as South would ruff his remaining club with Dummy's last trump, and the closed hand would then consist of nothing but equals in the trump suit any one of which could be beaten only by the King.

The contract requires only care for its fulfillment granted that East does not cash two diamond tricks at once and permit his partner to ruff the third. South's initial falsecard of the diamond 9 made the immediate return of the diamond suit extremely improbable, as both the small diamonds in his hand could well be held by the Opening leader. If they were, a diamond return would be suicidal, so far as East and West were concerned. The complete deal, with the bidding, was:

	♠ A 10 9 6 ♡ K 9 5 ◇ K 10 8 7 2 ♣ A
♠ 7 4 2 ♡ J 10 7 6 4 ◇ 6 ♣ J 10 7 4		♠ K 5 ♡ 8 3 2 ◇ A Q J 4 ♣ K Q 8 3
	♠ Q J 8 3 ♡ A Q ◇ 9 5 3 ♣ 9 6 5 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ◇	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Past

TODAY'S QUESTION

Both sides vulnerable. Dealer has bid one heart. You are Second Hand and hold:

♠ A Q 10 9 7 4 ♡ 5 ◇ A K 9 2 ♣ K 5

What do you bid?

Answer: Double. With a hand of this strength, despite the unbalanced distribution, a Double for a Takeout is the correct call. The hand is not quite strong enough for an Overcall in the opponents' bid suit and is far too strong for a simple Overcall; in addition, the Jump Overcall is no longer a strength-showing bid. The only way Fourth Hand can be told of Second Hand's great strength is by means of a Double followed by a simple Takeout or even a Jump Takeout in spades, depending upon the nature of the response to the Double. The Takeout Double is a means of letting partner know that the bidder is attacking and not defending.

Household Hints

The addition of a pinch of ground ginger when mixing cakes will greatly improve their flavor.

To lacquer metal taps, wash the taps well in a strong solution of rock soda and hot water, then polish in the usual way, rubbing them up well. To prepare the lacquer, put into an old saucepan one gill of shellac and make it very hot. Apply the hot shellac to the taps with a camel-hair brush, spreading it evenly over the metal. Allow the lacquer to become cold and hard before drawing water through the taps. This lacquer should last for six months at least.

How to Keep Well

Knowing Basic Cause Aid in Arthritis Cure

Misuse of certain medical words causes confusion. For example, many persons refer to pain in the shoulder, back or legs as "neuritis," when in reality the ailment is rheumatism or arthritis. Perhaps no word is more incorrectly used than arthritis."

Dr. Copeland

Arthritis is the term used for an inflammation of a joint. Any joint of the body, as the finger, wrist, knee or shoulder, may be involved. The inflammation can be traced to a blow, a fall or an injury. It may follow an infection in the teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses or gallbladder.

Contrary to the popular belief, arthritis is curable. Unfortunately, it is too often neglected and allowed to persist for many months or even years. When neglected, the inflammation produces definite alterations in the architecture of the joint. This change prevents normal movements of the joint and every motion is painful.

Chronic arthritis is not easy to cure. This explains the widespread but false belief that arthritis is necessarily a permanent and incurable affliction. Many sufferers disabled by arthritis fail to apply for the proper treatment because they think the ailment is incurable.

I am confident that if every sufferer from arthritis consulted with his doctor as soon as pain appeared, more cures would occur. But as I have often stated, too many a person is prone to make his own diagnosis and resort to treatment not recommended by the family physician.

Bear in mind that before cure can be hoped for, the cause of the arthritis must be determined. This information can only be obtained by a complete physical examination. In addition, an examination of the teeth, tonsils and sinuses is necessary to complete the diagnosis. It is advisable that the teeth, as well as the afflicted joint be x-rayed.

Local applications are of little value if the inflammation of the joint is due to some localized infection. No doubt you know some friend or a member of your own family who religiously applies this, that or the other ointments to a painful shoulder or knee. There may be temporary relief but certainly never permanent cure if the trouble is arthritis.

I receive many inquiries about the so-called "diathermy" treatment for arthritis. In diathermy there is the liberation of heat within the tissues of the body. This is accomplished by an electrical machine with a high frequency current. The heat is liberated by this method deep into the tissues and so it differs from the heat of an electrical pad or hot water bottle.

The diathermy heat stimulates the blood supply of the injured joint. It is extremely beneficial in early cases of arthritis that result from a blow or fall. It should only be used under the supervision of a physician.

AFRICA CRADLE OF MANKIND, BRITON SAYS

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—The first man who fathered the human race was an African, the International Geological Congress was told today, and the "dark continent," not Central Asia, was the cradle of mankind.

After developing into more or less human form somewhere in Africa, man spread from there over the rest of the earth, migrating in waves to Europe and Asia, said Dr. Arthur Smith Woodward, British geologist. Latest evidence, he went on, discounts the theory prevalent among many scientists that man originated in the vicinity of the Gobi Desert or Tibet.

PEBBLES ONLY TOOLS

Human remains of the pleistocene age (the last one or two million years ago) found in Africa are not as primitive as those from Europe and Asia, Sir Arthur explained, but more like modern man. These ancient Africans were less clever, however, for their tools were only chipped pebbles.

Modern man he pictured as coming to Europe as an invader from Africa, driving out Neanderthal man, who had migrated earlier from the African homeland. The invasion was easy because in those days a land bridge crossed the Straits of Gibraltar, and Palestine was well watered and wooded.

The three most famous remains of primitive men so far found—Peking man, or Sinanthropus; Java man, or Pithecanthropus Erectus, and Piltdown man, or Eoanthropus, from England—all were offshoots of the original African man, Sir Arthur said, and early emigrants out of Africa before modern man. They are estimated to have lived 400,000 or 500,000 years ago.

ANCIENTS STRONG

After them as a second wave came Neanderthal man, also a product of the African stock. The Neanderthalers were beetle-browed and clumsy but evidently strong, for in their graves are implements no modern man can wield. They flourished 50,000 years ago with the now-extinct mammoth and wooly rhinoceros.

Sir Arthur said scientists once thought Neanderthal man developed into modern man because his remains show widely different types of skulls and skeletons, indicating the Neanderthal race was undergoing changes in physique, but actually these changes were the forerunners of doom and the Neanderthal race became extinct. He went on:

"So far as can be determined from the fragments available, typical modern man appeared much earlier in Southeast Africa than in Europe or Asia, although he had not advanced further than his backward northern contemporaries in the art of tool-making."

FEAR TWO DEAD IN AUTO PLUNGE

HARRISBURG, July 24.—(AP.)—Plunging over a 75-foot embankment, a roadster last night dived into an abandoned quarry hole, quickly sinking in about 30 feet of water.

Police worked three hours dragging the machine to the surface, and then found no one in the car.

A boy reported hearing screams as the automobile shot over the embankment, apparently out of control while rounding a curve near suburban Pantang. State troopers said they believed at least two persons were drowned.

Police Take Bees For Ride to Save Bridal Party

SAN MATEO, Cal., July 24.—(AP.)—Bees swarmed on a bridal party motor car outside the church where Miss Agnes Clark and Alexander Albert had just been united at a society wedding.

Five policemen and a city Councilman pondered. Finally they hit upon the idea of taking the bees for a ride. One of the officers drove them away from there.

MINE LEADERS' HOMES BOMBED

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., July 24.—(AP.)—The homes of three officials of the Progressive Miners of America were damaged by five bombs exploded in what investigators said they believed was a renewal of the miners' war in Christian County. A guard at one of the homes, Charles Deevers, was shot and wounded when the bombers returned the shots he fired at them.

The bombings followed in quick succession early yesterday at the homes of Jack Stanler, president of Local No. 9 of the union; Leal W. Reese, attorney for the organization, and Andy Newman, director for the state organization.

Members of the Illinois National Guard have been on guard in the county since the attacks began, a few months ago, following trouble between the Progressives and the United Mine Workers' union.

BOMB IN POSTAL MAN'S BREWERY

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—A 10-pound nitroglycerine bomb was found yesterday in the engine room of the Manhattan Brewery. Police said they believed the bomb was placed there because of failure of hoodlums in attempts to "muscle in" distribution rights for the company.

The brewery, owned by a group of Chicago business men headed by Postmaster Arthur Lueder, has been operating a short time. Lueder told police that repeatedly hoodlums had attempted to secure distribution rights and that the company refused them.

The bomb, constructed of an army canister, was found spluttering by a fireman in the engine room. He tossed it into a bucket of water.

SHARKS MENACE BAY SWIMMERS

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 24.—(AP.)—A school of sharks yesterday terrorized the Chesapeake Bay in this vicinity, driving bathers from the water and causing fishermen to give up hope of fishing.

The sharks appeared last Friday and have been seen several times especially at Herring Bay, one of the finest fishing spots in the bay.

'Rattler' Battles Window Likeness

BURNS, Ore., July 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. John Waterhouse, of Hines, heard the warning buzz of a rattlesnake. Investigating, she saw the reptile coiled on a window sill of her home, striking angrily at its reflection in the window. The snake was killed. It had nine rattles.

Tonight

The President Speaks . . .

To the 15,000 Storekeepers of the Pittsburgh District . . .

To their 55,000 employees . . .

To the 2,000 industrialists . . .

To their 155,000 workers . . .

To the 150,000 white collar workers . . .

To the 325,000 housewives of the Pittsburgh District . . .

Tonight at 10:30 p. m. (D.S.T.), President Roosevelt speaks to the American people. The message will be momentous.

Already a blanket code for industry and commerce has been offered to run from September 1st to December 31st, 1933.

The purpose of this code is to start recovery by increasing employment and raising wages. Among its suggestions are:

. . . Abolition of child labor.

. . . Minimum wages.

. . . Maximum working hours.

. . . Rules for fair competition.

The code is temporary. It is a framework. Building upon it, each industry and business will formulate a permanent code—to be approved by the President—for recovery.

There is no special virtue in big type ballyhoo of loyalty to the President and the code. In a crisis like this, loyalty is taken for granted. The whole country will accept and abide by the code. Our salvation depends on it.

In the Pittsburgh district, there are only seven big stores—there are 15,000 small ones. The final code must provide for the 15,000 small shopkeepers, as well as the few big ones. The community cannot prosper unless the small storekeeper can prosper. Even the big store depends for its existence on the survival of thousands of small ones.

The corner drug store, the small grocer, the newspaper—and—candy store, the cigar counter, the shoe store, the small dress shop and men's shop, the five and ten, the food distributors, the hardware and radio and electric goods store—the success of these and others like them is the foundation of a healthy community. A code which fails to protect them defeats the purpose of the National Recovery Act.

Supremely confident that the retailers of the Pittsburgh district will not only sign the letter as a new covenant of business, but will co-operate in its spirit, we appeal to the men and women they employ and to the men and women whom they serve, to work out with us the permanent code of retail selling.

The purpose is clear: to increase employment and wages. The methods are still uncertain. Led by a President not afraid of change, America is engaged in a vast experiment—an experiment that we must make in order to restore industrial health to our country.

It is a time of uncertainty—it is also a time for faith.

BANDIT, WIFE SHOT DOWN BY POSSE

International News Service.

DEXTER, Ia., July 24.—Three persons suffered from gunshot wounds today as a manhunt closed in on a band of fugitives described by officers as members of the Barrow gang.

Melvin Barrow, 31, on of the bandits sought in connection with the murder of two Joplin (Mo.) peace officers, was believed fatally injured when the fugitives and officers exchanged gunfire here this morning after a posse which had followed them halfway across the state encircled them in a wooded tract near here.

Deputy Sheriff C. C. (Rags) Riley, of Des Moines, was shot in the head during the fray. He was reported not seriously hurt.

Barrow's wife, slightly hurt in the battle, forsook an opportunity to escape that was grasped by three other fugitives and stayed by the side of her husband. Barrow and his wife were arrested.

The other members of the gang, two men and a woman, officers reported, eluded the posse, running across a field, climbing into an auto and driving toward Redfield.

They abandoned the stolen car near Redfield in preference for another auto.

Civil War Vet Wills Horse to Daughter

ELLENVILLE, N. Y.—Cornelius Countryman, a Civil War veteran, took great care before he died to provide for his horse. His will, admitted to probate, gives the horse to his daughter with the stipulation that if she disposes of it, it "be given to someone who will provide food and good care, as I have always given it."

Hauled up 40 Feet With Sling of Hay

MANCHESTER, Ia., July 24.—(AP.)—A few moments passed as slowly as years for James Havens, farmer, as he swung suspended head downward from a hay rope at a height of 40 feet with only the tricky catch of a hay sling holding him to life.

His foot had become entangled in the rope as he stood on a load of hay. His son failed to hear his cries and he was hoisted to the peak of the barn gable, in through the open door, and bounced neatly onto a pile of hay, unhurt.

GLIDER CRACKS, HALLER JUMPS

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 24.—August C. Haller, treasurer of the Pittsburgh Aero Club, was recovering today from slight injuries sustained when he was forced to make a parachute jump from his glider yesterday.

Mr. Haller

He was being towed by an airplane in an "aerial train" with two other gliders when a wing of his motorless ship gave way as he was 1000 feet above the city. The glider was demolished.

Although his parachute failed to open until he was within 100 feet of the ground, Haller landed in a field on the outskirts of the city. He suffered cuts and bruises. He is believed to be the second man to make a forced jump from a glider. Prof. R. E. Franklin, of the University of Michigan, made a parachute jump from a glider three years ago.

Haller's towing plane was piloted by Gardner C. Nagle, of Detroit, and the two other gliders were flown by Jack O'Meara of New York, and Martin Schempp, of Pittsburgh.

ELY TO ENTER NEW MATCH

LONDON, July 24.—(INS.)—Ely Culbertson's American contract bridge team, which last week won the Charles M. Schwab trophy in a tournament with a team of British experts, today prepared for another British match of 120 boards to begin Friday.

Their opponents will be headed by Capt. Lindsay Mundy, who accepted a challenge by Culbertson. Capt. Mundy will wager 900 pounds (about $4,230 at current rate) against a bet of 1,350 pounds (about $6,345) by Culbertson.

TRUNK YIELDS MAN'S BODY

GARY, Ind., July 24.—(AP.)—Police of Chicago were called in by Indiana authorities in an effort to identify the body of a man almost cremated in a blazing trunk, but the mystery remained unsolved today.

Saturated with oil, the trunk bearing the body was found Saturday by Frank Kohlscheen on his farm five miles south of Cook, Ind. It was ablaze and the fire had spread to a wheat stack.

Later the body was removed to Lowell, Ind., where Deputy Coroner Franklin Petrie said the victim was about 23 years old and had been killed by a bullet wound in the head.

Mackrell Must Fight Engelsberg Charges

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields.

Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, as a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, will have to combat not only Major John S. Herron, Councilman P. J. McArdle and perhaps James F. Malone, but the charges of a man who is not in the official picture.

That man is Joe Engelsberg, Hill district character, who in his suit against Mackrell for $31,350, a sum allegedly spent by Engelsberg in the mayoralty campaign of Mackrell of 1921, declared that he and Mackrell became "co-partners in a certain business enterprise." In a subsequent statement, Engelsberg said that he had made it possible for Mackrell to "make large sums of money in business with me."

Mr. Mackrell in a reply filed in court enters a sweeping denial of any obligation connected with the $31,350, and in a newspaper interview some time ago said he "had no association with Engelsberg for many years, and that the present action is a political plot.

Expect Mackrell To Give Answer

The friends of Mr. Mackrell as well as his enemies will expect him to meet on the stump not only the flat charges involved in the suit but the insinuations of Engelsberg, whose business at one time was of such a nature that he was convicted and served time in jail, long after he says he was associated with Mr. Mackrell. Not much time can elapse before Mr. Mackrell will be expected to say something about this. An explanation should antedate anything he has to tell the public about his ideas for conducting the municipality. If the explanation is convincing it will not have to be made often, maybe only once.

As a matter of fact, the money involved is comparatively beside the point, though $31,350 is important money even in the era of the Roosevelt new deal and recovery, or under the regime of any other deal. The incident surrounding the payment of the money is not of great moment.

If Mr. Mackrell never made any money out of a "business enterprise" dating from July of 1920, in association with Engelsberg he should be in a position to convince the public of that fact in justice to his own campaign and the friends whom he will expect to support him, and the general public which cannot know by direct contact the character of the men who endeavor to represent it in public life.

Must Clear Charge To Win Support

Unless and until he does dissipate this charge he must expect to feel its riccocheting effect, for it will be leveled against him.

Perhaps Mr. Mackrell realizes this. His candidacy appears to support this belief. More than likely it was discussed before he determined to become a candidate. Certainly unless he is able to blow the whole affair out of the water he must have realized that any effort to wrest the city administration from Mayor John S. Herron because of influence which Senator James J. Coyne is assumed to wield over the Mayor, would be extremely difficult.

If there was an association, and if it was broken off many years ago, Mr. Mackrell should go thoroughly into the subject, explain when it was broken off, and why, all the surrounding circumstances. If there never was an association beyond the normal association of politics then the task of clarification can become easier.

In politics, no man can be sure that his support is coming solely from the lily white and the purists. Few campaigns have been fought without candidates, themselves clean, having the assistance of followers whose own records are not spotless.

That is true of presidential campaigns as well as mayoralty campaigns. It was true of both presidential candidates in 1932. It was true of all three mayoralty candidates in the last Pittsburgh primary of 1929.

Racketeers Aid Every Campaign

The thing which can be expected of a candidate, however, is that he can sincerely and resolutely assure the voters that he has accepted knowingly no improper assistance from the tarred, and additionally and of extreme importance, that he has pledged no preferment for any assistance given him from such sources.

Racketeers get into every campaign. Even though some expect nothing from the man they back, they may be actuated by a desire to get revenge on some competitor who has reason to feel he will be benefited by the opposition candidate. It is all a part of that side of politics which is sordid, selfish and venal, and is inescapable because of the manner in which we go about choosing our government.

There can be a change, of course, if successful candidates will stamp out all racketeers, those who support them and those who oppose them. That is the kind of government that Pittsburgh as well as the remainder of the country needs and wants, and which it will expect from whoever is the Mayor.

Every candidate, Mr. Mackrell, Mayor Herron, Mr. Malone or Councilman McArdle, will be questioned on this score, not only by opponents, but by citizens who are interested in decency in government.

INDICTED PAIR ON RELIEF LIST

Two names that appeared in the list of those indicted on vote fraud charges were on a city relief payroll today.

Among 350 laborers named to begin work this morning on unemployment relief projects were Martin J. Kenavy, 3326 Hardie place, and Walter Joyce, 508 Cato street, both residents of the Fourth Ward—Senator James J. Coyne's home ward.

The laborers will get their pay from the $350,000 fund City Council set up to provide work relief. They are named by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang.

The names of Kenavy and Joyce were among those indicted by the federal grand jury in its investigation of vote fraud charges in the Thirty-second, Thirtieth and Thirty-fourth Congressional districts. They were election inspectors in the Sixteenth District, Fourth Ward.

Two women also were enrolled as "laborers" among those who were to go to work today on relief projects. Director Lang explained they would do clerical work, although they must be enrolled as laborers.

GIRL, ESCORT FOUND SLAIN

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 24.—(INS.)—A. S. Michaels, 31, electrician, and Miss Geneva Cantrell, 20, of Oklahoma, were found shot to death today in North Fort Worth.

The girl's body had been tossed behind a tree about 40 feet from the car. Michael's body was at a fence near his automobile. He had been shot in the back of the head and the girl had been shot behind the left ear.

The attack on the couple occurred in what is known as "Crime Valley" because of the bloody events which have occurred there.

Farmers Threaten Milk Strike in N. Y.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 24.—(AP.)—A flat demand that farmers receive 45 per cent of the retail price of milk was laid before the New York Milk Control Board today by Albert Woodhead, of Rochester, who said he spoke for 55,000 dairymen. He threatened a state-wide strike on August 1 unless the demands are met.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

TRUCKEE, Cal., July 24.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, at midnight Saturday we met all the governors at the line. Fired a 19-gun salute (governers' salute used to be 17, but Mr. Roosevelt, on account of being a governor himself, raised 'em two guns). Took quite a while because we only had one cannon. We were able to wake everybody up but Gov. Parks, of Missouri.

Will Rogers

Yesterday they all planted a tree at Lake Tahoe, so we at least got 'em working for the first time since they been in office. It's the first reforestation camp for governors.

It will just about be the Democrats' luck to plant trees all over the country, and about the time they are big enough to harvest, the Republicans will be back in. Or is that too early? Yours,

WILL.

MAN CONFESSES CHOKING GIRL

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 24.—(AP.)—Police today arrested William Eugene Rittenberry, 47, superintendent of the apartment house where Miss Golden Keith, 35, was found strangled to death early this morning, and announced he had confessed.

The woman, employed as an elevator operator in the building, was found in the basement of the apartment building, a sash cord tied tightly around her neck and a piece of canvas lyong over her body.

The purported confession of Rittenberry was to the effect he had had a love affair with Miss Keith and was afraid she would tell his wife. Police said he confessed strangling her in the boiler room late Saturday night.

'FOXIE' DONATES TO SLEUTHS

Puncher-Proof Foxie took eight gumbands off the bundle today and set 'em up for the boys in the Detective Bureau.

Puncher-Proof Foxie bought 13 mushball caps for the sleuths' mushball team, no kidding.

The self-styled beer baron of the east, who is known also as Harry M. Fox, dropped down to the bureau to take care of a little matter—a little matter of $7.50 which the Reading police wanted for traffic tags. Said he:

"I am so pleased with the courteous treatment accorded me by the detectives of Pittsburgh that I am in a mood to do something for the boys. Inasmuch as I am a great admirer of mushball, I will go for 13 caps. How's that kid?"

Foxie was accompanied by his brother-in-law, Henry (Young Eppy) Epstein.

SUES EX-WIFE FOR FURNITURE

Replevin proceedings to obtain furniture from his former wife, Mrs. Mary Jackson Walker, were brought today in Common Pleas Court for John L. Walker, prominent in local business circles.

Walker was granted a divorce on grounds of indignity and cruelty in June, 1930. After it had been sustained in Superior Court this year, Mrs. Walker refused to turn over his possessions to her former husband, it is claimed. The couple lived in Richland lane.

6 More Breweries Granted Licenses

HARRISBURG, July 24.—(INS.)—Six additional brewery permits have been granted, the State Alcohol Permit Board today announced.

Three of the permits were granted to the Duquesne Brewing Company for plants in Pittsburgh, Carnegie and Stowe Township, Allegheny County. A permit also was issued to the Pittsburgh Brewing Company.

$40,000 in Savings Burn With Shack

SALISBURY, Md. — Americus Baker saved all his life, which was a considerable time, as he is 80. He didn't believe much in banks, he said. So his money, amounting to $40,000, was stored in old cans and boxes around his little shack near here.

Friends Weep at Rites For Ex-Mayor Kline

City Hall Closed During Funeral Of Chieftain

Amid many floral tributes, the body of former Mayor Charles H. Kline lay in state for the last few hours today in an East End funeral parlor, where the funeral services were held this afternoon.

All offices in City Hall were closed at noon out of respect to the former Mayor. Coucil adjourned its meeting after paying tribute.

Old friends, old political aides and many others filed past the bier yesterday. There were tears as some who followed the former Mayor in his political career mourned him.

Weeping, Peter P. Walsh, superintendent of police during Mr. Kline's regime, said:

"It was a shock. He was a wonderful friend of mine for more than 30 years—a man full of sympathy and always ready to see what he could do for unfortunates."

SIMPLE CEREMONIES

The bronze casket was closed and the former Mayor laid to rest in Allegheny Cemetery following services in the T. B. Moreland funeral home, North Highland avenue and Rippey street.

Among the profusion of flowers were the tributes of former Gov. John S. Fisher, police and firemen, Knights Templar, members of the former Kline political organization and city bureaus and departments.

OFFICIALS AT BIER

The line that passed the bier yesterday and today included numerous city officials. City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt and Dr. S. H. Johnson, brother-in-law of the former Mayor, were in constant attendance. Mrs. Kline rested in an ante-room.

The pall bearers included, former Judge Stephen Stone, Attorney Edward G. Coll, Attorney Rex Dun, Robert Ruffner, Attorney H. Fred Mercer, Dr. William O'Neil Sherman, Jesse Stewart and Mr. Waldschmidt.

COAL PRICES UP 25 CENTS

Reflecting a sharp increase in demand in anticipation of higher prices, expected to result from the wage increases to be applied when the coal trade adopts a code under the provisions of the Industrial Recovery Act, prices for domestic sizes of coal have increased 25 cents a ton in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh Coal Company is now quoting $3.50 a ton at the curb in lots of two tons or more.

he boom in domestic demand has followed predictions in the coal trade that advances of $1 to $2 a ton may take place when the code, with its minimum wage scales and maximum working hours, is put into operation.

CLEVELAND AID PLEA SPURNED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—The administration today put the question of additional federal relief funds for Cleveland up to the Ohio Legislature, Harry L. Hopkins notifying a group of businessmen from there that he could do nothing for them until the Legislature acts in a helpful manner.

A committee of Cleveland officials and relief workers headed by Adjt. Gen. F. D. Henderson, Mayor Ray T. Miller and Newton D. Baker asked Hopkins, relief administrator, to set aside his policy and assist Cleveland in caring for its unemployed during August and September.

They drew a picture of 38,000 families needing immediate assistance and of a city that is unable to sell its bonds to provide relief. Hopkins said:

"I am thoroughly sympathetic with the situation, but I cannot deal with the city of Cleveland. The law requires that I deal with the states. I told the Ohio Legislature when it was in session what I would do. I have been told from sources in which I have the greatest confidence that one of the reasons the Legislature did nothing was that they thought I was bluffing."

'DEAD' INFANT REVIVED

PASADENA, Cal., July 24.—(AP.)—The case of an 11-months-old baby, revived five minutes after its heart had stopped beating and kept alive six days, was reported here today.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Maynard Dickinson, of Pasadena, died beyond revival yesterday.

Six days ago the child "died" in the Pasadena Hospital. Attending physicians said its heart had ceased beating and that no pulse or other sign of life was noted for five more minutes.

Dr. John S. Hibben obtained permission of the parents for an attempt to revive the infant, a victim of lead poisoning from a newly painted crib, complicated by whooping cough.

Dr. Hibben then injected adrenalin into the heart, which thus was started again, and the child was placed in a respirator. In this, life was maintained for six days, but the child's poison-deteriorated system would not allow it to recover, physicians said.

Nickel Plungers Just Will Take Their High Dives

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Wall street calls the roll this morning with the public absent but accounted for.

It went overboard again at the deep end. Clipped for a neat and effervescent billion dollars of the realm.

We thought that 1929 was a lesson that would be remembered until Gabriel joined the philharmonic orchestra.

But, in less than four stringy years, the five-and-ten plungers are back again. You can't keep them out.

We agree with President Roosevelt's desire to separate the lambs from the goats and both from the butchers.

But, close the door and they come through the windows. Close the windows and they come through the doors. Close everything and they get you on the telephone.

Girl Drowns as Father Brings New Baby Home

Death had cast its somber shadow over Wendell Kirch, Milltown gas well driller, and his motherless brood of nine children for the second time in two months today.

On May 27 the wife and mother, Mrs. Margaret L. Kirch, died in Columbia Hospital three days after their tenth baby, Beverly Ann, was born.

Yesterday the father went to the hospital and brought the baby home.

On arrival he learned his 3-year-old daughter, Margaret her mother's namesake, had been drowned in a pool formed by a nearby dam of the Peoples Natural Gas Company, by whom he is employed.

The child, in a bathing suit, had wandered into the pool unnoticed. Helen Alexander, 10, a neighbor, stumbled over the body while wading. Resuscitation efforts were unavailing.

Today little Margaret, dressed in pink silk, lay, like a large doll, on the couch from which the mother was buried.

Other children in addition to the baby are Ruth, 13; Gerald, 11; Mae, 10; Dorothy, 9; Edna, 8; Jimmy, 5, and Wendell, Jr., 4.

RESORT BOSS SHOOTS IT OUT WITH THUGS, SAVES $1,000

GUNMEN FLEE PURSUED BY CAMPERS

Lott Crawford still has his safe containing $1,000 today after a gun battle in melodrama fashion with three bandits.

Crawford was awakened by noises at his resort at Paris Lake, Upper St. Clair Township, early yesterday morning. On going to investigate, a shot wizzed past his head. He ducked behind an empty beer barrel and "shot it out" with three men attempting to carry away the safe.

After 20 shots were exchanged the bandits fled through a window into a car parked nearby.

Attempts of campers, aroused by the shots, to catch the fleeing men were futile.

Police today sought traces of three coatless bandits who last night held up and robbed Harry Linn, of West Montgomery avenue, motorman of a Perrysville street car, when it halted at Ivory stop, Ross Township.

The robbers escaped with $45, Linn told the police.

Six passengers witnessed the robbery.

BRITISH ARTIST WINS DIVORCE

NEW YORK, July 24.—(Universal.)—Douglas Chandor, British portrait painter, has won his action to divorce Pamela, his wife, it was revealed with the signing, by Supreme Court Justice Cohn, of an interlocutory decree.

Chandor charged his wife with misconduct with the Hon. Douglas Beauchamp, married son of a baronet, at the Chandor manor house in Kent, England.

One witness, Reeves Lewenthal, testified that one night in July, 1932, the antique electric light equipment of the Chandor mansion went wrong, and that while Lewenthal was trying to fix it Beauchamp emerged from Mrs. Chandor's boudoir in his pajamas to assist.

Mrs. Lewenthal testified:

"Mrs. Chandor confided to me the morning after this episode that she had been living with Beauchamp for two years."

The decree gives the artist custody of Jill, his 12-year-old daughter, once pronounced by Queen Mary one of the most beautiful children in England.

It was signed by all the children.

The sprinkler now is turned on daily from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

McGovern and Sprigle Labor to Speed Fair

Show Workman How In Effort to Hurry Construction

Work on the buildings for the Allegheny County Fair was not progressing fast enough to suit County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, so, with Director of Supplies Ray Sprigle, he is taking an active part in the construction.

While most of their activities consist of inspecting, seeing that materials arrive, or directing some of the work, they often show the laborers how to perform the tasks at hand. When the occasion arises, they don overalls and sombreros and actually do the work as they think it should be done.

Regarding the fair, McGovern is enthusiastic. He said:

"This is the first fair in the history of the county and it is absolutely for the public. No admission will be charged, no advertising will be on any of the programs and no concessions will be handed out."

The fair will be held August 31, September 1 and 2 at South Park.

UTILITY STOCK CLEANUP NEAR

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(Universal.)—The reorganized Federal Power Commission shortly will issue decisions squeezing some of the "water" out of the capital of hydro-electric companies, it is learned.

Meanwhile, Chairman Frank R. McNinch announced plans have been made to safeguard the companies' future security issues to the limit of the commission's jurisdiction. Steps will be taken to prevent inflated issues where they may be proposed, and to keep new financing in line with actual investment in plants as determined by the commission.

The forthcoming decisions, it is understood, will order the elimination of "padding" and excessive holding company fees from the claimed investment in plants already built. They will fix base costs, tending to curb future security issues and the rates charged consumers.

Costs aggregating hundreds of millions remain to be determined finally, due to extensive "padding" of claims and failure to act upon them in the early days of the water power law.

ACCUSE MOTHER OF LAWMAKER

SEATTLE, July 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, mother of Congressman Marion Zioncheck, was charged with kidnaping her 12-year-old granddaughter, Dorothy Kneeland, in a warrant sworn out yesterday by C. V. Kneeland, her son-in-law and the child's father.

The child disappeared from the home of friends in Bremerton Friday, Kneeland said. Former Supreme Court Justice Adam Beeler, who acted for Kneeland in obtaining the warrant, said Mrs. Zioncheck had taken the child to Canada.

The girl's mother died three years ago, after she had obtained an interlocutory decree of divorce and custody of the child, and was about to apply for her final decree.

Later, in a bitterly-fought action in Superior Court, the father won the custody of his daughter from the grandmother. The decision was upheld in December, 1930, by the State Supreme Court.

Police went to the Briggs home at Allison Hollow to investigate neighbors' reports and took the boy to a welfare agency. Police said he told officials that he had nothing to eat and no one for company except a 'coon dog.

STORMS, HEAT GREET GUARDS IN CAMP

MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—Greeted on their arrival in camp by a heavy downpour of rain, and broiled yesterday by a scorching sun, 5,000 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen put their canvas houses in order and sought the shade of their tents before starting two weeks' drill.

The hot sun dried up most of the mud which formed at the Indiantown Gap camp of the 107th Field Artillery. The 111th and 112th Infantry and 103d Engineers, which moved in at Mt. Gretna, had as much rain as the other troops, but not so much mud.

After regimental church services yesterday, most of the citizen soldiers had the day off. Many at Mt. Gretna headed for the cooling waters of the lake nearby.

In connection with the 111th's religious service, the Rev. William Pugh, chaplain, conducted a memorial for men of the regiment who died in the past year.

Nine planes of the 103rd Observation Squadron flew to Buffalo and back with Maj. Gen. Edward C. Shannon, 28th Division commander; Col. Daniel Nolan, senior Regular Army instructor, and Lieut. Commander Franklin Haller, of Philadelphia, assistant chief of staff of the 28th Division.

FREED STRIKERS GO BACK TO PICKET LINE

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—(AP.)—Forty-five men and 25 women, arrested today after refusing to leave the sidewalk in front of a mill they were picketing, were discharged by a magistrate and went back to their places.

Included in the group taken into custody in front of the Cambria Silk Hosiery Company were Alexander McKeown, president, and William M. Leader, vice president, of a local branch of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers.

They were released after a discussion between the magistrate, police officials and McKeown. McKeown refused to agree to a police suggestion that pickets be limited to 12, declaring the United States Supreme Court had upheld a decision of unrestricted picketing.

More than 300 workers at Cambria plant were locked out a week ago, after an attempt had been made to unionize the plant.

The strike at the Walburton hosiery mills, where frequent disorders occurred last week, was ended over the week-end when union officials and company officers reached an agreement.

FREE RENT OFFERED

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania is shown by a Labor Department survey to be one of only two important shirt-manufacturing states to use child labor and to have paid half its women workers from $2 to $6 during a busy week this summer.

The median weekly wage of all women workers was found to be $6. Lower medians were reported for only Delaware and Maryland. The other state to use child labor is Connecticut, the report said.

The highest median of any factory in Pennsylvania was $9; the lowest, $2.

Taking cognizance of the industry's migration into Pennsylvania from New York, the report described it as "partly to escape labor troubles, partly to seek cheaper labor and partly to take advantage of lower rents and even rent-free buildings offered by chambers of commerce."

TROOPERS CALLED OUT

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., July 24.—(AP.)—At a conference in the home of Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner yesterday, the Sheriff said an agreement was reached that the Sheriff will turn over to State Police complete charge of the strike situation at the Blue Moon Hosiery Company plant at Croydon.

The agreement is about the same as that made for Lansdale, where gas and smoke bombs and a shooting climaxed a week of bitter strife between strikers, non-strikers and police last week.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Legless Factory Owner Defies Flood and Fire

MT. STERLING, O., July 24.—(AP.)—William E. Arbogast's legs—like a chorus girl's—are his fortune.

Out of a railway accident that put him on artificial limbs 32 years ago he has reared a business which, though washed away once by a disastrous flood in 1913 and destroyed a second time the other day by fire, still grows hardily on. He says, philosophically:

"Every piece of bad luck is just one more wiped off my list."

His new willow wood and polo ball factory is planned to be fireproof. He chuckles:

"It's like San Francisco after the fire. We're rebuilding bigger and better than ever."

In 1901 he lost both his legs at Newark, O., and spent 212 days in a hospital. When released, he became a salesman for an artificial limb factory.

A few years later, with $500, he started a plant to cut and season willow for use in making artificial legs.

Business grew and a couple of years later he began boring out the rough stumps for wooden legs and arms and feet. Then he began manufacturing polo balls, made of willow and coated with heavy white enamel.

RIOT GUNS ROUT MAIN TAPPERS

A crowd of more than 50 men attempting to tap gas mains in Catherine street, McKees Rocks, was dispersed while digging up the street when county detectives threatened to use riot guns yesterday.

McKees Rocks police called county detectives when their efforts to stop the digging were of no avail.

The crowd told county detectives they were searching for a point to tap the main to connect gas with a nearby house where the Philadelphia Company had shut off service earlier in the day.

CHINESE WAR SCARE LULLS

PEIPING, July 24.—(AP.)—Increasing optimism prevailed today concerning the tense situation in Chahar province and the threatened war between forces of the Nanking national government and the weary but patriotic followers of the independent Chinese general, Feng Yu-Hsiang.

Although the opposing armies—more than 50,000 nationals and Feng's "people's anti-Japanese army"—were but five miles apart today there was no sign of hostilities.

Feng's determination to fight and the public's support of his cause seemed to have cooled, and the leader appeared to be more inclined to negotiate for peace.

VICE WRECKING CITY, PASTOR CHARGES

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 24.—Renewing his campaign against vice and the "vicious political machine that feeds on it," the Rev. Dr. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, Pittsburgh, spoke yesterday at union services in the Charleroi Christian Church.

He declared that if the people can be made to sense the viciousness of the situation in Pittsburgh they will act to correct it. He said:

"With vice conditions as they are in Pittsburgh, it is hard, if not impossible, to maintain a robust and virile Christian citizenry. There are some sections of Pittsburgh as rotten as can be, but even these, in my judgment, can be cleaned up when the people want it done badly enough."

He cited some of the many cases that have come to his attention and are partially responsible for his activity. Speaking of one case, he said:

"The other day a mother wrote me that the brothel had her girl. She mentioned the names of some operators who she believed were involved. She named some places and then said, 'My God! can't something be done to save my girl?'"

He also pointed out that residents and property owners are seeking relief from the conditions because of the detrimental effect on property values. He declared:

"I have it on pretty good authority that certain business firms of the North Side would move out tomorrow, if it were at all possible, simply because of the vice conditions.

"Think of it, legitimate business and decent people actually being driven out of a section of our city that not so long ago was known for its beautiful parks, attractive churches, splendid homes and schools, in addition to all the ordinary benefits of a modern city."

He attacked the police department for its indifference to conditions which he claimed are known to them and for their keen attention to petty disturbances while major conditions are unchecked.

SPORT COMMENT

Fall of Davis Cup Team. Cohan Ranks Pitchers.
Day of Woe for Bucs. Many Dukes Coaching.
High Rating on Chapman. Primo Seen as Lasting.

TOO MUCH TENNIS AMERICAN BARRIER

THE MOST COMPLETE rout ever suffered by the United States tennis forces in their annual efforts to recover the Davis Cup, which France took away in 1927, was chronicled when England swept four out of five matches to qualify for the challenge round against the French and to eliminate this country at the last hurdle in the inter-zone final. In only one other year since the trophy left these shores did the American players fail to reach the challenge round. That was in 1931, and England was the stumbling block on that occasion also, but that was not nearly such a crushing defeat as the one of 1933. In view of the dope that England would be an easier opponent than Australia, with Jack Crawford, fandom wonders what would have happened to the Americans if they had been required to play the Anzacs.

Ellsworth Vines

There is nothing to do but admit that the better team won and to give English racqueters full credit for a convincing victory won on their merits. They were known to have a well-balanced team, and they are pretty certain to make plenty of trouble for France starting next Friday, if they do not actually lift the cup. But that they are as greatly superior to a normal American team as the scores in sets and matches in the inter-zone final would appear to indicate, is difficult to believe.

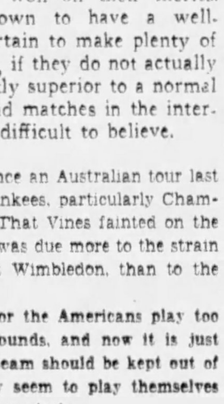
PLAYING PRACTICALLY ALL year since an Australian tour last winter, there is hardly a doubt that the Yankees, particularly Champion Ellsworth Vines, were over-tennised. That Vines fainted on the courts in the closing set yesterday probably was due more to the strain of playing all summer, with the climax at Wimbledon, than to the strain of playing against England alone.

It has been contended for years that for the Americans play too much tennis before the final Davis Cup rounds, and now it is just about certain. Members of the Davis Cup team should be kept out of the Wimbledon tournament at least. They seem to play themselves out in that competition just before the big cup tests.

SOMETHING LIKE THOSE tennis effects were to be noted in the sorry experience of the Pirates in baseball yesterday, when they took two on the chin in quick succession in the Cincinnati double-header. They may have put so much into their efforts to drag down the Giants in the six-game series last week, which ended in an even break, that they didn't have enough left to cope with the lowly Reds. Similar costly reactions last year and in other seasons can be recalled readily.

Whatever the cause, Sunday was the most disastrous day of the present campaign for the Bucs. Every other club among the first-division possibilities (in fact every other club in the league except the Phils) gained on them—the Giants by a game and a half, the Cubs by two games, and the Braves and Cardinals by one game each. As a result, the Pirates not only have slipped to a point five and half games behind the leaders (it's seven games in the "Lost" column), but they are only two games above fourth place and only two and a half above fifth position. However, the future isn't hopeless. The Gibsons have 62 games more to play, and much can happen in that time.

TOM CLARKE, veteran catcher and now coach of the Giants, who was here with the Terrymen last week, says the day of free swingers in the National League is over. "The fellows who grip the end of the bat and swing from their heels simply are out of luck with the present ball," Clarke remarked. "It has a punk sound when hit and does not carry as far as formerly. My advice to batters who are wondering why their averages are shrinking is to choke the bat and just snap at the ball. Go back to forearm hitting and keep the shoulders out of it. Meet the ball and push it through for place hits. This season in the National League is a throwback to the kind of games played 20 or 25 years ago. The batters should cope with the situation accordingly and forget about trying to drive the ball out of the lot"



Ben Chapman

IN THE OPINION of Joe McCarthy, Ben Chapman can't miss becoming the greatest ball player in the American League in another year. The Yankee manager says his crack outfielder has everything that goes to make the perfect player—youth and physique, ambition and eagerness, speed and judgment, style and genius. Joe declares Ben will have only himself to blame if he doesn't reach the top.

McCarthy's remarks about Chapman meet with the enthusiastic approval of such a good judge of ball players as George M. Cohan, who has been watching big leaguers since Yankee Doodle was a kid. "Chapman is the greatest player in the American League right now, with the makings of another Ty Cobb," Cohan declares. "He has the speed and audacity of the old type of player. His fielding, hitting and general deportment on the field all mark him out above the rest. Better than Simmons? Why, certainly! Simmons is moving out. This boy is coming in."

COHAN PRONOUNCES HAL SCHUMACHER the best pitcher he has seen this year, but says he doesn't like comparisons between Schumacher and Christy Mathewson. "There can't be a second Matty," he insists. "When Big Six passed from his peak they lost the mould.

"In fact, I dislike comparisons between Matty and any other pitcher, Walter Johnson included," Cohan adds. "Matty was in a class by himself. Easy grace, studied technique, class all over. But I am taking nothing away from Schumacher." Pittsburgh fans will

PIRATES LOSE DOUBLE BILL TO REDS

There wasn't much pepper to the Pirates today as they rested after the strenuous fights of the past week. The Buccos were feeling quite pert Saturday night on top of their great dual fight with the Giants which brought an even break, but in the intervening 36 hours they had made a round trip to Cincinnati, where Lady Luck treated them with the utmost contempt.

The two defeats sustained by the Gibson Clan at the home of the Reds yesterday carried a pronounced sting. As they bit the dust in both ends of the double-decker the Giants and Cubs were victorious, the leaders pulling far in front of the Pittsburghers. The Pirates are five and one-half games behind the league leaders as August peers over the horizon.

MEET CUBS NEXT

There is no contest at Forbes Field today, but the Cubs and Pirates will make the welkin ring tomorrow with a doubleheader. The Bruins also will be the attraction on Wednesday and Thursday when single games are scheduled.

Hazen Cuyler is back in the Chicago lineup and playing great ball. The Bears have been riding the high spots for three weeks and will be hard to stop.

The Buccos apparently were a worn-out crew in losing two to the Reds. Red Lucas held them to six hits as the Bushmen copped the opener, 6 to 1. The second contest was tied at 4 all in the seventh when a storm held up play for 35 minutes. George Grantham's pinch double had deadlocked the battle just before the rain fell and when the battle resumed, the Reds picked up two more runs in the inning to win, 6 to 4.

Bill Swift was outpitched by Lucas in the early fight. The Rhinelanders hopped on Swift for four runs and six hits in the second and Lucas put on full steam to carry his club to the ultimate success.

BUC LINEUP SWITCHED

With Eppa Jeppa Rixey assigned to face the Buccos in the second, Manager Gibson worked a switch in his lineup, L. Waner going to the bench and Comorosky taking Lloyd's place. Arky Vaughan was moved into the cleanup position instead of Pie Traynor. The idea was good, but it didn't mean a thing in the gross result.

Vaughan drove in a run with two out in the first inning of the nightcap, but the Reds nicked Leon Chagnon for four hits and two counters in the second. Vaughan's triple led to another Pirate run in the fourth and Finney worked his way around for another tally in the fifth which he pried off with a single.

Chagnon was moving along fine until the seventh, when the Reds tied up the contest. When play was resumed, Grantham was on second with one out and Harris replaced Chagnon. Hafey cracked out his fifth two-bagger of the day at the expense of Harris and Grantham tallied. Rice's double scored Hafey.

Fox Chapel, Veterans Win Polo Contests

The Fox Chapel and Charleroi Veteran polo teams turned in triumphs in yesterday's local polo tilts.

At Fox Chapel, the home team walloped Chartiers Heights, 10 to 1, with Madden leading the attack for the victors with six goals.

Braves Spend Two Open Dates Here

Bill McKechnie and his up-and-coming Boston Braves are unexpected guests of the city. The Braves played a double-header in St. Louis yesterday. With two open dates on their card they decided to rest in Pittsburgh. They will depart Wednesday morning for Harrisburg, where they will show in an exhibition game Wednesday afternoon. The Harrisburg club, of the NYP League, is controlled by the Braves.

The Boston team will move on to Philadelphia Thursday to open a series with the Phillies.

U. S. Stars Win In Swedish Meet

SUNDSVALL, Sweden, July 24.—(AP.)—America's touring track and field stars journeyed to this Northern Swedish city of 30,000 today and made a clean sweep of every event against the local athletic club.

Glenn Cunningham, Kansas middle distance star, turned in another fine performance as he won the 800 meters in 1:57.8.

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette sprinter, accounted for the 100-meter dash in 10.8 seconds, while Johnny Morris, Louisiana timber-topper, won the 110-meter high hurdles in 15.8 seconds.

'SECOND MATTY' LABEL GIVEN HUBBELL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Perhaps that's the best way to describe Southpaw Carl Hubbell, modest slab ace of the Giants, who is making stirring history as the New Yorkers stage their gripping fight for the National League pennant.

Hubbell's so-called "screw ball," which bewilders all the right-hand batters of the league, actually is a fadeway pitch of the type that Matty threw to earn his fame.

CALLED "BUTTERFLY"

Pie Traynor, of the Pirates, and other star batters refer to the pitch as a "butterfly." It comes up to the plate and then hesitates and seems to go back before it breaks, and it has most of the batters stepping forward and swinging ahead of the ball.

Of frail build, Hubbell is one of the smoothest-working pitchers in baseball. He hurls with little apparent effort.

The hero of an 18-inning shutout over the Cardinals, among other great feats, Hubbell says he throws his "screwball" with the same grip he uses on his fast balls and curves, elaborating:

"I do not employ any unusual grip of the fingers to throw my pitch. I know some pitchers who double up their fingers to throw knuckle balls and the like, but I hold the sphere just as I do when I serve other pitches. The fadeaway dip is made possible by the twist of the wrist as the ball is delivered."

18-INNING GAME EASY

Hubbell divulged that he felt no serious effects of his 18-inning ordeal. He said:

"The few days immediately following the long grind found

BILL CAMPBELL

Davies is the Duquesne University basketball coach and Campbell is mentor of the Homestead High School passers. This is their off-season and they are doing a bit of studying up on history. Here we find them on the Dukes' campus absorbed in a perusal of "World History Since 1918." They're surprised not to find anything in the book about some of their strenuous basketball battles during that period. To them, at least, there was plenty of drama in the frays.

LEGION NINES CLASH TODAY

The South Hills American Legion Junior baseball team, which won the Allegheny County championship without the loss of a game, met Uniontown for the Southwestern Pennsylvania laurels in the National Legion Junior tourney at Greensburg this afternoon.

The winner will meet the winner of the Sharon-Butler fray also carded early this week, for the Western Pennsylvania championship at Forbes Field Thursday evening. The contestants and members of other legion teams able to attend are to be guests of William E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates, at the Bucs' game with the Chicago Cubs here Thursday afternoon.

The winner in the Forbes Field engagement will participate in the state final at Reading, on August 1 or 2.

HENDERSON VICTOR

DETROIT, July 24.—(AP.)—Bud Henderson, of Akron, O., won the feature race of a Veterans of Foreign Wars auto race card yesterday, doing the 20 miles in 19 minutes 54 seconds. Glenn Meyers, of Jackson, Mich., was second and Ray Campbell, Detroit, third.

M'VEY BATTLES BELANGER

By JAMES MILLER

Pittsburgh's own Black Shad Sunny Jim McVey, of the Hil who has given the local fans more knockout thrills than any boxer since Jackie Rodgers and Johnny Datto were at their best, goes to the post again tonight in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, when he hopes to add Charley Berlanger, Canadian light-heavyweight champion, to his list of victims.

Jim McVey

In recent battles, Sunny Jim, who boasts a broad smile, but otherwise is a fearsome foe, has put away Buddy McArthur and Joe Doktor in jigtime, and both were seasoned opponents. Belanger, however, is even more so, a cagy boxer who has met the best of them and stowed away George Panka in his only other local appearance. If Sunny Jim gets over Belanger in good style, he will

YANKS, GIANTS HOLD LEADS IN FLAG RACES

CHICAGO CUBS CLOSE TO TOP IN NATIONAL

Associated Press.

The two New York clubs, again bracketed together as leaders of the major leagues, once more were the centers of baseball interest today as the Yankees forged ahead in their duel with Washington for first place in the American League and the Giants found their lead in the National dwindling before the onslaughts of the Chicago Cubs in spite of a remarkable effort to hold their own.

The Yanks picked just the right time yesterday to hand a pair of 8 to 1 lacings to the Cleveland Indians. Washington's Senators cracked up at the same time and dropped a 12-to-8 decision to the Detroit Tigers. And as a result the Yanks took the lead by a half game.

The Giants put on a sensational ninth inning rally, scoring seven runs off three pitchers in the final frame to beat their neighbors, the Brooklyn Dodgers, 8 to 5. The second place Cubs came through with a double victory over the Phillies, winning the opener 9 to 5 when Harvey Hendrick smashed a pinch home run with the bases full in the tenth, and the second game 3 to 1 on Pat Malone's five-hit pitching.

The Tigers' triumph brought further changes in the standing of the junior circuit. Detroit moved from sixth place to fourth while Chicago's White Sox dropped a pair to Boston and went to fifth and Cleveland continued downward to sixth. The Red Sox beat the Pale Hose 6 to 2 and 7 to 1.

The Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns had an off day.

The Boston Braves and St. Louis Cardinals exchanged places twice in the course of splitting a doubleheader and finished with Boston holding fourth place, which it captured Saturday.

TENNIS ENTRIES CLOSE TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Entries for the annual Pittsburgh Center junior and boys' tennis championships close at 5 o'clock this evening. Chairman Hub Rinehart has announced that he will receive names of aspirants by telephone at Grant 6675 until that hour. Seeded lists will be compiled forthwith after which pairings will be drawn and released for publication.

Hostilities in the Center event get under way on the P. A. A. rectangles, Bigelow boulevard at Ruskin avenue, Wednesday morning. Competition looms as exceptionally keen with trips as Pittsburgh Tennis Association representatives to the National junior and boys' title tournament at Culver Military Academy the week of August 7 awaiting survivors in the respective divisions.

BALD FAVORITE

Ralph Bald, rangy Rockwood ace, who last week at Carnegie Tech hung up his second consecutive West Penn junior triumph, is favored to repeat his 1932 victory in the Center milling.

Bill Fay, likewise a Rockwooder, faces a stiff contract in striving to add the Center boys' crown to that of the West Penn coronet he donned a few days ago. Bob Madden, Schenley flash, who last year cantered to success in both the Western Pennsylvania and the Pittsburgh Center 15-year-old group tourneys, has outgrown the class, a fact that removes a most menacing threat from Fay's pathway.

Meanwhile, Chairman Andy Smeaton of the fourth renewal of the Pittsburgh Public Parks championships reports progress toward a sizable list of contenders for men's and women's municipal singles honors. Smeaton asks that prospective combatants file entries with him in writing no later than 6 p. m. next Friday. He may be addressed at 7536 Kensington street.

STARTS MONDAY

The parks tilting starts Monday morning, July 31. Hostilities this year will be confined to the fine Frick Park clay courts at Forbes and Braddock avenues.

The P. T. A. sanction and schedule committee convenes in special noon session today for the purpose of arranging dates for the flock of Inter-Club League playoffs necessitated by the bad weather of the past three Saturdays.

HUBBELL RIVAL OF MATTY

me terribly stiff and sore, but this feeling wore away, although I still was out of sorts when I pitched a short spell in the All-Star game in Chicago."

When Hubbell shut out the Pirates in the first game of Saturday's doubleheader, he ran his string of scoreless innings to 29 1-3, and the last 17 1-3 of these were against the Pirates, whom he also shut out on Wednesday after relieving Clark in the first inning of the second game.

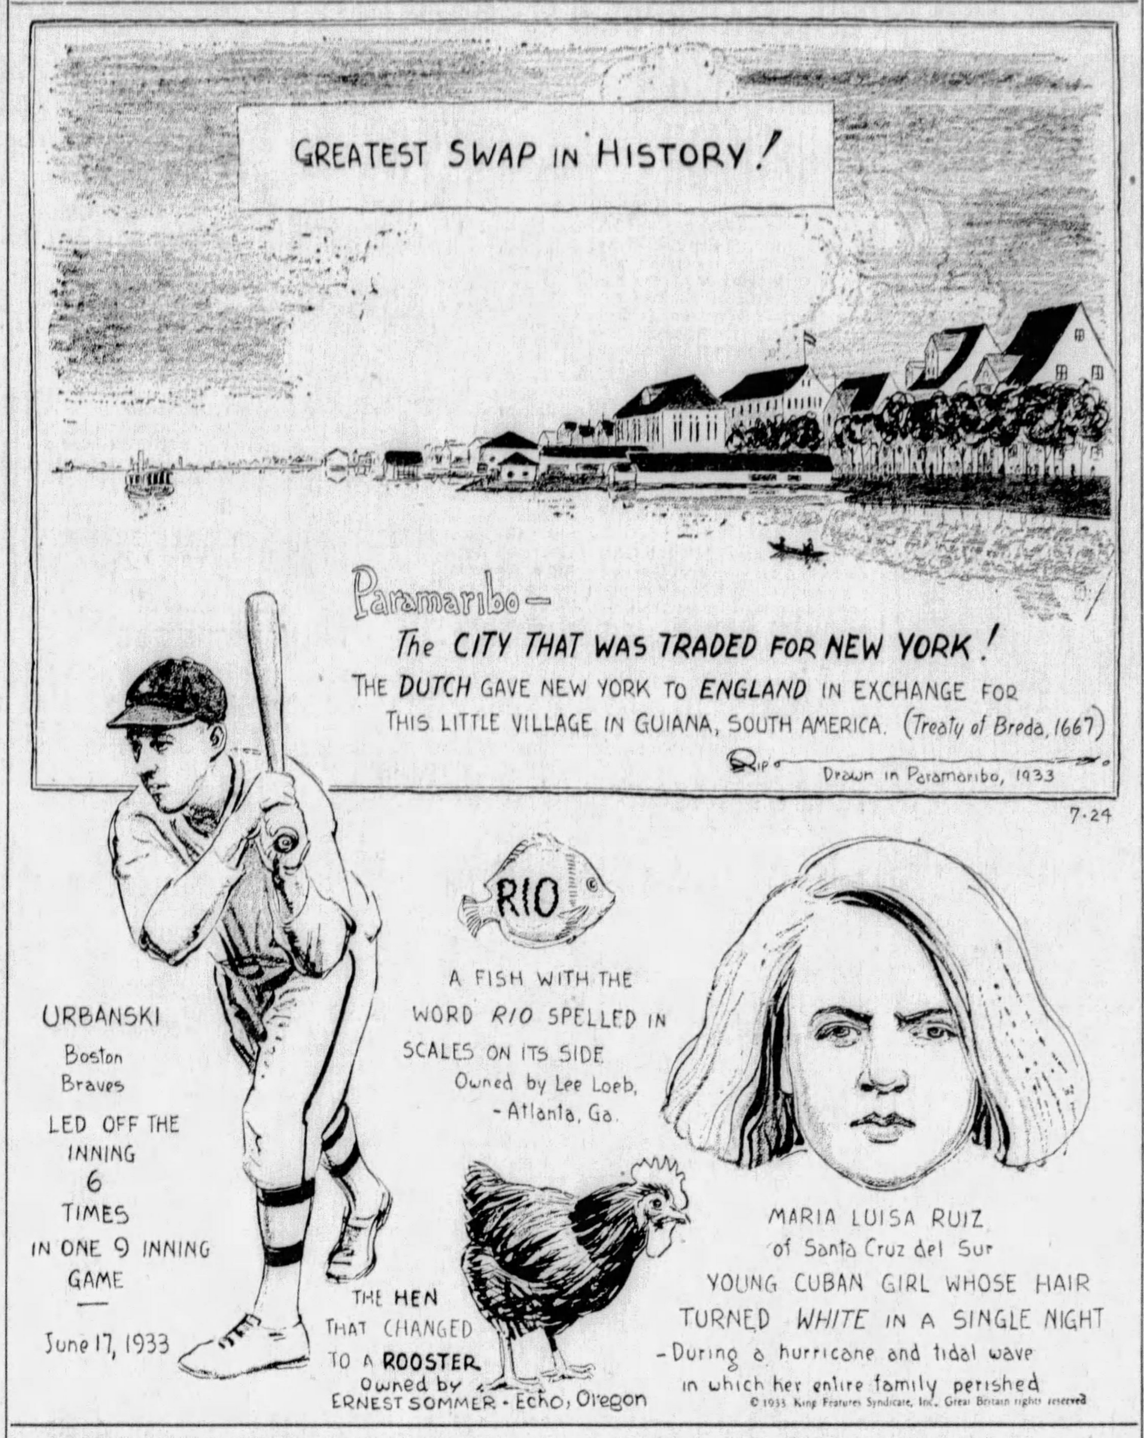
Believe It Or Not (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By Ripley

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)



EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE MAN WITH THE OSTRICH STOMACH—One of the most astounding of the many human oddities to be seen in the Believe It or Not Odditorium at the World Fair in Chicago is the famed Kanichka, the "man with the ostrich stomach." Before the eyes of his audience, Kanichka will swallow pocket watches, silver dollars and door knobs, and regurgitate any one of them at a specific request by a patron. Then, at the end of his performance, he swallows a lighted electric light bulb, which, when the room is darkened, can be seen burning within his stomach.

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Out of a series of record-smashing performances in the women's national A. A. U. swimming championships, Lenore Kight stood today the unchallenged queen of America's girl aquatic stars worthy successor to the great Helene Madison.

The 20-year-old Homestead, Pa., flash scored a clean sweep in the four free-style events of the four-day championship program which closed yesterday broke one world record, and swam the anchor leg on the Carnegie Library team, which smashed another world standard in the half-mile relay.

Only in the 440-yard event did Miss Kight eclipse a world record, but she won both the 880 and mile swims in such easy fashion that a record-pace was not needed.

Second honors for the meet went to Katherine Rawls, 15-year-old Fort Lauderdale youngster, who retained her springboard diving and 300-meter medley championships smashing the world record in the latter event, but was dethroned by Margaret Hoffman, of Scranton Pa., in the 220-yard breast stroke.

Long's Sport Comment

vote for Carl Hubbell over Schumacher as the National League's best after seeing the great southpaw blank the Pirates in 17 1-3 innings.

IN BEING APPOINTED high school coaches immediately after their graduation from Duquesne University, John Sepsi and Richard Irwin carried on the coaching tradition which appears to have developed for the Dukes. Joe Guerrier, famous game-winning pass catcher against W. & J. in 1928, started things off in 1929 when he was signed as mentor by South Fayette Township High. Then, Jock Rosenberg, keyman of Chick Davies' pivot play in basketball, took over the floor reins at Rankin Junior High in 1930, and Stanley Ebert, fine end, went to Bryan Athyn Acadamy, of which he was an alumnus. Ben Lubic began teaching the Davies basketball system at North Braddock High and has been teaching and coaching there ever since.

THE FOLLOWING YEAR, 1931, added six more Dukes to the coaching ranks. Buff Donnelli became Duke freshman coach; Jack (Moon) Clark was made a member of the coaching staff at Donora High; Joe McCarthy was elected at Millvale High; Pete Collodi, basketball and tennis ace, went to West Middlesex High, where he now is principal; John (Doggo) Burns became grid and floor mentor at Catholic High in Bradford, Pa.; Kass Kovalcheck took over the Duke preps and Charley Winowski joined the Stowe Township High staff.

Last year, Capt. Mike Ferrare teamed up with his pal, Ganzy Benedict, at Ellwood City High, Benedict being the new head coach there. Ben Barrett was chosen by St. Veronica's in Rochester, Other 1933 graduates may follow Sepsi and Irwin into coaching jobs. It must not be forgotten, either, that Capt. Frank Casey, of the tennis team, likewise was elected to the teaching staff at Homestead High and will start on his new duties in September.

ONE OF THE veteran boxing men holding the opinion that Primo Carnera is on the heavyweight throne to stay for a long time is Jack Hurley, manager of Billy Petrolle, and a man without a superior at sizing up a fighter. Hurley predicts that unless Carnera falls for the gay life—and it is admitted Primo will be under no end of temptation in Europe—the Italian giant will hold the title for four or five years.

Jack Hurley

Petrolle's pilot says the boys would better start looking for an American hope right away. He'd like to find one himself, but admits that he doesn't feel very optimistic. Maybe one will turn up, he concedes, but he adds that the find will have to be a tough man and a super puncher like Dempsey to topple the Man Mountain.

"IF MAX BAER fights Carnera I'll get down every penny I can scrape up on Carnera," Hurley remarked. "I don't share the belief that Baer will either knock over Carnera with one of those long right-hand swings or rip Primo to pieces with body punches at close quarters. Baer will not be able to do any good against Carnera in close. He isn't going to move that big fellow around as he did Schmeling and Schaaf and the rest. There is no heavyweight around today who could do any good against Carnera at close quarters. That big fellow is tremendously strong. I'm not saying that Carnera is a great fighter, and there are better punchers, but what good will their punching ability do them unless they can reach a vital spot? And they won't be able to do that. Carnera has learned how to protect himself both by blocking and pulling his head out of range. And how are they going to hit him on the potato with any effect when he stands erect? It's hard to reach his chin and blows sent upward do not carry as much power as those driven straight or with a little downward snap. Maybe Carnera is no killer, but no heavyweight I have seen is going to do much against him."

HAVING CONNECTED IN both games at Cincinnati yesterday, Freddie Lindstrom now has batted safely in 20 straight games, but an unusual number of other players saw their sequential hitting streaks interrupted the last two days. In the first game here Saturday, Bill Terry was stopped after 18 games in a row, Paul Waner was halted at 11, and Tony Piet at 10.

Others checked Saturday were Joe Moore after 11, Bruce Campbell after 9, and Al Simmons and Gus Mancuso after 7. Yesterday, Frank Hogan was knocked off at 10 straight games, Dick Bartell at 9, Arky Vaughan, Gus Suhr and Lloyd Waner, the last named acting as pinch-hitter, at 8; Pinky Whitney, Smead Jolley and Jackie Warner at 7, and Joe Stripp, Mule Hass and Ralph Kress at 6.

land a place in the semi-final of the Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee card at Forbes Field and will be well on his way to the top.

Charley Baxter, local lightweight puncher, meets Jimmy Reilly, of Fairmont, W. Va., and formerly of McKeesport, in another 10-rounder tonight, and Elmer Wilson takes on Young Bordell and Jack Delcharone, of New Kensington, makes his professional debut against Freddie Jenkins in the six-round preliminaries, which get under way at 9 o'clock.

BOWL CARD ALMOST FULL

Matchmaker Jules Beck needs to close only the first preliminary for his show in the North Braddock bowl, Thursday night. He has Sammy Slaughter, Negro middleweight knockerout, of Terre Haute, managed by Bud Taylor, in the 10-round windup against Jack King, of Little Rock, Red Mason's protege; the Alabama Kid and Bruno Sala in the semi-final, and Harry Jacoby and Al Becker in the second bout.

ELDRED LEADS IN NATIONAL PRO TEST

By TOM BIRKS

Vincent Eldred, of the Highland Country Club, made a show of a small field in posting a 69, three under par, to gain a lead of six strokes in the first half of the 36-hole district qualifying test for the National Professional Golfers' Association championship tournament at the Pittsburgh Field Club today.

Only nine pros, the smallest field in years, are battling it out for the four places open to this district for the national event, to be staged at Milwaukee, beginning August 8.

With Eldred virtually a certain qualifier, the fight for the other three places was fairly open. Paul Erath, of Edgewood, was second with a 75; Ted Luther, of Valley Heights, third with a 76, and Walter Johnstone, of Butler, third with a 77 at the finish of the morning round. A second 18-hole round is being played this afternoon.

SCORES FOUR BIRDIES

Eldred, who gained the third round of match play in the P. G. A. tourney last year, reeled off eight straight pars after taking a 5 on the par 4 first hole, for a 37 to the turn. Coming home, he scored four birdies, after barely missing putts for eagles on two holes, and five pars for a sensational 32. Field Club par and Eldred's card:

Par out	445	353	444	—36
Eldred out	545	353	444	—37
Par in	445	435	344	—36—72
Eldred in	444	424	334	—32—69

The scores for the first 18 holes:

Vincent Aldred, Highland	37	32—	69
Paul Erath, Edgewood	39	36—	75
Ted Luther, Valley Heights	38	38—	76
Walter Johnstone, Butler	38	39—	77
G. Faroline, St. Clair	41	38—	79
George McBride, Country Club	39	42—	81
Perry Del Vecchio, Greensburg	38	43—	81
Rader Jewett, Wheeling	41	41—	82
Jimmy O'Donnell, Churchill Valley	45	42—	87

PARKS TOURNEYS ON

At North Park and at South Park, the qualifying rounds for the County Parks championship are under way, and tomorrow the boys swing into match play. Al McBride and Walter Loeffler are in charge of the tourneys.

The Schenley Park public links golfers carried too much stuff for the New Castle public links team yesterday at New Castle, defeating the Lawrence countians 46½ to 31½.

The short game of the Pittsburghers proved the undoing of the home players. Andy Szwedka, of Schenley, equaled the course par of 73, and Art Sekay, former Pitt star, took a 74 for second honors.

SARAZEN TO COMPETE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 24.—(INS.)—Gene Sarazen had decided today to compete in the P. G. A. championship at Milwaukee next month, following the organization's announcement that all Ryder cup players would not be required to qualify.

GERMAN SETS RECORD

HAMBURG, July 24. — (AP.)—Hans Sievert, of Germany, bettered the world record for the decathlon in the North German athletic championships yesterday, scoring 8,467.62 points. James Bausch, of Kansas City, set the world decathlon record at 8,462.23 points in winning the Olympic title at Los Angeles last year.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, July 24.—We ball gamers know the old fellow's ankles are creaking and his thighs are inlaid with zinc. But we got to admire the way he carries on with the timber on his shoulder. I mean Babe Ruth.

The old legs are going back on the Babe. But shucks, there'll even be a day when Marlene Dietrich can't get a tumble in a bathing suit. And the territory in right field the Bam can now cover is about the size of a Persian prayer rug. But does the guy stop giving the old college try? Not so you could notice it with a microscope.

Nick Altrock

The Bam is out there panting like a cocker spaniel, chasing fouls and long-hit flies. And if you think Pop Time has shaken red pepper in Babe's optics, just watch his timing for plopping the apple into the bleacher planks. After looking the situation over, I've decided Babe Ruth and the original Floradora sextet are the seven wonders of the world.

VINES FAINTS AS U. S. LOSES IN CUP PLAY

AUTEUIL, France, July 24.—(AP.)—For the second time in three years, England's twin tennis aces, Fred Perry and H. W. (Bunny) Austin, have halted America's bid to regain the Davis Cup in the interzone finals.

Just as they did in 1931, but under circumstances even more dramatic, Austin and Perry smashed through to victories in both of the final singles matches before a record crowd in Roland Garros Stadium yesterday, gaining one by default through the collapse of the American champion, Ellsworth Vines, won the series, four matches to one, and gained the right to battle France in the challenge round Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

To Austin went the honor of clinching the series and ending for another year America's hope of recapturing the trophy France has held ever since the Four Musketeers Rene La Coste, Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, won it at Germantown in 1927.

Meeting Wilmer Allison in the first match of the day, with Great Britain holding a 2-1 lead, Austin polished off the Texan in four sets, 6-1, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4,

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

RADIATOR MEN WORK FULL TIME

For the first time in more than two years, at this sason, employes two years, at this season, employes pany, 3400 Walnut street, McKeesport, are working six days a week. Except for the rush season last fall, workers have been getting from three to five days a week.

The radiator business, closely associated with the building of new homes, is feeling the impetus of the new deal, according to J. B. Mason, Jr., vice president. He said:

"Our optimism is based on predictions for a greater building boom than in the early post-war years. For the past two years, when building was practically at a standstill, the bulk of our business was almost entirely remodeling. During the last two months orders for new equipment have been coming in. We have called back many of our men and are working them full week."

The Columbia Radiator Company, organized in 1922, had expanded to eight times its original size in 1928. Buildings and equipment cover 10 acres, and there are at the present tim~ 450 men on the payrolls, Mr. Mason said.

Soft Coal Output Tops 1932 by 65%

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(AP.)—Bituminous coal and anthracite production continued their increase the week ending July 15, with soft coal output showing a gain of more than 25 per cent over the preceding holiday week.

Bituminous production was 6,965,000 tons the week of the fifteenth, compared with 5,530,000 tons the previous week and 4,155,000 tons the corresponding week last year.

Butter, Egg Future Trading Suspended

CHICAGO, July 24.—(AP.)—Directors of the Mercantile Exchange ordered trading in future deliveries of both egg and butter suspended for today to enable clerical staffs to catch up with their work. Trading will be as usual tomorrow. The last three days of last week were record breakers in volume as prices fell rapidly.

Ann Arbor Railroad Interest Deferred

Forbes

Excesses, Now Checked, Were Really Menace

—By B. C. FORBES—

EXAGGERATED importance is accorded the relapse in stocks and commodities.

HAD THERE been no crazy boom in "whisky stocks," and therefore no sensational collapse in them, the recession throughout the general stock market would have incited little alarm.

Mr. Forbes

When average stock quotations were, last month, at the same level as touched during Thursday's fall, the general view was that securities had made a very satisfactory showing.

WHEN COMMODITIES first climbed to the price status reached in last week's violent downswing, sentiment was quite cheerful over the record they had made.

SO LET US not permit our perspective to go awry.

As a matter of fact, the puncturing of the "alcohol boom" was sorely needed, because the longer it raged, the graver the possible consequences of its inevitable collapse. In other sections of the market, speculation had also become undesirably rampant, and the upward pace untenably swift.

SIMILARLY, swarms of petty speculators who never before had dabbled in commodities were gambling in them to the hilt. Their irresponsible speculation was serving no useful economic purpose, but was simply creating unhealthy, dangerous conditions—and inviting a bad boomerang.

EVERYBODY will be better off, orderly recovery of trade and industry and agriculture and employment will be facilitated, if the sharp lesson inflicted by last week's events is generally heeded.

Notable though improvement has been, indulgence in excesses could prove mischievously unsettling. Therefore, it is well that speculative excesses have been punished.

ALTHOUGH no great harm would probably be done by decreeing that fluctuations in leading commodities and in stocks be restricted to specified narrow limits on any one day, it would be distinctly more preferable that dire need for such arbitrary action did not arise and persist.

We have already witnessed the limiting of daily fluctuations in certain commodities, including cotton, and the plan has operated without any apparent hardship.

But, the fewer such artificial restrictions found necessary, the better. It is to be hoped that gamblers will hereafter act with more circumspection than they have lately exhibited.

THERE IS no reason why the corrective developments on the security and commodity exchanges should interfere with the nation's constructive recovery. Indeed, what many had come to regard as a menace, as potential dynamite, has been removed.

Should one effect be to check speculative buying in other directions, including raw materials going into many manufactures, fuller opportunity will be afforded wage increases to catch up with price advances. Industrial Administrator Johnson has constantly, vigorously, properly emphasized that a setback of incalculable consequences would be courted were wages to lag too long behind rising costs of living.

TAKING EVERYTHING into consideration, the blow dealt speculation may easily prove a far-reaching blessing, not the reverse.

PRINTERS' CODE NEARS FINAL REVISION

Copies of the printers' code, recently adopted in Chicago, are being compiled in proper form by the re-codification committee and sent to each member of the national executive committee for last-minute suggestions before general distribution is made, according to a recent Typothetae Bulletin,, national organ of printers.

Printers have organized themselves in the past, with an idea of improving ethics and today such improvement is their for the acceptance according to H. M. Smith, secretary of the Liberty Show Printing Company, 632 Duquesne way. He said:

"The Recovery Act will take away old-time competition of price and material. It will be replaced by a more intensive competition of ability to render service and creative values. Printing and foodstuffs are closely related. Printed matter is the mental food of the people. Printing, an every-day necessity, a tonic for business, did not suffer as much during the depression as many other industries. Nor will it be affected as much by the new deflation."

Street Expects Steel To Pay 50 Cents On Preferred

Directors of the United States Steel Corporation meet tomorrow after the close of the market while the Bethlehem board holds its regular session Thursday afternoon. The second quarter earning statements of both companies will be released following their approval by the respective boards. Added interest centers in the United States Steel meeting because of the action which will be taken in respect to the quarterly preferred dividend payment. Those in position to sense the attitude of influential members of the board are confident that a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share will be ordered, which would increase to $3.75 a share the accumulation on the senior stock issue since the regular rate was pared in January of this year.

"The Trader" in Barron's Weekly says: "The money is still too cheap and inflationary possibilities still too real to promote the insistent preference of cash to equities, which is the life blood of a bear market. General speculative psychology, of course, has been changed. Businessmen, amateur speculators, and floor traders will no longer grasp at one Washington development after another as the pretext for the impulsive buying of this or that equity. A chastened mood prevails as it always does after so rapid and tempestuous a break. Unless, however, all of the roseate dreams of only a fortnight ago are to be permanently shattered, stocks once more have entered a buying range regardless of when and how rapidly the forward march is resumed."

The grain market today reopened to trading in futures, but under restrictions which make the wild fluctuations of the last few weeks impossible. The regulations provide prices of grains shall not be permitted to drop below the closing prices of Thursday—the last day in which trading in futures was permitted by the Chicago Board of Trade. There will be no trading in wheat or rye futures at prices more than 5 cents above or below the closing prices of the preceding day. A limit of 5 cents is similarly imposed on the fluctuation of corn and barley prices and 4 cents on oats.

In its weekly summary of business, Standard Statistics Company says: "The two possibilities lying immediately ahead in the business outlook are a let down in activity during August from seasonal causes and a more extensive period of recession as accumulated stocks of goods are worked off and the effects of industrial control come into operation. Since retail sales will eventually tell the tale of expanded public buying power, or its failure to materialize, this item is assuming considerable importance but conclusions will hardly be possible until the higher wages stipulated under the various business codes have had time to percolate among the mass consumers."

Conservative opinion in the Street is in favor of a quieter market with some time to elapse before resuming any important movement so that the "mopping up" process can take place. Undoubtedly, a lot of accounts have been seriously damaged with the smash in grains and this, of course, is especially the case in Chicago, from which center a lot of distress liquidation of stocks took place in an effort to assist grain accounts.

ART INSTITUTE TO DIVIDE PRIZES

For the past two years, it has been impossible to make a single choice among second-year students who competed for the annual European traveling scholarship at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, 132 Stanwix street, according to Willis Shook, director. He said:

Mr. Jurkat

"The scholarship was offered to the student who made the most progress during a two-year course in advertising illustration. This year two men, Elmo Jurkat, of Cedarville, O., and Claire Cressler, of Decatur, Ill., both possessed such excellent records that the judges were unable to choose between them. The faculty of the school decided to give each of them half the scholarship's value in money."

Last year it was even worse, Mr. Shook continued. Three students tied for first honors and eleven others showed such merit that additional awards were granted them. As a result of this close competition, the European scholarship will be abolished. Mr. Shook said:

Mr. Cressler

"I believe that more awards to first year students in the form of rebated tuition for their second year will serve a more useful purpose. Many worth-while students, who are eliminated in a contest for one large prize, will in this way be rewarded for their ambition and talent. Also, second year students are usually better equipped to earn their own way than first year students."

BUSINESS

Planned Recovery Faces First Critical Period

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S scheme of planned business recovery is facing its first critical period. From the end of the bank holiday until last week business activity had been forging ahead and prices for both commodities and securities had been rising under the stimulus of anticipated currency inflation.

Last week both commodities and securities had their first serious reaction. In view of the unprecedented rapidity of the rises in prices, a period of reaction was not surprising. Prices apparently had anticipated the effects of the policy of the new administration to an excessive extent. It must be realized that there has been no real currency inflation up to the present time. The administration has indicated that it might view excessive price advances with a critical eye. It frankly does not intend to create a heaven for speculators. It is interested in providing jobs.

Recovery Will Involve Work

THE REACTION in the security and commodity markets does not cast any doubt on the ultimate success of the planned business recovery. But it does indicate that something more than the waving of a magic wand at Washington will be needed to maintain progress. The recovery is not based on mere increases in prices. It is to be based on increased wages, more jobs, more purchasing power.

The drive launched last week to bring the phases of commerce and industry not subject to codes into line with the new program at the same time that artificial aid was refused to the stock market, indicates that the administration has a keen appreciation of the factors which are fundamental and those which are secondary.

Gain in Industrial Output May Pause

THE RENEWED EFFORTS of the administration to provide jobs may reflect the possibility that a pause in the rising trend of industrial activity may be encountered next month. While most of the increased industrial activity of recent months probably has directly reflected increased consumption, it may be assumed that some of it has been due to advance purchases in anticipation of higher prices. In some industries, such as steel, these price increases have been made effective. This may be followed by a decrease in buying of material except for immediate needs. It is entirely possible that this may result in a pause in industrial activity.

Undoubtedly the latest attempts to boost wages and to increase employment are being pushed to counteract any such tendency. In case these efforts should fail, however, the administration still could resort to the dangerous stimulus of real currency inflation in place of the mere expectation which served to boost prices and create speculative buying until a week ago.

STOCKS RALLY IN FIRST OF SHORT DAYS

With the delayed opening at noon, a large volume of buying orders had piled up since Saturday on the theory that an interim rally, at least, was almost a certainty. While many traders were quick to seize profits on early advances of 1 to 6 or more points, realizing apparently was fairly well absorbed. While grain trading was restricted in Chicago, prices were steady to firm. Wheat was about 1½ cents above the average price of Thursday. Cotton got up around $1 a bale and other commodities were firm. The dollar sagged in foreign exchange markets. Bonds improved.

While shares were inclined to lose some of their early buoyancy after the first hour, gains of around 5 or more points were shown by National Distillers, Homestake Mining, Celanese, Auburn and United States Smelting. Gainers of 1 to 2 or more included United States Industrial Alcohol, American Telephone, American Commercial Alcohol, Union Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio and Western Union. Case was a contradictory mover, dropping some 7 points under liquidation reported to be from Chicago. Deere was also off around 3.

Traders generally exhibited considerable more cheerfulness, although most of them were far from jubilant after their "housecleaning." A number of stocks were rather spotty owing to special influences, and while the margin situation seemingly had eased appreciably, various wire houses found it necessary to close out a number of accounts of customers who were unable to advance further funds.

COTTON PRICES UP 18 TO 25

NEW YORK, July 24.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened steady, 18 to 25 points higher on steadier Liverpool cables and trade buying. July, a10.25c; October, 10.54c; December, 10.73c; January, 10.48c; March, 10.98c; May, 11.05c.

Trading was quite active. October sold up to 10.56 on the initial demand and after reacting to 10.50 was ruling around 10.57 at the end of the first half hour with December at 10.78, making net advances of about 15 to 30 points on active positions.

After showing net advances of about 25 to 33 points, prices sagged slightly. December sold off to 10.60 or about 23 points from the best and within 10 points of Saturday's close. The market at midday was steady at 10.74 for December with active months generally showing net gains of 20 to 25 points.

LIVERPOOL, July 24.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot quiet; prices 1 point higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6.88; good middling, 6.58; strict middling, 6.26; middling, 6.13; strict low middling, 5.98; low middling, 5.78; strict good ordinary, 5.58; good ordinary, 5.28. Futures closed steady, July, 5.89; October, 5.94; December, 5.97; January, 5.98; March, 6.02; May, 6.06.

STOCK MARKET VITAL FORCE IN BUSINESS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The relation of the government to the stock market is most interesting and important.

The administration has set itself to raise prices to something like the 1926 level. It has sought to do this through the depreciation of the dollar.

The result has been extraordinarily rapid. People have rushed to turn dollars into "equities," before their money could lose more of its purchasing power. So stocks went up and dollars went down as parts of the same process.

MARKET POWERFUL

Senator Thomas speaks truly when he says:

"The country is not prepared to withstand efforts of a repetition of what happened today." (The Wednesday crack in the market).

Whether we like it or not, "the market" has a very important place, both psychologically and otherwise, and the Senator from Oklahoma is unconsciously doing homage to the power of "Wall street." Nothing more strongly affects American "sentiment" than the movements of stock quotations.

But stocks tend to move with commodity prices, and it does not impress the public as being reasonable to push prices up and at the same time let stocks decline.

The average Wall street man says:

"The President has all the power in the world. He is going to raise prices."

This feeling is widespread, and has been an important factor in speculation.

If prices are to be boosted to 1926 levels, can there be a bear market in stocks—no matter how high they get?

CAN'T DESIRE CRASH

Now there is a sort of homely logic in this reasoning. The administration in seeking to control and stimulate business is practically forced to take an interest in the stock market. While it doubtless does not wish "speculative excesses," it certainly cannot want a crash in quotations.

What can it do about the matter? Probably we can reject Senator Thomas' suggestion of a one-way market which would be allowed to go up, but not down. But Washington can do the following: (1) Encourage bankers and big operators to support the market on breaks. (2) Put out optimistic announcements about business and the value of "sound securities." (3) Make credit easy. (4) Postpone indefinitely all projects to stabilize the currency.

The last point is important, for once speculators think that the dollar is not going to depreciate further, much of the steam would be lost.

CONTROL DIFFICULT

Even so, it is going to be no easy matter to keep speculation under control while inflationary measures are being used. Almost inevitably the controlling authorities get themselves into the position of "sponsoring" the market.

The market, in turn, is made up of individual stocks. A crack in alcohols affects the whole show, and wild as the speculation has been in "wet stocks," it is hard to keep the market up when they break.

You see, there are two distinct factors. One is the desire to hedge against dollar depreciation. That leads to conservative buying of "commodity stocks" and gold mine shares. The other is the sheer desire to get rich quick by speculation (as in alcohol stock).

But the two desires are very hard to separate, and are very apt to get all mixed up in men's minds.

ECONOMIC LAWS SUPREME

My thought is that we should be able to count on the power of the administration to keep the market stable for a while. But sooner or later it is likely to get out of control again, and then no one can prevent violent reactions.

After all, economic laws will prevail. The only way to keep stocks from going down is to keep them from going up unduly.

CHAPTER X.

The smile said, "I'm glad you have come back to me. It is nice to have you right here, but I have not told Mr. Gates about you. I'm pretending you're a stranger till later."

A feeling of almost childish annoyance against the man swept over Cavanaugh. He disliked the smooth secure manner in which Gates seemed to possess Leni. He disliked the man's air of conventionality, his carefully brushed iron gray hair and the pinkish roll of flesh above his collar at the back of his neck.

Cavanaugh did not enter the box, but retraced his steps again to the rear of the first floor, where he found an usher—this time a genuine one. Fortunately it was the same youth who had procured him the seat in the box.

"Do you think you could do me another favor this evening?" he asked the youth with his compelling touch of camaraderie.

TELLS ABOUT KRUGER

The young man thought he could. Cavanaugh put a bank note in the lad's hand and went back to the box. Unobstentatiously he found his seat. A few minutes later the usher was bending confidentially behind Douglas Gates and whispering in his ear.

"A long distance call has just come in for you, sir," he lied deferentially. "The operator has switched it into the booth in the men's lounge. The party said it was very important that we get you on the phone, sir."

The usher disappeared and thereafter kept out of sight. As Gates moved up the aisle, Cavanaugh spoke to Leni in a rapid hushed voice.

"Brace yourself for a shock," he said. His hand reached forward and closed above her elbow. "Your trouble with Kruger is all over. There was some sort of a hold-up in the front part of the theater a little while ago. Kruger got shot—accidentally. I had nothing to do with it myself."

Leni drew her breath in slowly over her teeth until her lungs were completely filled.

"Dead?"

"Yes. Don't let it rattle you. It's the break of a life-time for you—but you deserved it."

AGREES TO SECRECY

His fingers tightened on her arm, as though to steady her. In the bad light he could not see whether the color had left her face, but her body grew taut. Her head was half turned toward him and he caught the faint scent from her hair.

"It's terrible!" she uttered painfully.

"I'm hoping he didn't carry any papers that would link him up with you." Cavanaugh went on quickly. "If he did, we'll move heaven and earth to keep it quiet. Don't want you to tell a living soul about Kruger—understand? Let me handle it my own way."

It was almost too much to expect that a woman under her strain could keep a cool head, yet Leni, by shear force of will, compelled her brain to rational behavior.

"I'll keep silent," she agreed.

"Fine! There's only one bad angle to it. I met a detective a little while ago back there. He found your handkerchief in the penthouse. It isn't important but if anybody starts asking us questions we'll simply tell the truth—leaving Kruger out of it. We didn't use a jimmy to get into the penthouse. Somebody had been there ahead of us and we merely entered through the French doors that were already opened. The cops will be so excited over what happened that Mulrooney probably will forget all about the penthouse business."

MEET DETECTIVE

Cavanaugh could feel her beginning to tremble. "How much more of this can I stand?" she asked piteously.

"I'm sorry," he said steadily to her. "But you've got to go through with it. The worst part is over. I know you won't fall down now. Get yourself together. Show me how much heart you've got."

It was a command—a challenge and it entered into Leni's blood like strong medicine.

"Mr. Gates will be back in a minute," she said, forcing her voice to calmness.

"That's what I'm thinking about," said Cavanaugh. "We want to get rid of him—I'll take you home myself tonight." He did not add what was in his mind—that his arms ached to take her fragrant and symmetrical form into his arms once more. The seat of his desire was in his contracted heart.

"But how can we get rid of him?" asked Leni willingly.

Cavanaugh's eyes were alert and grinning.

"There is no time to stop for formalities," he told her authoritatively. "We're going to do something Gates will resent terribly. That side door is still open and if we hurry we'll be gone before he gets back. If he telephones, you tell him you felt faint and some friends took you home. We'll dodge around the back and pick up a taxi."

Leni did not answer him. Merely, she rose to her feet—turned her back upon the audience and moved out of the box as Cavanaugh stood aside to give her precedence. The silken curtains swished together behind them. A very few steps and they stepped out through the side door into the fresher air of the areaway.

Slug no longer was on guard in his inappropriate usher's uniform. However, another man was—a stocky man in a gray worsted suit. A man with a bristling red moustache and eyes as blue and clear as a child's.

Cavanaugh was not a man to show surprise or disappointment in an emergency. He was a gentleman among gamblers, and a gambler among gentlemen. And in his own individual way he had more poise than the professional practitioners of either class. If he was in the least startled by the annoying presence of Detective Mulrooney no one would have suspected it. A smile lit his face—he seemed actually glad to meet the man who was quite obviously barring his path. But it was all on the surface . . .

"Oh, hello, Mr. Mulrooney," he said pleasantly. "I'm just taking Miss Luneska home. Miss Luneska, this is Tom Mulrooney, the head man of our detective force here."

Mulrooney bowed a little stiffly to Leni.

"You're perfectly right about me being head man of the detective force here," he said, "but you're wrong about just taking Miss Luneska home. Both of you are going to spend a little time with me answering questions. We just found a safe popped open and a dead man upstairs. It must have happened while you both were in the vicinity."

Synopsis

Attending the premiere of her latest motion picture, beautiful Leni Luneska, the star, is confronted by a shabby man, who emerges from the crowd crying "Leni! It is I, Karl Kruger!" Leni turns white. Lucky Cavanaugh, a gambler, saunters into the theater. He prevents Kruger from making a scene. During the performance Douglas Gates, Leni's elderly escort, proposed to her. In the office next to where Kruger waits, thieves are robbing the safe. Leni leaves her box and goes to Kruger, whom she married in Vienna when 14 years old. He wants recognition as her husband. She is given time to think it over. Cavanaugh becomes friendly with Leni and they go out for some fresh air. Later Cavanaugh goes to see Kruger. Kruger rushes into the next office, surprising the robbers at work. He is shot to death. Cavanaugh, when leaving, meets Detective Mulrooney.

Now Go On

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

BULLETINS!

Captains must send in a roll of 10 names to get one of the nifty black and orange armbands!

The three best letter writers will be put in an HONOR ROLL of each Monday's Mail Box.

Today we have one of the best letters we ever received. It's from Marion L. Swart, Captain of the Park Avenue Junior Patrol, Washington, Pa. Marion's address is 246 Park avenue and she would like to have other captains write to her. Here's her whole letter:

"Dear Quin Hall, Snuggins and Spike:

"In my last letter I mentioned several things we are doing in our club, one of which was a contest. That contest was won by Irena Leeper because she got the most words out of the words 'Junior Patrol Club.' Her total was 500 words and she received the prize.

"Our next contest will be a 'jack' contest.

"Another thing that I mentioned was that I would like to receive letters from Captains or Lieutenants from other Junior Patrol Clubs. But I have not received any yet. I want to get acquainted with other Patrols.

"Beginning next Wednesday we are going to have a library in our club room. We are going to charge one cent to get a book out. In this way we can make enough money to buy little things that we need for the club.

"I am trying to make this an educational club. If we can find other ways of obtaining money the members want to start a lemonade stand. I make crepe paper bed dolls and crepe paper butterflys and sell them. In this way I can make money.

"Lieutenant Betty Jane Harman and I are going to make up a theme song for our club. We are also trying to think of a good password."

Ordinarily, we don't print such long letters entirely, but Marion's letter is so full of good ideas, especially for other Patrols with girl members, that we thought all Junior Patrol members would like to read it.

Observers say Charles Edwin Mitchell, banker, fooled jurors by wearing patched shirt, baggy suit and stained fedora at his trial.

NOW is the time for all city employees to put their shoulders to the grindstone and their noses to the wheel! Vacation is over. Snap out of it! Get together behind the head of your department and push! Only by disconcerted action and overlapping assessments can we guarantee that this nation shall grasp the new horizon by the horns and make sure that the flood gates of prosperity shall go marching hand in hand down the sands of time with the machinery of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

And let that be a lesson to others, too.

FRISBY SUBMITS BASIC CODE

WASHINGTON MONUMENT—Congressman Horace Frisby today advocated a basic code for politicians. A large crowd, which had gathered when two beer trucks collided at a busy intersection, gave cheer after cheer as Frisby carried the case to the people. In outlining his plan for co-operation with the domestic recovery administration, Frisby sketched his basic code. (And also sketched a mustache on a billboard lady to amuse the kiddies.) "The basic code for politicians," declared Frisby, "will be to sleep 10 hours out of 24, take two hours for lunch and establish 98c as the minimum campaign contribution."

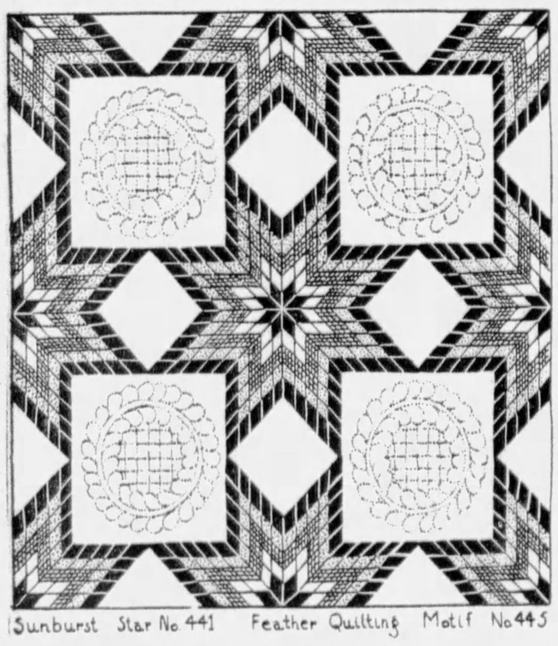
PATCHWORK QUILT PATTERN



Sunburst Star No 441 Feather Quilting Motif No445

By LAURA WHEELER

The Sunburst Star, Pattern No. 441, is one of the most popular and oldest of the star quilt patterns. It is made of diamond patches and starts as an eight-pointed star and grows as the diamond patches are added row after row, sometimes in shaded effect, sometimes in contrasting colors, till a gorgeous large star is formed.

Sunburst Star is here shown combined with a quilting pattern—The Feather—one of the handsomest and oldest of quilting designs. It is a large motif, 11 inches in diameter; only six of these motifs are needed for a quilt in either single or double bed size. These six motifs are offered you in a transfer pattern, and can be ordered separately or together with the Sunburst Star Quilt Pattern at an additional cost of 10c (20c for both).

Send your order to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

It Must Be Good For Us

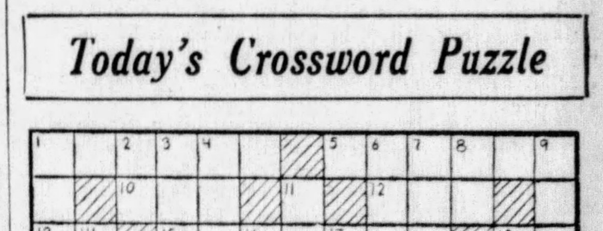
Come to think of it, no administration can get far in four short-winded years.

There has been some slight sentiment in the past for eight years' political sway in Washington for the victors to get accustomed to the spoils.

Either organization can get eight years' straight backing provided it wins twice in a row. But to stake the triumphant party to an octette of seasons might be bad business. The next agitation would be for 16, then 32, and finally, there would be no agitation at all. We would have either a Republican or a Democratic dynasty. And defeated politicians might get to Washington provided they made a good marriage.

Let's take the abbreviated four-year term. No matter which side wins, it always spends the first year in power investigating the acts of its predecessors.

Then, the second year is occupied in performing stunts for their successors to exhume and rattle.



The third year is fairly well chewed up with the scurryings and capers of ants before a rainstorm. Little crumbs are laid by. Just in case.

They bury the bodies in the fourth year, scrub in the corners, paint the dome with gold leaf, consolidate the national organization and each man gets ready to pull his weight to the laborious melody of the volga boat song. If the ins win, then all is as happy as an idiot biting his thumb. They can really enjoy the next four years.

But, if the outs get their turn at the bat, then the ins pack their trunks, pour the coffee in the stove, whistle to the dog and march forth with all the honors and honorariums of war. They're through, and yeast cakes won't bring 'em to the top of the pan.

And that's the way it goes when it's working. Just a series of turnovers like a tumblebug on a farm. Nothing ever gets actually cooled off and settled.

Every four years we rip up the rails, dynamite the bridges and jam the accumulated momentum. The brightest ray of hope in the scheme of things is that we have been doing it for a century-and-a-half and we are still going along stronger than a goat in a rainstorm.

It arouses the startling theory that we may be right.

Plain Words to Hitler

As a Friend of Germany Sherwood Eddy Rebukes the Present Regime for Its Cruelty.

Oratory may leave us cold—particularly the perfervid, self-starting type which seems aimed at the rafters rather than the intelligence—but oratory nevertheless has its moments.

Such moments are compounded not only of the speaker's personality and what he says, but of the time, the place and the occasion. When these elements conspire together in what may be described as friendly unison, we have a real speech.

Such was the speech on Thursday in Berlin by Sherwood Eddy before the Carl Schurz Society.

"I speak as a lifelong friend of Germany," said he, "but I also speak as a friend of humanity."

Then with fine and courageous indifference to the prevailing Nazi intolerance of criticism, he proceeded to express himself like a man unafraid and serving only truth.

Arraigning the present regime in Germany as not giving impartial justice for all, but merely dealing out class or racial justice for selected types of her citizens, he denounced Germany for what she has inflicted against liberty of thought, of conscience, of speech and of the press.

"Your laws tend to the extermination of the Jews," said he. "Here in my hand is a textbook used in your schools, where hatred and contempt for the great Jewish race are instilled into the children of Germany."

Deploring the new German attitude toward liberalism and racial problems, Mr. Eddy asserted that no country could afford to flout world opinion.

It was the same thought which Bainbridge Colby expressed at the great anti-Hitler protest meeting held in Battery Park in New York City last May.

"One would think," said he on that occasion, "that Germany had learned the lesson that it cannot defy world opinion with impunity. A decent respect for the opinions of mankind becomes all nations."

In the news reports of Mr. Eddy's speech, it was stated that his audience dispersed in a flurry as soon as he had concluded.

We venture the assertion that Mr. Eddy, however, was not in a flurry.

His speech was the calm, brave, weighty utterance of a resolute American who knew precisely what he was talking about and whose words came straight from the shoulder.

It was dramatic, satisfying and altogether effective.

Such warning and advice, spoken to her face and without fear of her displeasure, ought to be of material aid to reeling Germany in recovering her balance and seeing herself in the light of sober and by no means unfriendly world opinion.

His Turn Next

(Copyright, 1933.)

America applauded the recent decision at Washington to build up the Navy—to modernize the battleships, to construct new vessels under our treaty rights and to provide a sufficient fleet of airplanes.

The Army should have the $50,000,000 which Secretary Dern finds necessary for housing, for machine gun units, for motorization and for the completion of the five-year aviation program.

We have allowed our Army to fall to seventeenth place among the land forces of the world.

That position is too dangerous to continue. The Army, as well as the Navy, must be modernized.

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

THUNDER over China, in bright mid-afternoon. A hundred thousand Chinese packed around a flying field of the young republic crane their necks and strain their eyes as an American plane, driven by an American flyingman, plays hide and seek with the laws of gravity. It is Jimmy Doolittle, the Human Thunderbolt, strutting his stuff for the amazement and delight of the Sons of Han, as much at home in the heat-shot airs of Asia as ever he was along the mild air roads of Long Island or New Jersey.

A year or so ago this writer was about to smack a golf ball and was at the top of a prayerful swing when there came from high overhead a shattering roar. The swing was never completed and the ball was never smacked, for a show was on far better than golf.

Up in the sunshine, 2,000 feet, a young gentleman in an Army pursuit plane was doing incredible things. He was riding that plane as a cowboy rides a bucking cayuse. He was riding it as a god might playfully jockey a streak of loose lightning.

And suddenly this amazing young gentleman turned loose the power of two hundred galloping horses and dived headlong for the green earth beneath him. He came roaring and streaking down like a bolt from the blue—a desperate thing to see. The roar of his motors was deafening as he plunged earthward. And just as it seemed as if he must go driving into the solid earth, when disaster seemed inevitable, he swerved suddenly and miraculously upward, like a meadow lark curving from a field of daisies, and shot skyward at the same impossible angle. Jimmy Doolittle at his best, or maybe even his second best.

Hailed as Greatest Flier

AVIATION officers looking on at this arresting exhibition favored this writer with astonished gaze when he asked the name of the flying fool. "Him?" they replied, with ungrammatical emphasis. "That bird? Don't you know who that is? That's Jimmy Doolittle. The greatest flier who ever handled a ship. He's all alone in his class, that lad. Ask any airman."

That is how they rate him among themselves, this flying man who is astonishing the Chinese with his stunts aloft. The first time that this writer ever interviewed him it was his modesty that made the most definite impression. One was struck, too, with the smallness of the man. He weighs only 140 pounds and isn't much bigger than a minute and a half. But he's all man, is Jimmy Doolittle, Jimmy with the twinkle in his eye.

It is interesting to know that he predicts a flying speed of 500 miles an hour within a few years, six hours from New York to California. Airplanes, says Jimmy Doolittle, will hop from continent to continent, like fleas upon a pumpkin. A birdman, flying the equator, could girdle the earth in 24 hours. He could race the sun neck to neck.

Jimmy is out of the Army now. For some reason neither Army nor Navy seems to be able to find ways properly to rank and reward these singularly outstanding fliers. Jimmy had to quit the service, with the rank of major, to go into commercial flying.

Crosses the Andes While Disabled

HIS record is breath-taking. With both legs in a plaster cast he flew over the Andes Mountains at a height of 20,000 feet. He linked three North American capitals, by flying at 215 miles an hour from Ottawa to Washington and from Washington to Mexico City.

One one occasion he was flying at a height of more than 30,000 feet when he lost his senses in the rarified air. His instruments were frozen in a temperature of 57 degrees below zero. Before he regained his senses he had fallen half way to the earth, like a tumbling leaf. Then he came to and just managed to snap his ship out of her dive. Again he was caught in a 50-mile gale and his plane was hurled out of control. But he managed to land with only a broken wing—the plane's, not Jimmy's.

He flew blind at Mitchell Field, the first, or at least one of the first, of airmen to demonstrate the value of artificial controls, sitting in a covered cockpit, seeing neither earth nor sky, and made a perfect landing.

Maj. Doolittle is one of the luckiest of flyers or today he would certainly be numbered among the more celebrated angels. For he flies through thunder and lightning and rain, turning up his snub nose at storms. His daily sport is to play hide and seek with death. A great chap, Jimmy Doolittle, and long may he wave!

Economic Security

The Chamber of Commerce Should Have the Cordial Co-Operation of All in Its Campaign.

The Chamber of Commerce has accepted the invitation of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national industrial recovery administrator, to organize business and civic organizations of Pittsburgh in a campaign to restore economic security.

This is part of the Roosevelt administration's plan to put the jobless back to work, increase the people's purchasing power, and re-establish prosperity, and deserves the cordial support of all.

It will be generally admitted that the Chamber of Commerce is the most capable agency to which the organization of the local campaign could have been entrusted; but the chamber cannot accomplish the task without help. This help should be forthcoming in generous measure.

Conservators Prodded

Senator Reed Has Rendered a Public Service in Inquiring About the Closed Banks.

Senator David A. Reed declares no similar area shows so many national banks in the hands of conservators as are to be found in Western Pennsylvania. The delay in reopening these banks is due, he charges, to the conservators' failure to submit reorganization plans to the Comptroller of the Currency.

Senator Reed's investigation has already proved beneficial. It has brought from some of the conservators statements as to what they are doing or trying to do. Anxious depositors are reassured or at least relieved of uncertainty.

A public service was rendered in prodding the conservators.

The Broken-Finger Wave

Let Mushball Players Put Their Noses to the Grindstone And See What Happens.

We view with alarm the epidemic of broken fingers caused by the game of mushball. An attractive young woman on the South Side suffered such an accident on Wednesday and a few weeks ago a South Side policeman was a victim. True enough, two broken fingers may not constitute an epidemic but it is always well to bear in mind in such cases that giant oaks from little acorns grow.

The Bureau of Census in Washington estimates there are more than seven million fingers in Pittsburgh—a pretty fair supply, if we do say so ourselves.

But what is to become of us if we run around breaking our fingers?

Let's put our noses to the grindstone and be more careful about our fingers. Hitch-hikers should be especially careful.

On second thought this will never do. If we're going to put our noses to the grindstone and be more careful about our fingers, what's to become of our noses, of which, according to the Bureau of Census, there are more than 700,000 in Pittsburgh? Let's just drop the whole thing and let nature take its course.

How to Shake a Woman

* * *

But Mr. Belloc does not specialize on the fine art of making a woman weary. Yet, there are at least 99 ways in which a man can annoy and irritate any woman to tears.

* * *

If the girl of the moment is getting on your nerves, just observe some of the following rules, and you can detach her clinging arms in one evening.

Always calls her up at the last moment, for a date; so that she'll know that you've tried to get two or three other girls, and that she is just an afterthought. Or a low number on your telephone list.

Never ask her what she'd like to do or where she'd like to spend the evening. Just tell her what YOU'VE decided to do, and where you're taking her.

Keep her waiting, until she has replaced the make-up three or four times, and has about decided that she's doomed to "stay at home and read a good book."

* * *

Never bother to get out of the car—just sit there and keep the motor-horn shrieking, until the neighbors all look out to see where the fire is.

When sitting opposite her at dinner, always look past her.

Let your eyes wander vaguely around the room to some pretty woman, while she's talking to you.

* * *

When she begins telling you something interesting, act as though you were waiting for the traffic lights to change or for a truck to pass—and the moment she finishes, spring that bright, scintillating remark on her, which you had in mind. It will simply DAZZLE her!

Ask her if she doesn't think she ought to refrain from eating starchy foods and things that may make her fatter.

* * *

Impress her sternly and firmly with the fact that, while you have a lot of women in your life, you never intend to marry.

On the way back home, always try to maul her and graft a few casual kises, before she gets out of the car.

* * *

I could give you dozens more of these pointers; but if you'll follow those few, carefully, you can get rid of almost ANY woman.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 24.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Out and came upon Ogden Nash, the young minne-singer, and a moment's chat. Then to a hat store and got out of feather with a shirty clerk and did not buy. So home and a note from Virginia Harned, a favorite actress of yesteryear. Also one note from Gypsy O'Brien.

My wife dumpish again about the state of my desk and I'm mightily resolved to clear it off. Minnie Vesey and Luther Reed dropped by a moment. Also Steve Hannagan, who has become an advertising tycoon and will no longer ballyhoo Miami Beach and the motor races in Indianapolis.

To dinner at Sand's Point and talked to the Larry Waterburys, young Will Hearst and his mother, Mary Brown Warburton, Mrs. Margaret Amory and Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey. And Paul Whiteman sent for his bandmen and many others came later. But I carriaged home, too old and creaky to gavotte.

To catch the eye of thousands of tourists who dizzily gaze daily from the top tower of the Empire State Building huge signs lettered in white adorn the roofs of many hotels and business establishments. They are retouched frequently and on clear days stand out in Euclidean dazzle.

Poultney Bigelow, the Kaiser's most intimate American friend who journeys yearly to the exruler's Doorn exile to become a co-wood-chopper, writes his letters on brown wrapping paper a yard wide. A mere note from him is as voluminous as imperial summons to a command performance, requiring 18 cents postage.

The handsome unhand-me-varlet youth with curly black hair seen in all the cigaret ads of a certain brand is Alan Campbell, actor and man-about-town, who proves his versatility by writing pieces for The New Yorker on the side.

Edward Arlington Robinson was too poor to remain at Harvard for his degree when a student in the class of '96. He had to go to work and was a timekeeper in the building of the first New York subway. It is possible Harvard might honor itself by recognizing the most distinguished of all living American poets with a degree, but not likely. The policy, at present, is a man must personally request the bestowing of a degree. And no one can imagine Edward Arlington Robinson asking anybody for anything. Not even of Haw-vahd!

Professor William Lyon Phelps, of Yale, has perhaps the only kiyoodle in the world with a charge account. Whenever Rufus, a red Irish setter, feels a bit hungry, he walks into a New Haven counter lunch frequented by students, sniffs the delicacy he craves and gets it. Dr. Phelps stops at intervals and settles the chit.

In the Biltmore an elegantly tailcoated functionary with a dingus concealed in his hand visits each of the 200 canary cages at the luncheon and dinner hour. Immediately the birds burst into song. His hidden chirrup machine does the trick.

Thingumabobs: Exports of champagne to New York tripled since March 1 . . . The late Melville Ellis used to present white flannel suits to his friends . . . Harry Leon Wilson has joined his erstwhile running mate, Booth Tarkington, on the water wagon . . . The finest surviving barroom nude graces a speakeasy in Boston . . . Frank M. O'Brien's ambition in life has been to be known as a "well known hermit" . . . T. S. Stribling is a chess addict . . . Hervey Allen's home in Bermuda is known as "Felicity Hall" . . . Jean Patou, one of the best dressed men in Paris, is wearing white flannel suits with pin stripes of red, and white Homburg with red band.

One of the inhabitants of the literary colony in Carmel, Cal., is the veteran die-hard Lincoln Steffens. The community has a brash young paragrapher on a weekly there whom many would like to have used in a trunk murder. But recently he was freely forgiven. He led off his column with:

"What this town needs is a new Lincoln Steffens!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"I don't see why people are always jumping on me," you cry.

"I know I make a lot of mistakes, but I don't want to make them. I'd like to be a success. I hate making mistakes as much as anybody. But things always seem to go wrong. Then everybody blames me.

"And even then, I don't get mad. I try to be a good sport. I take the blame."

Yes, you take the blame, Stranger.

BUT WHAT DO YOU DO WITH IT, AFTER YOU TAKE IT?

Do you build on criticism?

Or do you just accumulate it, for the kick you get out of it?

What do I mean by that? Listen!

Did I ever tell you about Pete Olson? Pete belonged to our church, when I was a little girl. In his youth Pete had been the town stew, but those days had passed long since. Pete had become a lazy, mouthy old loafer—with a most satisfactory racket.

Pete's racket was simple. Every Wednesday night he arose in Prayer Meeting and Repented His Sins. Tears flowed from his rheumy eyes as he did so. Emotion gulped and quavered in his wrinkled throat.

But actually Pete was having a swell time Being Sorry. For here was the perfect chance to relieve those wicked old sprees, hog the spotlight—and get a lot of sweet kisses from the saints for so doing. What more could Pete want? What more could any lazy, self-indulgent, egotistical weakling want?

Yes, Pete had the system. He made Remorse exciting and profitable. And I learned about Taking-the-Blame from him.

Not that it isn't big and brave to take the blame.

BUT IT DOES NO GOOD TO TAKE THE BLAME UNLESS YOU DO SOMETHING WITH IT AFTER YOU TAKE IT.

REMORSE ISN'T A VIRTUE IN ITSELF. IT IS ONLY A VIRTUE IF IT LEADS TO SPEEDY REFORMATION.

Prolonged or repeated remorse that starts nothing is merely emotional indulgence and as wicked as the original sin.

It's as silly and selfish to go around raising Cain with yourself and then doing nothing about it as it is to raise Cain with everybody else. In either case, you're making a general nuisance of yourself—and loafing on your job.

PEOPLE WHO MAKE A RACKET OF BEING SORRY AREN'T REALLY SORRY AT ALL. THEY'RE JUST LOOKING FOR A HAND—OR A HAND-OUT.

There is no easier way to get either a hand or a hand-out than to be a Professional Repenter. Both you and the other fellow enjoy it. The other fellow gets a bang out of hearing about your wickedness and thinking how much better and smarter he is than you; and you get a bang out of hearing yourself.

If you really don't like to be blamed—if you honestly want to eliminate the mistakes that cause that blame—the process is simple.

Every time you're blamed, you're blamed for something.

NOT MERELY SOMETHING THAT YOU'VE DONE, BUT SOMETHING THAT YOU ARE.

The faulty thing you do outside is only a symptom of some weakness you have inside. When you're blamed, you are really being blamed for that inner weakness, not for the outer failure.

IF YOU WANT TO STOP THE BLAME, FIND THE WEAKNESS.

Don't go off into an orgy of self-pity, resentment or remorse. Don't satisfy your dramatic instincts by staging a Spectacular Confession or Revenge. That sort of thing is diverting indoor sport but, in the end, will buy you nothing but contempt and humiliation.

STOP BEING PROUD BECAUSE YOU'RE "GAME."

TAKE THE BLAME — FIND THE WEAKNESS.

THEN GET BUSY!

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

You have not fully awakened to the responsibilities of life until now.

The past four years have jarred your placidity to some extent, but you have just begun to sense the necessity for giving serious thought to the future.

You realize you have not applied yourself to your duties as you should.

You have not worked up to capacity mentally or physically.

Getting along as easily as possible your income has met your wants.

But recent cuts in salary have meant cuts in scale of living, and you begin to see that you are one of that class that could not stand prosperity.

You spent foolishly with little regard for true value.

During your flush years you did not save any more than you did in your lean years, but spent as you went and had a good time.

Now you have had an awakening, and it has proved to be a severe jolt.

But if it has instilled a little common sense, it's worth while.

You can profit in the future if you have learned to use common sense.

Don't you wonder why you did not think of it before?

Pretty dumb of you, to be so blind to opportunity and so slow to profit by it.

Don't blame conditions so much for your present situation, blame yourself for much of it.

Text for Today

Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer.—Psalms, xix:14.

VISIT TO THE FARM

By Winifred Black

Little Mary is going to the country for a long vacation, and she's just about crazy with joy.

She's starting to the country tomorrow.

Her train leaves at 8 o'clock in the morning, but she's going to have her hat on by 5, and she'll be up at the first streak of dawn.

All the rest of the family will be up, too.

They might as well be, there will be little sleep in that house, not with little Mary opening and shutting her suitcase, and remembering this, and forgetting that, and getting into a panic for fear she's left out her hiking shoes, and almost fainting when she finds that instead of packing her slicker suit she's left it lying right out on top of the bed as bold as brass.

And oh, what if she should miss the train, and oh and oh, what if when she got there it would be so crowded that they wouldn't let her get into the car, no matter how she showed them her ticket and begged and pleaded.

And what if the farmer's wife shouldn't like her when she got there! What if her room in the farm house wouldn't be where she could hear the rooster crowing the first thing in the morning and all the hens running around calling to the chicks. What if she couldn't hear the ducks quacking and see the geese waddling up and down the barn yard and the horses coming out of the barn, and the cows going down to the pasture? Oh, she couldn't bear to miss one of these things.

The smell of the hay in the meadows in the sun, and the smell of the locust trees with the dew on them, the little fairy slippers you can pick up under those same trees, the blue birds' nest in the knot hole of the apple tree, the robin, as bold as you please, walking up and down the orchard and telling everybody to "cheer up." Regular pollyannas the robins, and ho, what if there should be a humming birds' nest in a sweetbriar rose!

You'd have to tiptoe to see it, of course, and you musn't touch it for worlds or the gay mother bird will flutter away and leave the beautiful blue eggs, no bigger than peas in the pod, to spoil.

For little Mary, you see, has a mother—a real mother.

That mother was born and brought up in the country. She is a very busy woman now, that mother, with a good many things on her mind, but she always manages to find time to tell Mary stories about the country. And when Mary's mother talks about the country you can see little paths leading into the green woods, you can hear water running in swift little streams, and if you listen very hard you will catch the melody of the songs rising from the fields where the "hands" are working.

Yes, Mary's mother was born and raised in the far south, and she has never forgotten it for one minute, not with one drop of her blood, not for a single, homesick minute.

And that's why little Mary is so thrilled at the idea of the country, bless her heart. I hope she'll forget what a city street looks like—while she's gone—don't you?

And honest now, what would you give, you and all your glory, with all your fine clothes and all your friends, and all your heartaches, and all your bitterness of spirit, to be just little Mary going to the country for the first time in her life to spend the long vacation?
